Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne

(Ex Army Med. Staff)

IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CAUTION.—Vice Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman being the inventor was deliberately untrue, which he regretted had been sworn to. Eminent Hospital Physician of London stated that Dr. J. Collis Browne was the discoverer of Chlorodyne; that they prescribe it largely, and mean no other than Dr. Browne's.—See TIMES, July 12th, 1864.

The Public, therefore, are cautioned against using any other than

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE

REMEDIAL USES AND ACTION:

This invaluable remedy produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while Medical men extol its virtues most extensively.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.

CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.

CHLORODYNE effectually arrests and checks those too often fatal diseases—Diptheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.

CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific for Cholera and Dysentery.

CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitations and Spasms.

CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

From Symes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, January 5, 1880. To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33, Great Russell street, Bloomsbury, London.—"Dear Sir, We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation of this justly esteemed medicine.—Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility, we much question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale we fancy their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances ad nauseam of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhœa and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera, Diarrhœa, and even in the more terrible forms of Cholera itself we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling Power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm belief in that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public as we are of opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a culpable breach of faith on the part of the chemist—to prescriber and patient alike. We are, sir, faithfully yours, Symes & Co., Members of the Pharm. Society of Great Britain, His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemists."

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CAUTION.—None genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.

Sole Manufacturer—J. T. DAVENPORT,
33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d. and 11s.

THE GREATEST

WONDER OF MODERN TIMES

Holloway's pills

Persons suffering from weak or dibilitated constitutions will discover that by the use of this wonderful medicine there is "Health for all." The blood is the fountain of life, and purity can be maintained by the use of these Pills.

Sir Samuel Baker,

in his work entitled "The Nile Tributaries in Abyssinia" says, "I ordered the Dragoman Mahomet to inform the Fakey that I was a Doctor, and that I had the best medicines at the service of the sick, with advice gratis. In a short time I had many applicants, to whom I served out a quantity of Holloway's Pills. These are most useful to an explorer as possessing unmistakable purgative properties, as they create an undeniable effect upon the patient, which satisfies him of their value.

SIMPLE, SAFE, AND CERTAIN

is a certain remedy for bad legs, bad breasts and ulcerations of all kinds. It acts miraculously in healing ulceration, curing skin diseases and in arresting and subduing all inflammations.

Mr. J. P. Cooper.

in his account of his extraordinary travels in China, published in 1871, says—"I had with me a quantity of Holloways Ointment. I gave some to the people and in consequence, milk, fowls, butter, and food poured in upon us, until at last a teaspoonfull of Ointmens was worth fowl and any quantity of peas, and the demand became so great that I was obliged to lock up the small remaining stock.

DUNLOP TYRES are one best; and now used all over the world on all the best wheels.
EXTRACT from LETTER on view at our Prahran rooms, 204 Collins-street, opposite Union Bank:—
"Messrs. Klingender, Probert, and Co.
"Gentlemen,—
"I must congratulate you upon securing the AGENCY for the WHITE BICYCLE, and at the same time give you my experience of these wheels.
"Before having America last May, I purchased a White Bicycle for myself and wife, believing them to be the VERY HIGHEST GRADE CYCLE that I could purchase in our country, and I assure you I am exceedingly glad of my purchase. I have now ridden my bicycle 3000 MILES, and have never laid out ONE PENNY FOR REPAIRS, and the cycle is in as good condition to-day as on the day I received it. This I consider most remarkable, as I have ridden it over all kinds and conditions of roads in different countries.
"I wish you every success in your new business, and am confident that when the WHITE becomes BETTER KNOWN in Australia you will have an enormous sale. You may, if you so desire, refer any purchasers to me, &c.

THE NEW GERMAN MAIL STEAMSHIP FRIEDRICH DER GROSSE.

The arrival at Port Melbourne yesterday morning of the new Imperial German mail steamship Friedrich der Grosse attracted a fairly large muster of visitors to the railway pier, where the mammoth vessel was berthed by Pilot Campbell at half-past 9 o'clock. The Friedrich der Grosse, which is the first of a quartet of steamers of her kind in course of construction for the North German Lloyd's, is the largest vessel that has yet passed through the Suez Canal or across the equator. The Friedrich der Grosse has a length between perpendiculars of 625ft., a breadth of 66ft., and an inside depth of 34ft. She measures over 10,000 register tons, and, upon a draught of 28ft. has a displacement of nearly 20,000 tons. Whilst the whole cargo capacity of the ship (including the space for third-class passengers) equals about 11,000 cubic metres (say 9,500 tons), the cabin arrangements provide for the berthing of 100 first class and 70 second class passengers. If, however, the room available for storage purposes is used wholly for that purpose, no fewer than 2,300 passengers can be accommodated in a single trip. In the construction of the vessel one of the first considerations was the handling of large cargoes in port in the shortest possible time, and with the least possible disturbance to passengers. With this object, the cabin passengers are brought together in a compact space amidships, thus leaving at both ends of the ship plenty of free space for the battens and for the various appliances for loading and discharging cargo. In both fore and after parts of the ship are four large cargo hatches, making eight in all. These are provided with cranes, worked by hydraulic power. While the earlier ships of the company had only one promenade deck amidships, this new vessel has two, one immediately over the other, the lower one being used by second-class passengers and the upper one by the first class. These amidship structures stand upon the upper or spar deck, have a length of 250ft., and stretch the whole width of the ship, from the starboard side of the lower of these two decks are placed the sleeping-rooms, bathrooms, and lavatories of the second class; on the port side the officers' rooms and the hospitals for the third-class passengers. The entire traffic of the ship is, on this arrangement, limited to the port side, without inconvenience to the passengers, who are berthed on the starboard side. At the ends of the ship there is a space about 60ft. in length, and a turtle-back 50ft. long. In the poop the third-class passengers are berthed, and in case of need it can be fitted with cabins, etc., for second-class passengers. The seamen's quarters are in the turtle-back. The remaining deck space serves for third-class passengers and cargo, and for accommodation of stewards, firemen, &c. The sleeping-rooms of the first class, a large number of which are arranged for one passenger only, are placed wholly on the two promenade decks, and contain every possible "convenience." The "salons de luxe" is on board for distinguished travellers, and every cabin is provided with electric calls and electric-light, available at all hours of the night. The first-class dining-saloon, ante-room, ladies' drawing-room, and smoking-room are splendid examples of ship architecture. The ante-rooms, passages, and entrance-hall are airy, light, and lofty, with a view to voyages in hot climates, and offer a particularly pleasant retreat. All these rooms are brightly painted, and the most exposed parts are enriched with robbed teakwood. The first-class dining saloon has its walls painted an old-gold tint, with the ornamental parts picked out with light gilding. The ceiling is in ivory tone, with panels of old-gold, gilded, adorned with light and airy paintings. The large skylight is in the same style. Great mirrors, sculptures, and paintings enliven the place, which is closed above with an enormous dome of English glasswork. The large and unusually lofty first-class smoking-room is decorated with bright oak in the German Renaissance style. The first-class ladies' saloon is in the English Queen Anne style. The second-class rooms are finished in simpler style, but very tastefully, in polished hardwood. The sleeping-rooms in the second-class, which are all situated on the upper deck amidships, on the starboard side, are nearly as luxurious as the first class state-rooms. Much care has been bestowed on the arrangements of the bathrooms, &c. As to third-class passengers, they are provided with convenient iron beds, with wide passages at the side, in which tables and seats are placed in large numbers. Two of the divisions in the upper steerage and the poop contain rooms for from two to six third-class passengers. These living-rooms are provided with the best ventilating apparatus. The vessel is built with great strength as a four-decker, according to the highest requirements of the Germanischer Lloyd, of the finest steel. Besides a double bottom running from end to end, the ship is built with 12 water-tight bulkheads, extending to the upper deck, and divided into 13 water-tight compartments, so that two adjoining compartments can be filled without the ship being thereby endangered. The numbers and size of the water-proof doors are as limited as possible, and the pumping arrangements are carried out with unusual care. Besides all these precautions, the steamer is provided with over 20 lifeboats, which are placed on the awning deck in such a manner that they can be lowered to the water in a few minutes. The steering apparatus consists, besides the powerful steering wheels aft on the poop-deck, of a steam apparatus, worked by controlled from bridge. The engines consist of two quadruple expansion engines with four cylinders, and indicate about 7,000 horse-power, giving about 14 knots per hour. The boiler room contains five cylindrical double boilers, and two single ended boilers, the latter available in the ports for subsidiary steam. The boilers are placed in two water-tight divisions, separated from one another, and worked with natural draught. The steam pressure is 213lb. per square foot. The ship is lighted in all parts by electricity, some 700 glow-lamps each of 25 candle-power, being kept going, worked by three direct coupled dynamo-machines. The Friedrich der Grosse brought hither on her voyage the largest cargo yet brought to Australia by one vessel, her complement of general merchandise being about 1,000 tons. Of this 600 tons were landed at Albany, 200 tons at Adelaide, whilst here she will discharge 3,000 tons, and at Sydney over 4,000 tons.* She is under the command of Captain Rickertsen, whilst the navigation is in charge of Mr. E. Prillwitz, who was formerly chief engineer of the Prinz Regent Luitpold. The deck officers are—navigating officer, E. Walters; chief officer, C. Polack; second, H. Walters; third, F. Hagenmeyer; fourth, F. Krause. Dr. Helbeg is surgeon, and M. Rosengarth purser. The vessel left Bremen on the 19th November, but owing to a heavy fog she quitted Antwerp two days behind time on the 24th. On leaving Southampton next day the first and second saloon were full of passengers, whilst 170 were in the steerage. Some fast steaming was done thence to Genoa, the vessel averaging a little over 15 knots per hour for 2,000 miles. The mails were received at Naples. Port Said was reached at on the 28th December, Suez next day, and Aden on the 12th, the trip through the Suez Canal having been accomplished without a hitch. Colombo was left on the 20th, Albany on the 30th December, and Adelaide on Monday last at 5.30 p.m. Cape Otway was passed at 9 o'clock on Tuesday night, when the engines were slowed down, and the steamer coming along leisurely arrived in the bay at 8 a.m. yesterday. Fine weather prevailed almost throughout the voyage, and the average speed attained was 14 knots, although on occasions 15½ knots were logged. The engines worked smoothly all the time, and, generally speaking, the highest expectations formed, were realised. The Friedrich der Grosse leaves here for Sydney to-morrow evening.

FRENCH MAIL STEAMSHIP POLYNESIEN.

The Polynesien, of the Messageries Maritimes line, reached Port Melbourne yesterday morning at 9 o'clock from Marseilles. On arrival she berthed at the railway pier, where passengers and cargo were landed, after the vessel continuing her voyage to Sydney last evening. Captain Boulard reports leaving Marseilles on the 6th December. Violent mistrals and rough seas prevailed until passing Corsica, where the weather became settled, a pleasant run following to Port Said. The Canal was reached on the 11th December, Suez being departed from the next night. The weather was hot and cool during the passage through the Red Sea, and thereafter, until Colombo was reached, those on board were gratified by pleasant auspices to heartily indulge in the time-honored game of "shuffle-board." Colombo was reached on the 21st December, and there passengers and mails for China and Japan were transferred to the s.s. Natal, the Polynesien continuing her trip next day, after coaling. The prevailing conditions on the steamer headed for Albany were equally, if not the weather remained fine, and the West Australian port was arrived at on the first day of the year. A heavy swell was experienced during the run across the Great Australian Bight, the Polynesien's bilge keels being made on the 4th inst., at 10 a.m. Resuming her voyage at 7.30 p.m. that day, the Polynesien encountered a strong gale on the coast, arriving here as indicated. She brought a full complement of passengers for Melbourne, Sydney, and Noumea.

THE BARQUE MOEL TREVAN.

The long sequence of protracted voyages by sailers from the old world to this port, which was broken by the Hesperus a week or two since, would appear, at all events, to have come to an end, for some of the recent arrivals having done remarkably well. The four-masted barque Moel Trevan, which reached the bay early yesterday morning, accomplished the voyage from Liverpool in 34 days. She has a general cargo, comprising 2,400 tons of merchandise, about 1,000 tons of which will be lightered at her anchorage in the bay. The vessel was left on the 12th October. The vessel experienced no N.E. trades, but picked up the south-east trade in lat. 2 deg. N., and carried the easterly trade from the 14th November in lat. 24deg. N. The S.E. trades prevailed only to lat. 15deg. south, where the wind veered to E. and N.E., freshening as the vessel proceeded south. The meridian of the Cape was passed in lat. 40deg. south on the 5th December, and the roaring run down between the parallels of latitude 40deg. and 45deg. S. under N.W. to S.W. winds. Splendid progress was made thence to the meridian of Cape Leeuwin, passed on the 29th December. Moderate variable breezes succeeded to Cape Otway, which was passed on the 3rd inst., the Heads being entered next day.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

"The Argus" Office, Wednesday Evening.

Neither press nor private advices brought by the American mail contain any anticipation of the banking troubles which have lately occurred. On the contrary, they indicate the existence of a very hopeful feeling, consequent upon the defeat of the silver candidate for the Presidency. A letter from a well-informed capitalist at Chicago, who was in the colonies a few months ago, is distinctly optimistic. Although intimately associated with several of the largest of the national banks in and around Chicago, he appears to have had no idea that any breakdown was impending. The trouble, then, has arisen unexpectedly. But that it is serious is pretty certain, especially as American bank managers have not hitherto displayed a suicidal tendency when things go wrong. The gravity of the position will more clearly suggest itself when it is remembered that grain has been literally rushed from the western states to New York for shipment at prices 40 to 50 per cent. in excess of those ruling last season, and that consequently great pecuniary relief ought to have been experienced. The fact is that the low prices of recent years have seriously undermined values of real estate, and of everything founded thereon, in America as well as in Australia. The bank failures indicate that a readjustment is in progress. It is, however, to be hoped that the glowing anticipations of prosperity current in the United States in November will not be killed by a widespread banking crisis.

News from Washington with regard to tariff matters is to the effect that an attempt was being made by some of the Republican members of Congress, in recognition of the services rendered by the sound-money Democrats during the recent election, to take tariff revision out of politics. That is to say, they desire that the revision shall be on moderate lines, fairly acceptable to both parties. It is not expected, however, that this conciliatory policy will succeed, but that the manufacturers will as a body exercise their usual tactics to secure what they call sufficient protection. In the meantime the Republican chiefs are busily engaged in collecting data for tariff revision. With respect to wool, the position is complicated by some of the Southern Democrats, otherwise inclined to free trade, desiring a duty in order to promote the use of cotton.

The dearness of money in London, following the great exportation of gold to New York, and the cheapness of money in New York, consequent upon the receipt of the gold, and the favourable reaction following the Presidential election, have jointly had a remarkable result. London bankers and financial houses have sent bills to New York for discount to the extent of between £4,000,000 and £5,000,000, the rates being from 1 to 1½ per cent. lower than those ruling in London. Of course, one effect of these transactions would be to temporarily check the tendency for gold to continue to flow to New York. Another would be to afford some measure of relief to the London money market. By the time the bills fall due, however, the relative positions may be greatly altered.

The demand for silver in London during the week ended December 3 was quiet, and the market settled down to 29¼d. The Calcutta quotation was 80¼r. per 100 tolas. The Indian exchanges showed a recovery, and there was a good demand for Council drafts. On November 28 six lakhs were sold at 1/3¼d. to 1/3 5-32d.; on November 30, nine lakhs, at 1/3 3-16d.; on December 1, three lakhs, at 1/3 7-32d.; on December 2 (by tender), about 3½ lakhs, at 1/3 3-16d. to 1/3 7-32d.; and on December 3, about four lakhs, at 1/3 7-32d. The tenders on Wednesday, December 2, amounted to only about 10½ lakhs, and it was announced that the amount for which tenders would be received on the following Wednesday would be reduced from 30 to 20 lakhs. Little further discussion took place at that time as to the possibility of gold shipments to India, though the position of the exchanges, especially in relation to the expenditure of the Government in connection with the famine, was watched with much interest. In discussing the subject on November 28, the "Statist" remarked that "if India required gold, much of the demand would probably be met by purchases of gold in Australia." The position of India in such a case would be similar to that of America during the last few months in relation to the shipments of gold from Australia to San Francisco, the gold being drawn from Australia because it is more convenient to do so than to draw it from London. Shipments of silver from London to India, China, and the Straits from January 1 to November 26 amounted to £5,590,550, against £5,720,171 for the corresponding period of 1895, the distribution comparing as follows:—India, £4,235,278, against £3,385,695; China, £721,385, against £1,639,023; Straits, £642,886, against £704,453.

A comparison of the principal headings of the quarterly return of the London Bank of Australia Limited with those for the previous quarter, is as follows:—

WHEAT, FEED GRAINS, &c.

In reviewing the statistical position of wheat at the beginning of December, "Bradstreet's" (New York) describes the exhibit as the most bullish presentation at a corresponding date for the past six years. Including 6,548,000 bushels on the Pacific Coast (the smallest total in that district on December 1 since 1888) the total visible supply in the United States and Canada on December 1, 1896, was 82,981,000 bushels, comparing in corresponding dates in previous years as follows:—1895, 95,964,000 bushels; 1894, 127,698,000 bushels; 1893, 107,220,000 bushels; 1892, 105,089,000 bushels; 1891, 72,948,000 bushels. The stocks available for immediate distribution in America and Europe and afloat on December 1 are summarised as follows:—

	America. Bushels.	Europe and Afloat. Bushels.	Grand Total. Bushels.
1896	82,981,000	65,504,000	148,485,000
1895	95,964,000	68,184,000	164,148,000
1894	127,698,000	56,912,000	184,610,000
1893	107,220,000	83,100,000	190,386,000
1892	105,089,000	70,728,000	175,814,000
1891	72,948,000	84,800,000	157,748,000

The quantity of wheat and flour afloat for the U.K. shows a decrease of 140,000 quarters since last week; and the quantity afloat for the Continent a decrease of 290,000 quarters. The total afloat for both destinations is now 3,470,000 quarters, against 3,219,000 quarters at the corresponding date last year, an increase of 251,000 quarters. The American visible supply shows an increase on the week of 400,000 bushels. The total is now 73,300,000 bushels, against 98,400,000 bushels a year ago, or a decrease of 25,100,000 bushels.

The quantity of wheat in South Australia out of farmers' hands is estimated at 238,700 bushels.

The local market shows firmness, and although a small lot has been sold at 5/4½ the quotation at close is 5/5 to 5/5½. Business in town is, however, limited in volume, the bulk of the transactions occurring in the country, where Melbourne millers are frequently competing with the local millers for the meagre supplies available. Prices given in the country show considerable variation, being, relatively to Melbourne quotations, lowest in the North-east, and highest in the Wimmera. The Melbourne equivalents of the Goulburn Valley prices are 5/3½ to 5/6, and of the Mallee and Wimmera prices from 5/6 to 5/9. Generally the reports of harvest results coming in from the mallee and the Wimmera are unsatisfactory, and in many places the farmers appear to be disposed to store rather than to sell. At auction this morning 1,793 bags were offered, of which 187 were sold at 1/4½, and 31 at 4/8½.

would prove of the greatest value in familiarising the cyanide process among working miners, who have hitherto viewed it with rather doubtful eyes.

The grant of £7,000 made under the provisions of the Treasury Bonds Bill for the purpose of making roads in fifth and sixth class shires has for some time been available for allocation, but owing to some unaccountable apathy on the part of the shires concerned few applications for a share in the money available have yet been received. Mr. Taverner, the Minister of Works, is anxious that the works should be entered upon without delay, and he desires that shires wishing to participate in the grant should at once forward to him plans of the roads required by the different shires, and also particulars of their urgency in order of relative importance.

Mr. Stirling, the Government geologist, will shortly commence a microscopical examination of the gold-bearing dykes of the colony, on the lines formerly adopted by Mr. Howitt. In the course of this work he will go over the whole auriferous areas of the colony, and endeavour to properly classify all the dykes, so that their relative importance in gold-bearing value may be determined at a glance by reference to the maps. The result of Mr. Stirling's examination is expected to be of the utmost importance to working miners and prospectors, who will be able to satisfy themselves beforehand of the particular kind of dyke from which they may expect the best results, instead of, as at present, neglecting many kinds of which little is known.

A circular has been issued by the Federal Council of Rifle Associations, asking the various associations to take into consideration the proposal to send an Australian rifle team to England. It is pointed out that the idea that Australia should be represented at the Bisley meeting has always been popular, and has excited still increased interest since the Queen's Prize in 1895 was carried off by the Canadian shot Hayhurst. For some years Canada has sent a team of 20 men to compete at Bisley, and the council of the Dominion Rifle Association has promised to extend a warm welcome to any team sent to England from Australia. The circular goes on to point out the advantages of taking concerted action in the matter. As at present arranged, a team of 40 non-commissioned officers and men of the New South Wales Mounted Rifles will visit England in order to take part in the manœuvres at Aldershot, in addition to competing at the military tournament at the Agricultural-hall, Islington. As they intend also to enter for the competitions at the Bisley meeting, it is hoped that Victoria may be represented, as this would considerably strengthen the Australian party.

The question of increasing wages reduced by resolution dated April the 11th, 1894, was raised at the meeting of the Harbour Trust yesterday by Commissioner Treganowan. This resolution, so far as it applied to wages paid to the trust's employes engaged on plant, was rescinded, and Commissioner Treganowan then moved that the wages of all the employes engaged on plant, except masters and engineers, be raised to certain specified amounts. This was seconded by Commissioner Mountain and carried by a large majority. Commissioner Blyth objected to the proposal, on the ground that the circumstances of the trust and of the colony did not justify the increases. He contended that if the trust's employes were not satisfied with their wages they should leave their employment and go elsewhere. The reductions made in April, 1894, were about 25 per cent., and the increases made yesterday are about 12½ per cent.

Our Lorne correspondent telegraphs that Mr. Reid, the Premier of New South Wales, is at present staying at the Grand Pacific Hotel there, and has booked his rooms for some time. Mrs. Reid and one of his two children, who accompany him, have been ordered to the seaside for a change, and Mr. Reid has chosen Lorne, where he has stayed before, and which is a favourite place with him, to afford them the change desired.

The mails despatched from Melbourne by the R.M.S. Ballarat on the 1st December arrived in London on the night of the 3rd inst.

We have received from Mr. M. L. Hutchinson, of Little Collins-street, the "Christmas Double Number of The Woman at Home," an excellent high-class magazine, edited by Annie S. Swan. The principal article is on "The Daughters of Queen Victoria," which is fully illustrated with interesting portraits. Mr. Hutchinson also sends "Horner's Xmas Number," with a coloured supplement.

A marine excursion to Mornington, organised by the United Public Service Association, will be held on Saturday next. The steamer Hygeia has been chartered for the occasion, and will leave the Port Melbourne pier at half-past 11 a.m. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the committee, at the Public Offices, or on the pier before the boat departs. The Police Band will accompany the steamer, and a programme of sports, &c., will be provided in the local park.

If anything were wanting to convince our Victorian workmen that "Golden South Africa" is very far from being as golden as it is painted, the extract from the "Cape Times," which we print in another column, should be amply sufficient to supply their want. The extract gives the experiences of an English worker, told in his own words, who was beguiled into trying the Rand with the object of bettering his fortunes. Especially should Victorians who, perhaps with some reason, are becoming somewhat disgusted with their colony note what this English workingman says about the state of the labour market on the Rand. "There were," says he, "hundreds of men idle, willing to work, but unable to get anything to do." Utterly unable to procure any employment in Johannesburg, this poor fellow had to footslog the whole of the way back to Cape Town—a weary journey of upwards of 800 miles. And this largely through a country peopled by Dutchmen, not altogether inclined to be so hospitable towards Englishmen as might be wished. When at last he did reach Cape Town he found things very little better, and was glad to get the chance of working his way home again in a sailing ship.

STAMP FRAUDS.

ROBBING THE POST-OFFICE.

PHILATELY UP TO DATE.

A NEW USE FOR SALTS OF LEMON.

Detective Macmanamny has again been inquiring into matters of interest to the Postal authorities, and has succeeded in placing on record some revelations of a remarkable and startling character, which will probably lead to a radical alteration in the regulations for the manufacture and sale of stamps within the colony. He has shown that wholesale frauds are possible, and have been perpetrated with the greatest ease, and that in a department where much money may be made or lost the authorities are at the mercy of any man who cared to set to work in a dishonest way, with no more expensive stock-in-trade than a bundle of cancelled stamps, and a common acid.

The Philatelic Society, through some of its members, just woke to the fact that something was wrong by finding that valuable stamps, which they had considered obsolete and rare, were turning up frequently, and even unused. The Postal authorities were communicated with, and asked for an explanation, and they at once concluded that a fraud was being worked somewhere. Just about that time a stamp collector named Mouldon sold a quantity of stamps to a member of the Philatelic Society. These were found to be stamps which had been submitted to a process, and cleaned after cancellation. The stamps were returned to Mouldon, who is blind, and he in turn sent them back to the man from whom he had purchased them—Thomas Webb, a stamp dealer and printer, of the Eastern Arcade. In the meantime Webb had sent to the Post-office for exchange one £10 and one £2 duty stamp, both of which were apparently unused. Knowing that some peculiar fraud was being worked in the stamp business, the officer in charge did not immediately exchange the stamps, but told off Detective White, of the Post-office, to interview Webb. The interview took place, but White could get nothing from Webb which was important to the investigation, and it was apparently dropped. The two stamps and a number of others of smaller value were submitted for analysis to Mr. C. R. Blackett, who found that nearly all of them had been tampered with. Acid had been used to cleanse from them the ink stains, and so thoroughly had the cleansing been done that the difference could not be detected, even with the aid of a strong glass. The application of acids in the laboratory alone sufficed to show traces of the obliterated ink.

When it was ascertained beyond doubt that the fraud was being perpetrated, Detective Macmanamny was specially detailed for the task of clearing away the mystery, and of bringing the offenders to justice. The detective sent a man to Webb's shop in the arcade to purchase stamps, but the man did not succeed in his mission, and Macmanamny went himself on the 4th December. He skilfully played the stamp dealer for a while to ascertain whether he was known. Finding he was not, he bought some unused Victoria stamps, and then asked for others of more value. Webb said he had none at the shop, but believed he had some at his private residence, and would bring them in next day if he could. Macmanamny agreed to call again on the following morning, and upon making the visit was supplied with the stamps he desired. He bought 16/ worth, and for the sake of evidence got a receipt, which read: "Received 16/11 for 11 unused Victorian obsolete stamps, and one New South Wales stamp.—T. Webb." All of these stamps were submitted to Mr. Blackett for analysis, and nine out of the eleven were found to have been cleansed by acid after having been used.

The matter was reported to the Attorney-General, and on Tuesday the Crown solicitor was asked for his opinion as to the merits of the case. He stated without hesitation that the evidence would be sufficient under a section of the Postal Act which provides a penalty of up to 15 years for being in unlawful possession of stamps from which writing has been obliterated. The section is a stringent one, and casts the onus of the proof of lawful possession upon the accused. Both of the interviews of Mr. Gunness, Macmanamny paid another visit to Webb, taking with him marked money, so that there should be no loop-hole of escape for the stamp vendor. Four more stamps—treated with acid—were purchased for 10/, and each of the coins paid to make up the amount was marked peculiarly under the eye of the Queen—the detective facetiously observing, as he subsequently drew attention to this fact, that many things were done under the eye of the Queen without the fact being patent at the time. The case was now complete, and Macmanamny secured warrants for the arrest of Webb and for the searching of his premises, and armed with these summarily wound up the investigation last evening. Detective-sergeant Ward and Detective M'Williams were in Macmanamny's company at the time, and Webb was not a little astonished when he learned the reason of Macmanamny's sudden devotion to philately, and his lavish expenditure of money for obsolete stamps. At first he denied the charge laid against him, but when the marked money was turned out of his pockets, and he was informed of the chemical experiments which had been made with his stamps, he owned up, and made the following confession:—

THE CONFESSION.

In his confession, Thomas Webb states:—"I am a printer and stamp dealer, carrying on business at 18 Eastern Arcade, off Bourke-street, Melbourne. I remember seeing in a book I was reading that ink marks could be erased from stamps by salts of lemon — a teaspoonful to a teacup of water. By allowing the stamps to remain soaking in the solution, the ink marks upon them would disappear. I tried to see how it would act, and I found in certain cases it was impossible with the naked eye to notice any difference between the cancelled stamps so treated and the unused stamps. Finding it so successful the idea came to my mind that I would treat cancelled stamps as above stated, and sell them over the counter as "unused" to collectors.

"About July, 1896, I sold to a stamp collector named Mouldon, who is a blind man, about £20 worth of Victorian unused and used stamps. The latter went through the solution. I got their face value, less 10 per cent. Some time after selling Mouldon the stamps he called on me and stated that he had been informed that some of the stamps had been cancelled and afterwards cleaned. I did not wish to get into any trouble, and therefore repaid Mouldon for the stamps.

"I also remember that, about the month of July last year, I sold to the distributor of stamps at the G.P. Office, Melbourne, about £3/16/ worth of 'used' stamps treated by me in the solution, and sold by me at face value, less 5 per cent. I also remember in October, 1896, forwarding to the comptroller of stamps, G.P. Office, Melbourne, two stamps, namely, £10 and £2, for exchange with other stamps. The £10 stamp was cancelled, and I cleaned it by putting it in the solution. I also remember Detective White, of the Post-office, calling on me regarding Mouldon's stamps. He told me that stamps had been sold to the Post-office that had been cleaned. I remember Detective Macmanamny calling on me on four different occasions, and on three he purchased stamps. Some of the stamps I sold him as 'unused' were cleaned by me.

"I would like to state that I have tried stamps of other colonies by placing them in solution, and I found that the colour of the stamp would run, and thereby spoil the design of the stamp, but on the other hand I had no difficulty with the Victorian stamps. In my opinion there are several collectors of stamps in Melbourne to-day who clean cancelled stamps by salts of lemon, muriatic acid, oxalic acid, or even the juice of a lemon, and take or send them to various post-offices and get them postmarked. The stamps are thus increased in value to collectors. I myself have had them post-marked.

"I admit that the 28 stamps found on me at the time of my arrest by Macmanamny have all been cleaned. I intended them for postmarking. I will add that I have cleaned about 400 stamps altogether. Some of them I have destroyed, others I have sold, and I have also sent a number to different parts of the world.

"(Signed) THOMAS WEBB.

"Witness, P. Macmanamny."

WEBB'S STOCK-IN-TRADE.

After placing Webb under arrest, the detective searched his shop, and impounded all the stamps found in it. Then they went to his residence at Palermo-street, South Yarra, and there found a great many more. Some were placed in books ready for sale, while others were soaking in the solution of acid, in preparation "for sale or exchange." Altogether, the face value of the stamps found could not be less than £500. Webb followed up his confession by the statement that he intended to plead guilty, and then added a few words of advice, which the Government will probably act upon. He said:—"The Victorian stamps are the easiest in the world to manipulate, except the Transvaal stamps. Between these two there is not much to choose. Either of them can be cleansed of ink marks by the roughest and readiest means, and the process, if carefully carried out, can scarcely be detected, even by the analyst. The stamps of other colonies do not so easily lend themselves to manipulation. When put in acids their colours run, and the designs are spoiled. The Victorian colours do not run, and the acid makes no visible impression upon the stamp itself. If the Government wants to stop this manipulation of its stamps it will have to print them with different ink—Fugitive ink would be good." The detective smilingly promised to bring under the notice of the proper authorities the valuable hints which had been given, and Webb was then locked up at the City Watch-house. He will appear at the City Court to-day, and will be remanded for a week.

HOW THE FRAUDS WERE POSSIBLE.

The illegal trafficking in stamps which has been boldly brought into prominence by the arrest of Webb has caused considerable anxiety to the Postal authorities, and, doubtless, grave loss to the revenue. The valuable stamps in Webb's possession, but for the discovery made, might have all been brought back at the post-office window as a matter of ordinary business, at their face value, less 5 per cent. Thus the revenue would have lost £500. How far this trafficking has extended, and how long it has been practised, cannot, of course, be decided offhand. Webb says other stamp collectors use the same means to restore stamps, and probably he knows what he says to be true. One thing is certain. In the stamp department, the door of fraud is wide open, and the interior is so invitingly profitable that many ingenious people are bound to enter. The means by which old stamps are obtained to furnish the fraudulent dealers with materials for their solution processes are many, and some of them are curious. In the first place there are countless collectors of stamps who gather from their friends, and from everyone, old stamps of all values. These they do up into bundles and sell. If they are smudged with the post-office marks they are of little value to the fraudulent dealer who wants to cleanse and circulate them again. But if they have been taken from receipts, bills of exchange, &c., and are merely cancelled with the pen "A," "B," "1—1—97," they are easily dealt with as described, and may be sent through the post again. When the banks went into liquidation several years ago, large heaps of stamped documents they held in their strong rooms were sold for waste paper. These documents bore valuable stamps, some being worth many shillings, while a few ran into pounds. It has been suggested that these stamps, at first treated as curiosities, have passed from hand to hand till they have finally reached some dishonest dealer, who has made them the basis of an irregular, but profitable, trade by selling them back again to the Post-office, or putting them into ordinary circulation for the convenience of lawyers and others, who often require high-priced stamps.

The telegraph department formerly sold their telegraph forms, with the stamps attached, for waste paper. That practice has been stopped in view of recent discoveries, and the forms and defaced stamps are now destroyed in the office itself. The whole subject is so important that the Postmaster-General has asked Mr. Blackett to suggest some improved stamp which will not lend itself to fraud. What is most desired is some ink which will change colour when subjected to any acid or other chemical processes. Meanwhile the greatest care is being observed in the department in the conduct of stamp business.

BURNT TO DEATH.

TWO CHILDREN THE VICTIMS.

HEROIC ATTEMPTS AT RESCUE.

A GALLANT BOY.

SYDNEY, Wednesday.

A sad disaster occurred on Tuesday at Mudgee, by which two children were burnt to death. Mrs. Gurton, a hardworking woman, and generally esteemed, had returned to her home at dusk, after nursing a neighbour, and proceeded to finish some washing. Her family of boys had been in bed for some time, when the woman and her daughter went outside to collect clothes from a line, leaving a candle in the same place in which it had stood for an hour. When the daughter returned to the house with an armful of clothes, she saw the place was ablaze, a strong gust of wind having driven the window curtains on the candle and set them alight. The flames at once ignited the calico ceiling and slab walls. The mother rushed into the house, and with a bucket of water sought to stop the fire from spreading, but was herself driven out.

A neighbour named Lewis Cassimer, who was passing at the time, heard the children crying in the front room, and seeing the flames, attempted to burst in the front door, but failing, entered by the back door, and while groping in the smoke, succeeded in catching hold of Willie, aged 10, whom he carried out. He again essayed to enter the house, but was driven back, so he then sought to break the slab wall down with a view to rescuing the imprisoned children. The heat, however, was too intense to allow this to be done.

The slab walls and bark roof burnt with incredible rapidity and fierceness, owing to the flames being fanned by the high wind, and further attempts at rescue had accordingly to be abandoned. When the flames had partly subsided, a search was made for the remains of the children. It was not known then that Percy had not escaped, but his charred body was found near that of his brother Joseph.

The boy Willie had succeeded in rescuing one brother named Harry, and had made three desperate and heroic attempts to reach his two other brothers, when he himself succumbed to the smoke, and was found by Cassimer. Both he and Cassimer were badly scorched. At the inquest, which was opened this morning, it was stated by one witness that he saw a child in the burning room, and reaching through the window he called to him to come to him. He received the reply, "All right, I will come," but the smoke and flames drove the man from the window, and suffocated the child, whose corpse was found where he was seen.

PERTH, Wednesday.

A phenomenal find of gold is reported to have been made at Mount Margaret. Two prospectors named Dennis and Kerr, after six months' prospecting on behalf of a syndicate, have brought into Perth 250lb. of stone, averaging, they say, 2oz. to the lb. of quartz. The claim, which is 20 miles north-east of Mount Margaret, is called the British Flag. Rich gold was visible 8ft. from the surface. They opened out again a chain and a half north of this spot, and sunk a shaft about 30ft. on the underlay. Work has been actively carried on, but it was not until a couple of months back that the reef was struck. It is 7ft. wide 30ft. from the surface.

THE SHIPPING CRISIS.

A NEW PHASE.

SETTLEMENT DEFERRED.

ALL SHIPS NOW STOPPED.

THE LATEST DEMAND.

FREE ENGINEERS MUST BE DISMISSED.

Yesterday saw a new phase of the maritime difficulty which, as some had come to regard as settled, it was indicated in "The Argus" yesterday that, though a truce had been called pending a conference, the position of the "free" engineers engaged by the owners had not been determined. There were only five of those men—two on the Coogee, two on the Cuzner, and one on the Despatch—and the fact that they did not form the subject of any express stipulation in the terms of settlement was regarded by the owners as indicating that they were to remain at their places till their fate was decided by the conference.

The first signs of fresh trouble showed themselves early yesterday, when Mr. Corby, secretary to the engineers in Melbourne, waited on Mr. Parker, president of the Victorian Ship-owners, and Mr. Hudson, the secretary. He said that the engineer of the Despatch complained that his place had been filled by a man who was not a member of the institution. Mr. Parker said he could not help that. He had engaged the men two days before the Sydney truce, and could not send him away, no matter what happened, until the conference had come to some arrangement with regard to him and the others who had been taken on during the strike.

Mr. Corby at once reported the matter to his executive at Sydney, and it was late yesterday afternoon when he received the following telegram:—

"Stop all ships till engineers reinstated on the Courier and Despatch."

This decision was promptly conveyed to the executive of the steamship-owners, who took the earliest opportunity of reviewing the position in the light of the new development.

MR. PARKER'S VIEWS.

WILL NOT GIVE WAY.

In the course of an interview last evening Mr. Parker was most emphatic in saying that on no account would he, as an owner, throw over the men who had joined the service of his company at a crisis such as the present. The step which the Engineers' Institution had taken was in direct conflict with the terms of the truce declared at Sydney, which said that neither side should commit a hostile act towards a member of the other side pending the conference. He was quite prepared to have all matters settled by the conference, but he was not going to be coerced into an unjust act. The matter, he added, would be considered by a full meeting of the owners on the following day, when perhaps the difficulty would be overcome by some mutually acceptable arrangement.

On this subject the following correspondence took place. Mr. Cockburn telegraphed to Mr. Hudson yesterday:—

"Engineers complain Houldart Parker persisting employment non-union engineers. This is hostile action. If continued understanding of yesterday will be jeopardised, if not destroyed. Reply urgent."

Mr. Hudson replied:—

"Your information incorrect. Houldart, Parker, and Co., although negotiating for [illegible] engineers, [illegible] and taking further [illegible] in the matter of putting down bores. [illegible] conference. If engineers mean that all men engaged prior to arbitrate are to be summarily dismissed, fear sure owners will not agree. Meeting ten thirty to-morrow. Wire reply."

THE ENGINEERS' RULES.

ARE THEY TO BE RECOGNISED?

AN INTERESTING POINT.

In Mr. Cockburn's telegram to Mr. Hudson on Tuesday, notifying the conditions of settlement, it was set out:—"Meantime rules of the engineers to be observed till conclusion of conference."

Mr. Hudson on this telegraphed to Mr. Cockburn, saying that he assumed that the reference to engineers' rules "only means rules tacitly observed by owners in the past, and not the whole of their rules."

Mr. Cockburn replied to this that Mr. Hudson's assumption was correct, whereupon the Melbourne owners agreed to accept the conditions.

Mr. Corby, in the course of an interview last evening, stated that the whole of their rules were accepted by the owners unconditionally. One of them, viz., rule 23, said that "no member shall sail in a steamer owned or chartered by a company in whose service non-members are engaged in seagoing vessels." Again, rule 26, said that no member should engage with any company which employed any engineer who had been expelled from the institution. He held that these rules having been accepted as a condition precedent to the conference, the owners had no option but to send away the men whom they had engaged.

Here the matter rests for the present, neither side showing any disposition to give way.

THE CONFERENCE.

TO BE HELD IN SYDNEY.

Arrangements for the conference were determined yesterday before the developments above referred to took place. In the forenoon Mr. Hudson telegraphed to Mr. Cockburn:—

"After mature consideration the majority of the delegates each side. We have appointed the chairman, Mr. E. P. Parker, and Mr. R. S. Howard Smith to represent Melbourne owners. As points to be conferred about mainly affect companies controlled in Melbourne, and as president of the Melbourne branch of engineers, Mr. Park, resides here, consider it advisable to make Melbourne the seat of conference. Reply."

To this Mr. Cockburn replied:—

"Engineers unanswerable to seat of conference."

With this the Melbourne owners closed, and arranged to leave for Sydney this afternoon. How the latest phase of the difficulty will affect their determination remains to be seen.

STEAMERS STOPPED.

The Innamincka, of the Adelaide Co.'s line, is still at the wharf, on the Yarra, but the local agent (Mr. C. S. Willimott) assures us that she will sail for the west today.

The Federal (M'Ilwraith and M'Eacharn) was stopped from going to sea last evening.

ANXIETY IN SYDNEY.

POSITION CRITICAL.

SYDNEY, Wednesday.

When matters appeared to have calmed down in connection with the difficulty between the steamship-owners and their engineers, and everything pointed to a satisfactory arrangement, a sudden complication occurred. It was not until late this afternoon that anything was heard of it, but it has occasioned much anxiety to both sides.

Information came from Melbourne that the engineers there were protesting against the action of Messrs. Houldart, Parker, and Co. in sending to sea non-union engineers engaged for their steamers Despatch and Courier. When an announcement to this effect reached the executive council of the Institution of Engineers, they at once communicated with the Steamship-owners' Association in Melbourne. They contended that the step taken by Houldart, Parker, and Co. was a "hostile" action, and utterly at variance with the terms outlined in their letter of the [illegible] message [illegible] able to enter [illegible] with the engi[illegible]

BRITISH TRADE AND GERMAN COMPETITION.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

VALUE OF SCIENTIFIC EDUCATION.

SPEECH BY MR. ARTHUR BALFOUR.

On November 19 Mr. Arthur Balfour, leader of the House of Commons, delivered an address at the Cutlers' Feast at Sheffield, from which we make the following extract from "The Times" report:—"There is a subject to which public attention has recently been drawn by Lord Rosebery and by others, and I cannot help thinking that unduly unfavourable deductions have been drawn from certain statistical, or alleged statistical, facts. Now, I am not an enemy of panics. I think the British public require panics. (Laughter.) Admiral Field has told you that we slept upon our money-bags from the year 1865 to the year 1885. Then we got a panic, and we awoke, and by the help of several subordinate subsequent panics we have contrived to bring our navy up to the present more or less—I say more or less deliberately (laughter), in view of the critic on my right—the more or less complete state of perfection in which it now finds itself; and therefore I do not for one moment regret that the British producer, the British manufacturer, should be told on high authority that he is having, and is going to have, a bad time of it because he will not bring himself up to the mark and will not meet the growing requirements of the day. Whether the panic be justified or unjustified, I daresay it will prove a not unwholesome panic. I speak here to one of the greatest commercial audiences which can be brought together in any part of this country or the world, and I think they will practically agree with me that probably a little alarm—a little wholesome alarm—now and then is not bad for the commercial system. (Laughter.) But at the same time, I think, to indulge in pessimistic prophecies in regard to the future upon statistics of the import of foreign manufactured goods is perhaps unnecessary. The theory is this. A great foreign trade is necessary for this country; it is a mark, it is a cause, and it is a proof—it is both the cause and the proof—of national prosperity. If you find great importations of foreign goods, is not that a proof that your foreign export trade is in danger? That is the argument. I think, as we have stated, the argument is fallacious. A great foreign export trade carries with it as a necessary, as a mathematical, consequence a corresponding import trade. (Laughter.) No doubt if your export trade is on a small scale you may conceive that imports from abroad of raw material, of raw produce, for the manufactured articles, may be sufficient to pay for it, but if you desire, as we all desire, that the export trade of this country should be a great trade, this on the face of it means, if that trade is to exist, there must be an import trade to pay for it. (Hear, hear.) After all, we must be paid in goods, we can be paid in nothing else, and we must not only be paid in goods for what we export, but we must be paid in goods for the interest on the capital which we have invested abroad, if we be paid at all, which I presume all desire—(laughter)—and therefore there must be a certain import trade if there is to be—on the hypothesis that there is to be—a great export trade. That, I take it, is not a subject upon which there can be any controversy, which really is a mathematical proposition, and a question simply of the balance of accounts. I will put it further, and I would say that it is really matter for congratulation that the growth of manufactures by foreign countries. That growth is inevitable. Like it or dislike it, do not let us grumble at what is really the result of inevitable laws. You have in America, you have in Germany, you have in every country where the population is growing—you have an increasing, you have a relative and absolute increase of the population in the towns to the population in the country districts. The populations in the towns, of course, must manufacture, first for themselves, possibly for other people, and they will grow in manufactures, they will import machinery, they will use their brains, their hands, and capital for turning raw material which they produce, and that is a thing which no Englishman has a right to complain of, of which I am convinced no Englishman does complain, and which is absolutely an inevitable incident of national growth. I do not pretend that I like it, I think it is a pity, it is a subject for regret in any way. If I were engaged in selling goods I should desire that my customers should be prosperous—and there is no greater mistake either in international argument or in social argument than to suppose that the prosperity of "A" must necessarily be gained at the expense of "B." This is in many respects a very ill-contrived world, but it is not so ill-contrived as that. What one gains is not lost by the other, but on the contrary, as within the limits of one country the prosperity of one class is so far from being a cause of want of prosperity to another class that it will grow with wealth and prosperity together, so do I firmly believe that as every nation grows in wealth and prosperity so it will help on the wealth and prosperity of its neighbours. (Cheers.) Now, these are general considerations which make me extremely distrustful of any deductions that may be made from statistics, from mere statistics, of exports and imports, even though upon the face of them they may appear unfavourable. I believe, as a matter of fact, our statistics at the present time are not unfavourable, but at any rate it is not upon that that I would base any fear for the future of this country.

GERMANY'S EXAMPLE IN SCIENTIFIC EDUCATION.

What I do think, and what I have admitted, is that, though we have not much to fear from the action of other nations, we have much to learn from the action of other nations. (Hear, hear.) I have already said that I think Mr. Bull requires the occasional stimulus of a panic to make him do his best. He is like a noble horse, dragging a load well within his weight, who, perhaps, gets a little slow in his action unless occasionally he hears the crack of the whip. (Laughter.) I think that, though I do not envy the growth of German manufactures—taking Germany for example, as that is the case taken by the distinguished man of whom I speak—though I neither envy the growth of German manufactures nor fear the growth of German manufactures, though I do not think that German prosperity can be other than, in the long run, a help to British prosperity, still I am not so blind as to think, with regard to a nation which gives itself over with such fervour to everything which can, by discipline and education, promote its material prosperity, that we have nothing to learn by the methods by which, in Germany, they have a good deal to learn—(hear, hear)—and I think it behoves us to learn it. (Cheers.) Lord Rosebery desired that an inquiry should be made into the topics on which I am venturing to arrest your attention to-night. That inquiry is being made, or is partly being made, by the departments of the Government concerned. I do not profess to give the results of these inquiries, but it is an undoubted fact that the Germans do think it, rightly or wrongly, to be worth while to spend money Imperially, municipally, and privately upon those branches of scientific research which have a direct bearing upon manufactures, to an extent and degree absolutely unknown in this country, which surely ought to take the lead in all commercial matters. ("Hear, hear," and cheers.) I have been informed by a gentleman who has recently come from a chemical centre of Germany that there are at this moment in Germany no fewer than six great technical institutions for the study of electrical matters alone, which are superior to anything of the kind which we have in this country. The witness of whom I speak was not a professed expert. He went to Germany with no preconceived views either for or against the method of technical instruction there pursued, and I have faithfully detailed to you the information I gained. I am further informed, on evidence the value of which I cannot for a moment doubt, that, while the Government and the municipalities spend these vast sums in providing a great body of trained experts, the great manufacturers in Germany, to an extent altogether unknown in this country, employ a large body of investigators on their own account on their own premises, taking advantage of every discovery that can be made, and in so far as may be made discoveries for themselves. (Cheers.) I do not comment upon the fact; I simply state the fact to you. I should be reluctant to say how great is the advantage which any country thus liberally disposed is likely to reap. It may be that the Germans have been expending their money in unremunerative investigation, and that they will not get in the shape of national profit any result for what they have done. That may be so, but I remember the late Mr. Bagehot's pointing out that one of the great advantages that England had over every other nation in the world was that she was when any discovery was made, when any new outlet of industry was invented, the amount of disposable English capital was so great that England reaped the chief benefit from it. (Cheers.) Now, this is the question I want to put. Is not Germany, by bringing into existence this vast body of fine specialists, preparing itself to make the utmost use of any possible advances in scientific manufactures which may be made? (Cheers.) Is it not likely that it will have the advantage, as compared with other nations, in turning to account the smallest hint in any direction, in developing any discovery, however slight, in making the most of any advance, however small that advance may be? That question I put to men incomparably more qualified to answer it than I am myself.

SCIENCE AND MANUFACTURES.

But I think the question is worth putting in the great manufacturing centres of this country, and I would ask them not to be put off—I do not think Sheffield is likely to be put off—(cheers)—but I will ask any who read my words not to be put off with the idea that what is called technical instruction, by which I mean manual instruction in the arts and crafts, however good in itself, has anything to do with the particular kind of education of which I am speaking. It has nothing to do with it. Education in the first three standards of your primary schools has more to do with the higher university training than the manual education of which I speak has to do with the technical education which I desire for the country. For the education in your primary schools is, after all, a necessary preliminary of your university education. You must learn to read, you must learn to write, you must learn to do arithmetic before you can take advantage of what Oxford and Cambridge, Edinburgh and Glasgow, have to give you, but still education in the three R's leads up to all this knowledge, but the manual education called technical does not lead up to, and has no relation to or connection whatever with, that scientific education of which I speak. England became a great manufacturing country, the greatest manufacturing country which the world has ever seen, before the intimate relation of organised science to manufactures was thoroughly understood. I fear that in some quarters it may still be a fact that the relation between science and manufactures is not thoroughly grasped, and there may still be some who think that money spent in what appears to be abstract investigations far removed from the practical things of life has but a small effect on national well-being and national commerce. I am told that, if we believe them, they are profoundly mistaken. (Hear, hear.) They have not followed the course of human knowledge, they have not kept abreast of human progress, and if we have leeway to make up in this matter, if we have to learn a lesson which perhaps came easier to the Germans than it did to us, let us, let us, at all events, to learn that lesson completely, and then I doubt not we shall—even in the eyes of the most pessimistic critic—continue to hold that position which hitherto we have held unchallenged, and then British manufactures, British industry, British capital may still maintain throughout the world that supremacy they have so long held and so well deserved. (Loud cheers.)

AN HISTORICAL REMINISCENCE.

The following extract, translated from "Ons Land," a Dutch journal published in South Africa, describes an incident which affords a curious parallel to a recent achievement of Mr. Cecil Rhodes:—

"Much has been made of the act of derring-do on the part of Mr. Rhodes when he met the Matabele chiefs, or some of them, at least, at an 'indaba' (that is, a friendly conference). Less has been said of the courage displayed by Dr. Hans Sauer, Mr. J. Colenbrander, and Mr. Stent, who accompanied our ex-Premier on his perilous journey. Still less notice has been taken of the fact that in this case also it may be said that there is nothing new under the sun. The ex-editor of the defunct 'South African Telegraph' was the first to point out that, nearly seventeen years ago, Sir Gordon (then plain Mr.) Sprigg, at that time also Premier, showed an example of intrepid and undaunted devotion to duty which merits being rescued from oblivion. We have made inquiries regarding this striking incident, and find the circumstances to have been as follows—

"The clever and brave old chieftain Mooiroti, who had from time to time given much trouble to the Free State, and even to Moshesh, had rebelled against the colony. A strong force, consisting of the 'Yeomanry,' C.M.R., and volunteers, had invested his mountain for nearly a year, but to no purpose. Two or three attempts at storming that formidable natural fortress had been repulsed with considerable loss on our side. The war expense had risen to an absurdly high sum, taking into consideration the meagre resources of the black old highlanders. The prestige of the colony among the other native tribes had begun to suffer. In the colony people grumbled about the alleged maladministration of our forces, who were apparently powerless beside so insignificant and unimportant a chief.

"Matters so remained until October, 1879, when the Premier, Mr. Sprigg, thought it necessary that he should himself, although no soldier, proceed to the scene of action to investigate the state of affairs and assist in devising plans for taking the mountain. He found that the repeated repulses and the formidable nature of the defence works of the enemy on or about the bridle-path, the only means of access to the mountain, had somewhat demoralised the colonial forces. At any rate, it was more than muttered in the camp that any more open assaults would be the height of madness. On the other hand, it appeared almost impossible to starve out the besieged. Even on the first morning after the Premier's arrival it appeared that the enemy had been able on the previous night to get 54 oxen through our lines; and it was well known that there was abundance of water on the mountain. These considerations rendered the Premier favourably disposed to accede to Mooiroti's request for a personal conference. The required conditions were quickly completed. As the old chief would not come to our camp, the Premier and his suite had to go to him. Early after sunrise the party took the path in the direction of the rifle-pits. The party consisted of the Prime Minister, Colonel Prabant (in command of the forces), Colonel Bayly, of the C.M.R.; Captain Giles, of the Royal Artillery; Mr. Kilpin, private secretary, and at present (we believe) Clerk to the House of Assembly; and Mr. Kruse, who acted as interpreter. A proof of the watchfulness and hard firing on both sides was soon met with; not far from the camp the party passed a dead Kaffir and his horse, with his weapons, saddle, and bridle.

"Absolute safety, the certainty of being shot, either from the mountain or the camp, that no one of either side had dared to venture to take the coveted loot of saddle and weapons. High on the side of the mountain, and quite three hundred yards from the nearest small pickets, the six brave fellows, all unarmed, met the old chief, Mooiroti, at the head of 13 of his councillors and headmen. He was a short, thin, almost skinny native of 80 years of age. The interview took place within a few yards of the first rifle-pit, so near, in fact, that the footprints of the defenders could easily be distinguished. It lasted about an hour and a half, and resulted in nothing. Mooiroti tried hard to obtain conditions, which, if granted, would have been regarded by the natives as tantamount to a victory. This the Premier would not accede to, and Mooiroti would be satisfied with nothing less. At last the Premier said, 'Well, Mooiroti, if that is your last word, then you are good as a dead man. You see the troops below. If you do not surrender unconditionally within a few days they will take the mountain, and make an end of you and all your people.' 'If you don't care for your own life think of the lives of others,' Mr. Sprigg then instructed the interpreter to advise the councillors, in his own name, to point out to their chief the folly of further resistance. Those thirteen uncivilised Kaffirs behaved like noble savages. They remained perfectly silent, without moving a muscle. With great difficulty the interpreter at last elicited a single reply from them, 'We are Mooiroti's people,' they said. That and nothing more. Mooiroti had spoken. That was sufficient for them. In life and in death they belonged to him. The interview—differing in this respect from that of Mr. Rhodes with the Matabele—resulted in a bitter disappointment to the old chief and his faithful followers. He had Mr. Sprigg and his five companions completely in his power. A single gesture and they would have been dead men. But, nevertheless, the Colonial Premier did not yield an inch, and Mooiroti allowed the white ambassadors to return uninjured. He returned to his stronghold, and fourteen days afterwards the words of the Premier were verified, Mooiroti and his faithful followers perished, fighting to the last!

"Returning from his 'indaba,' Mr. Rhodes said, 'Such events make life worth living.' Sir Gordon could have said the same about his 'indaba' with the invincible old Kaffir, near the Orange River."

THE BASEBALL TEAM FOR AMERICA.

APPROVED BY THE LEAGUE.

REASSURING PROSPECTS.

At a meeting of the Victorian Baseball League held last night, Major Wardill in the chair, the project of sending an Australian team to America in March next was very cordially approved, and a resolution carried, in which all the officers of the league were urged to co-operate heartily with Mr. Harry Musgrove in making the tour a success. Letters were received from South Australia inquiring as to the prospects of an intercolonial match in Melbourne early in February. The South Australians were anxious to know on what grounds three players from that colony had been asked whether they would go, and expressed a hope that as Melbourne and Adelaide were the homes of the game in Australia, every effort would be made to get the best team.

Mr. W. Bruce, in reply to the inquiries by the South Australian league, said the South Australians could rest assured that there was no intercolonial feeling of any kind in the matter. Letters had been sent not to three, but to seven South Australians, and that list would have been further extended but for the fact that they were not familiar with the form of Adelaide players, whom, they understood, had dropped the game for some time past, and were taking it up again in anticipation of this tour through America. He could assure the South Australians that the best team would be picked irrespective of where they came from. The project had been first mooted on this side, and having with Mr. Laver and Mr. Ingleton, been appointed a selection committee, they had to determine first whether the leading players were willing to go if chosen. Had the intercolonial match not been mooted, they had intended to invite a number of the South Australian players to Melbourne in order to get some idea as to their form.

Mr. Harry Musgrove, who is to be manager of the team, gave some particulars as to the team, much of which has already appeared in "The Argus." He stated that letters had been received from 18 leading players announcing their willingness to go if selected, so that there would be no difficulty about players. Mr. Hart, the president of the Chicago club, had assured them that if the visiting team could make a good game with their third class nines, it would be a success. The expenses of the tour would be little more than half that of an English trip, and they could get good terms for travelling. The idea was to begin in San Francisco, and play east, taking some of the weaker clubs first, and arranging bigger matches in the second half of the season if their form justified it.

Mr. T. Smith, who has seen the game played both in America and Australia, and had taken part in it in both countries, said the Australian team would find, in most of the large towns, good ball grounds and large crowds to attend the matches. He was certain that the Australian fielding was superior to that of the ordinary amateur teams, but the Australians were deficient in batting, and did not, for the matter, get for sufficient practice with the bat. Bruce was one of the few batsmen here who attempted scientific batting. They wanted to open their shoulders more frequently, and remember that they were not using a cricket bat. He advised them to go in strongly for pitching and batting practice, and felt quite assured that, with their great strength in fielding, they would beat the third-class American teams.

Mr. J. S. Milford said he would urge the players strongly to strive to show the Americans a gentle, manly game, something that would make the people say, when they wanted an illustration of fairness, "Look at the Australians." Like the cricketers, they should not grumble if they got three varying decisions from an umpire off as many successive balls. He also suggested the advisability of getting a characteristic Australian uniform—he did not, of course, mean a possum rug.

Later on the details of the proposed match with South Australia were discussed, and it was decided to play a series of three games in Melbourne in the first week of February. Meanwhile, the local players will go into active practice for the match, as hitherto baseball has been played here only as a winter game.

Most of the local men take the view that the Americans altogether under-estimate the progress the game has made here. They feel quite sure that they will decidedly beat teams they meet, as the Americans invariably use a padded glove, which prevents one-handed fielding, in which Australians are expert. Although they have not, as Mr. Smith stated, gone in for much batting practice with the baseball club, their constant practice at cricket tends in the same way to train the eye to accuracy, and is a good substitute for the other, and they anticipate that three weeks' thorough practice at San Francisco will not only greatly improve their sliding to base, but also their batting. As for pitching, the local players think they will prove a revelation, and have been altogether under-estimated. There are in Melbourne at least four men all of whom can pitch good curve balls, and there are several first-rate catchers. Within the next few days further steps will be taken, both as to the selection of teams and the arrangement of fixtures, with a view of the games with South Australia.

LARRIKINISM AT RICHMOND.

On Christmas Eve, a man named Charles Ward, a dealer, residing at South Yarra, was on his way from Richmond, and called at Fallon's Prince Alfred Hotel, near the Church-street bridge. Here he was attacked by a dangerous gang of roughs, the members of which have terrorised the neighbourhood for several years past. Ward was knocked down by a well-known character named David Fitzgerald, and kicked by him and others of the gang. Ward, later on, obtained the assistance of Constable Withers, who arrested Fitzgerald. The latter fought like a wild beast, and hit the constable, who was then attacked by the gang, and severely handled. Yesterday, at the Richmond Court, Fitzgerald was charged with assaulting Ward, and was sentenced to pay £10, or three months' imprisonment. He was further charged with assaulting the constable, and a companion named William O'Gorman, now undergoing a sentence of 12 months' for larceny, was charged with assaulting the police. Both prisoners pleaded not guilty. Inspector Devine prosecuted, and a dozen witnesses gave evidence confirming the statement for the prosecution. The Bench, consisting of Messrs. Tatnall, Hartnell, and Fincham, J.P.'s, committed both prisoners for trial. The career of Fitzgerald has been a notorious one, there being 23 convictions recorded against him, including larceny, and a large number of acts of violence. The gang to which the prisoners belong has made the locality unsafe for respectable citizens to pass along the streets after nightfall, and a number of local residents are proposing to petition the police authorities for a constant patrol at night in the vicinity of the bridge.

AN OLD MERCANTILE MAN IN DISTRESS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ARGUS.

Sir,—Kindly permit us to bring under the notice of the merchants of Melbourne and others the following pitiable case:—An old mercantile broker, 42 years in the colony, with a wife and five children, has fallen upon evil times. Owing to failing sight and bodily strength, he is unable to follow his occupation, in consequence of which the whole family are in dire distress. His wife has been very ill, but is now recovering, and the few who are aware of the wretched condition of these really respectable, deserving people are of opinion that if a small sum could be raised to start the wife, who is an intelligent good worker, in some little business, she would be able, with the assistance of her eldest daughter, now 14 years old, to support the entire family. We write with this end in view, and desire to state that subscriptions may be sent to the undersigned, who will undertake that the amount subscribed is properly applied.—Yours, &c.,

ROBBING AN EMPLOYER.

At the Richmond Court yesterday, before Messrs. Tatnall, Hartnell, and Fincham, J.P.'s, a young man named Edward Bonney was charged with stealing a gold scarf ring, pair of gold sleeve links, and a quantity of other articles value £16, the property of William Malone, of the Corner Hotel, Swan-street, Richmond. The evidence of prosecutor showed that on the 8th August last he engaged prisoner as cook, but on the 24th August discharged him. After he had gone the articles were missed. Detectives Carter and Dungey traced accused to several places in the colony where he had been employed since August, and he was finally arrested at Latrobe, Tasmania, by Constable Keogh, who was despatched with an extradition warrant. Mr. Jones appeared for the defence, and called Detective Carter to prove that accused had worked industriously and with good repute since leaving Mr. Malone's. There was nothing previously against prisoner. All the property had been recovered except some gold studs, worth £3, which accused declared he had not taken. He had not attempted to part with any of the other property. Mr. Jones said accused was willing to pay the cost of the extradition warrant, and the £5 representing the value of the missing studs. Mr. Malone said he would be satisfied; he did not wish to be hard on accused. The Bench, taking into consideration accused's desire to make reparation, and the fact that he had been in custody since Christmas Day, sentenced him to seven days' imprisonment.

A STABBING CASE.

At the Richmond Court yesterday, before Messrs. Tatnall, Hartnell, and Fincham, J.P.'s, a foreigner named Andrew Peterson was charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm on Thomas Henry. On New Year's Eve the parties were in the Blacksmiths' Arms Hotel, Bridge-road, where Henry was drinking with some friends. Accused asked for a drink, and Henry gave him some, but called him "a cadger." Anderson then stabbed Henry in the neck with a pocket-knife. Accused, who was arrested by Senior-constable Grant, said, "I'm sorry for what I did, but I was beastly drunk, and don't remember anything about it." He was committed for trial.

SUPPRESSION OF GAMING.

ARREST AT NORTH MELBOURNE.

Patrick Corrigan, clerk, was arrested yesterday afternoon at 32 Errol-street, North Melbourne, by Detective-sergeant Gleeson, and lodged in the Russell-street watchhouse, charged with using the premises for the purpose of betting, and also with being found in a common gaming-house without lawful excuse. Accused will appear at the local court on Monday, 11th inst. Bail was allowed.

INSOLVENCY COURT.

(Before the Chief Clerk, Mr. H. W. Macleod.)

General meetings of creditors were held and closed before the chief clerk in insolvency yesterday in the estates of Ernest Arthur Hubbard, of South Melbourne, watchmaker; Emma Barber, of Carlton, hotelkeeper; Jessie Jeffery, of South Melbourne, widow.

A meeting was also held and closed in the estate of Arthur George Kent Johnston, of St Kilda, mining engineer, and Mr. Edward Little was elected trustee.

ALLEGED CARD CHEATING.

Henry Patterson, who was arrested on Tuesday night by the Port Melbourne police on a charge of cheating Charles Mackenzie, a traveller for Messrs. Macrow and Co., of the value of nearly £40 in money and jewellery to the value of nearly £50, was brought up at the local police court yesterday. The cheating was alleged to have taken place at an hotel in Port Melbourne, where Mackenzie and Patterson were playing cribbage. The accused was remanded for a week, bail being allowed in the sum of £100 and accused's own recognisance for the same amount.

AN INFANT INDUSTRY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ARGUS.

Sir,—As a farmer, I have studied with interest the leaflet lately issued by the Victorian Protectionist Association, entitled, "Protection and the Farmers," in which the commodities are enumerated the duties on which have placed the farmers in their present prosperous condition. I am, of course, conversant with the beneficial effects of the duties on bran, pollard, oatmeal, milk, butter, cider, mustard, chicory, &c., but there is one item in the list which has caused me much perplexity. Among the benefits conferred by protection on the farmers mentioned in the leaflet we read, "dholl." Now, Sir, what is "dholl?" Is it a plant or an animal? When do you sow it, or how is it bred? I can neither find it in the dictionary, nor quoted in the papers, nor dare I ask a farmer, "How is your dholl?" as the drought is causing shortness of temper. Is the "h" a printer's error, and is this a new infant industry? If so, how does the doll multiply, and should the young be weaned on sawdust, and taught, when pressed, to squeak "more protection." Has the duty been imposed to prevent our farmers being subject to a "trade invasion" of German dolls, and is the Emperor paying Mr. Max Hirsch to agitate for the abolition of the duty? Will the cobbler of Richmond or the Bourke-street hatter give the farmers the benefit of their knowledge on the subject, or, better still, the leader writer of the protectionist journal, who advised the growing of pepper and other spices, and who preached the gospel of hope:—Give up wheat, and take to worms. It would be well if they spoke at once, as the deplorable condition of the farmers in New South Wales might thus be prevented, for surely they would not wittingly leave the land blessed by a protective duty on "dholl" for one that knows it not.—Yours, &c.,

THE BLACK HORSE UNITED COMPANY, EGERTON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ARGUS.

Sir,—In reply to "Shareholder" in "The Argus" of to-day, re tailings of the Black Horse United Company, Egerton, the directors are carefully considering the whole matter, and at present a number of bores are being put down to the bottom, and fair samples for assay taken from each, so that some idea of the probable value of the reefs may be ascertained. Until this is completed, no action will be taken as to disposal, and shareholders may rest assured that the directors will do the best (in their opinion) for the company.—Yours, &c.,

THE LATE RED RAIN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ARGUS.

Sir,—Allow me through your columns to make a suggestion to persons having monuments or headstones, &c., of marble in the metropolitan and country cemeteries to have them washed down without delay.

The amount of iron contained in the late rain has had the effect of seriously staining almost every marble stone, particularly ledgers, and unless attended to will be permanently damaged.—Yours, &c.,

Fitzroy, Jan. 6.

Two men named William Elvey and Alexander M'Culloch were lodged in the North Melbourne watchhouse by Constable Foley yesterday on warrants charging them with larceny (in company, they were charged separate), on the information of Jessie Oliver, with appropriating sums of money amounting in all to £2/16/. They will appear at the local court on Monday next.

LITERARY, ARTISTIC, MUSICAL—FREE.

It is certain that no literary, artistic, musical, and entertaining public institution known as the "Block Arcade" is deservedly a favourite resort, and that it will be a great mistake to close it or curtail its business by unworkable restrictions. The fact that over 20,000 people signed a petition on the spot in 35 days, praying that Parliament would allow it to remain open as heretofore, on account of its public usefulness, shows their appreciation of it, and although, unfortunately, our population has diminished considerably, the attendance at the Block Arcade was never greater than at present. On Christmas Eve, in particular, it was simply packed with visitors right through from the Block in Bourke-street to the Block in Collins-street. With respect to the attendants, right here per day, untranscribed as to times, should sixty all, certainly in the present times of low expenses and little trade.—[Advt.]

WARRNAMBOOL.

A young man named Patrick Gorman was arrested on Wednesday night on a charge of arson. On New Year's morning his stone house, about two miles from Warrnambool, was partially destroyed by fire, which occurred under singular circumstances. It started about 11 o'clock, and was burning for several hours, Gorman being the only person about the place. During that time he removed all the furniture from the rooms, and took off the doors and windows. The police have been investigating the matter, and on Wednesday Mr. Leith, the adjustor for the Atlas Company, in which the building was insured for £100, discovered that the flooring and ceiling boards had been saturated with kerosene. Gorman was then arrested.

A PLUCKY LAD.

HORSHAM, Tuesday.

A lad named Rogers, 19 years of age, son of Mr. Nehemiah Rogers, of Kalkee, has had a very narrow escape from drowning, owing his life to another lad, two years younger than himself, who was his companion at the time. Rogers, with several other lads, was bathing in the Wimmera, when he got into a deep hole. He was unable to swim, and it became evident to his companions that he was drowning. Their cries attracted the attention of a young man named William Davies, who was in the vicinity, and he jumped into the river after the drowning lad. The boy, who had lost all presence of mind, wildly caught at his would-be rescuer, and firmly twined his arm round Davies's neck, thus dragging him down into the water with him. Davies, with great presence of mind, slipped through the drowning boy's arms, and was thus enabled to rise to the surface. At this stage Robert Matthews, 17 years of age, came to the rescue of the pair, showing very conspicuous courage. As Rogers was sinking for the last time he seized him by the back of the head, and, though by no means a strong lad, managed to pull him out of the hole and to the bank of the river, where he was received by willing hands and taken out of the water.

THE RESULT OF THE STOCK TAX.

ECHUCA, Wednesday.

The local stock inspector (Mr. G. Stokes) has just made up the returns of stock which crossed the border at Echuca. The figures are as follows for the year 1896:—Sheep, 175,102; cattle, 3,440; horses, 300; pigs, 88. These figures all show a decrease on the previous year's transactions, with the exception of horses, which increased by 152; but this is accounted for the fact that the tag was taken off. Sheep show a decrease of 98,703, cattle 4,937, and pigs 539. A large proportion of the sheep which formerly passed through alive are now killed and frozen at the Freezing Works, Deniliquin, and are exported.

MARKETING AUSTRALIAN PRODUCE.

TERANG, Wednesday.

Last night Mr. William Bateman delivered a lecture at Terang on the marketing of Australian produce. This is the first of a series that gentleman proposes giving at the different dairying centres of the Western district. The lecturer dealt exhaustively with the subject, showing the present mode of doing business and pointing out its defects, and then suggesting a remedy in the factories forming a co-operative society to do their own marketing. If this were done, there would be a saving to the Victorian producers of £100 a year in agents' commissions. The success attending the co-operative movement amongst the consumers of Great Britain and amongst the dairy produce exporters of Timaru and Christchurch was instanced to show the practical value of the co-operative principle. The substance of the lecture dealt with the present method in which the export trade is conducted, and it was shown that in order to support the middlemen engaged in the trade the producer invariably had to pay the toll. As instance was given where the proceeds of a consignment of butter reported last season £135,000 worth of butter. In this case the commission would amount to £6,750, of which, if 11 per cent. were allowed for cost of management, £5,063 was clear gain to the agent and loss to the producer. Reference was made at considerable length to the unsatisfactory present system of any check or control over a factory's butter, or over the price realised for it. The remedy for all this, Mr. Bateman believed, would be found in the co-operation of the factories, so that they would conduct their own business and dispense altogether with the services of the middlemen, as well as with the element of speculation, which did much to unsettle prices. Very little capital would be required to carry out the scheme. For instance, if the 20 factories

MINING INTELLIGENCE AND STOCK AND SHARE MARKET.

"The Argus" Office, Wednesday Evening.

The indications of a good market on the Stock Exchange noted yesterday were further emphasised to-day, buying orders being of good extent, and a good volume of business being transacted, mostly at improved prices.

The principal feature in investment stocks was a good advance in price of Commercial Bank preference shares, which changed hands at 67/. Other principal sales were:—Victorian Government 4 per cent., at £116 2/6 to £116 5/; Metropolitan Board of Works 4 per cent., at £109 10/; Commercial Bank d.d.r. (due 1896 to 1906), at 17/; London, at 17/; Bank of Victoria preference shares, at £9 4/; S.A. Brewery, at 13/; Union Trustees, at 11/6; Silverton Tramway, at 93/; B.H. Water Supply, at 12/3; Mutual Store, at 36/6; and Sydney Hydraulic, at 19/ to 19/6.

There was an active business in Broken Hill silver companies, nearly all closing at improved prices. The principal sales were:—Block 10, at 73/; B.H. Proprietary, at 48/6 to 49/6; South Broken, at 13/3; and do. (con.), at 11/6; Junction North, at 29/; North Broken, at 8/6 to 7/9 to 8/3, a large number of shares changing hands; the cause of the fall and subsequent recovery is indicated in note below.

An active market was also experienced for Tasmanian companies, and higher prices ruled in the busines done. The sales were:—Mt. Lyell, at £8 14/ to £8 16/; South Mt. Lyell, at 15/6 to 15/9; Comet, at 6/9 to 7/4; Curtin-Davis, at 10/3; North Mt. Lyell, at 24/3 to 25/; and Tasman Lyell, at 7/.

West Australian gold companies were dealt in to good extent, at full late rates generally, and at good further advances for Queen Margaret, but lower prices ruled generally towards close. The principal sales were:—Bank of England, at 57/ to 60/; Brown Hill Junction, at 10/3 to 11/3; Charles Dickens, at 10/; Fortune of War, at 3/10; Ivanhoe, at £13 to £12 15/; Lady Bountiful (paid), at 15/; Princess Margaret, at 15/; Queen Margaret, at 53/ to 54/3 to 52/6; do. South, at 14/6; do. No. 1, 5/2 to 6/ to 7/ to 6/1 Associated, at 56/6 to 58/6; and Gt. Boulder, at £8.

Only a moderate business in Victorian gold companies, the principal changes in those dealt in being higher prices for Berry Consols Extended, Great South Long Tunnel, and Spring Hill Central. Advanced prices ruled also for Rutherglen companies (especially for North Prentice), but holders too firm to permit of much business being done. Sales reported were:—Band and Albion Consols, at 12/9 to 13/; Berry Consols Extended, at 60/6 to 61/6; Black Horse, at 17/6 to 17/9; Berry West, at 78/; Spring Hill Central, at 18/6 to 19/7½; Chalk's No. 1, at 14/6; Gt. Northern Consols, at 11/; Gt. Southern No. 1, at 47/; M'Evoy, at 6/ to 6/3; Shenandoah, at 9/; Gt. South Long Tunnel, at 14 1/4; Landy's Dream, at 2/6 to 2/4; N. Long Tunnel, at 30/; and New Loch Fyne, at 77/.

Through a misunderstanding, the drive being put in by the North Broken Hill Company through the Junction North Company's ground at the 350ft. level was temporarily stopped. A wire has been sent since to Captain Phillips that, according to arrangements between the two companies, the drive must be pushed on to the boundary.

BALLARAT.

A fair average number of stocks had exchange, but the volume of business was light. Band and Albion had further decline to 12/3, and Northern Star were offered by sellers at 7/3, with the best declared buyer at 2/3 less than that figure. New Koh-i-noor steady. South Star did not maintain late full rates, and South Star Extended were easier. Sellers of Central Plateau offered at 83/ without bringing out buyers, and Plateau No. 1 eased to 20/3. Black Horse eased to 17/9, but other sellers were wide of that price. Berry Extended and Spring Hill Central commanded better prices, but receded a shade towards the close. Chalk's No. 1 had a few sales at quotations. Several Western Australian stocks were also dealt in. Quotations:—

Sixty men have been discharged from the Berry No. 1 mine, and it is intended to concentrate attention on the north drive, which will be pushed on in new country.

BENDIGO.

Business has not yet fairly commenced, though the market was busier than yesterday. New Prince of Wales opened at recent rates, and closed easier. The mine is looking very well at the railway end. Victoria Quartz were firm. The new stone in the 3,063ft. crosscut of the New Chum and Victoria has been bored into 3ft. or 4ft. further, and is not yet through. This is probably the reef that is at a depth of 3,110ft. in Mr. Lazzell's No. 180, as that stone rose going south. Garibaldi were offered at 4/9. Shamrock and Phoenix were offered in the north level, about 30ft. from the crosscut. They will wash off tomorrow, but none of this better stone has been crushed, and the return is expected to be poor. New Chum Railway were wanted at 22/6. Deibridge's had some exchange at 2/4 and 2/5. Good gold was showing to-day in the south level of the Great Extended, and the prospects are still better, as work has been commenced from the Windmill Hill end, where, it will be remembered, good gold was seen at the boundary. Central Comets, 6s. 9d. to 6s. 8d. and 6s. 9d. Virginia Tribute quitted at 2/1 and 2/3d. Specimen Hill rose to 7/9. Nice gold is being won both in the lower and in the spurs at the Shamrock end. A parcel of Hustler's Reef changed hands at 4. A small spur, 20in. thick, has been cut in the 1,350ft. crosscut, about 300ft. from the shaft. The stone, which carries gold, has been made under the slide. Daley and Weston hardened. Quotations:—

LATER.—New Chum and Victoria have cut a small crosscut in the 2,563ft. crosscut, about 120ft. in. The stone is 6in. thick on the back and 3in. at the bottom of the crosscut. This big cor responds with the small one 300ft. long cut 120ft. from the shaft, and it is apparent that there is a big reef at the level.

MARYBOROUGH, Wednesday.—Having accepted a tender for sinking a shaft to a depth of 200ft., the Talisman Company, Britannia Reef, will push ahead with operations. On Tuesday the site of the shaft, which is to be 6ft. by 4ft., was marked out. The company do not expect to open out until they have attained a depth of 200ft., and a tender for the erection of winding gear is duly to be accepted. In the earlier days thousands of tons of stone were crushed from this reef, with payable returns. The sand has since been cradled by Chinese, and is now giving a good yield, the Chinese working it by the cyanide treatment. No doubt the company will have a prosperous future. The Exchange has not yet recovered from the break caused by the holidays, business being very slight. There was inquiry for Chalk's and Trompt's stocks, but holders were not over ready to quit. The following are the Melbourne Exchange quotations:—Chalk's Freehold, b 2/8. Chalk's No. 1, b 14/9. Duke N., s 2/. Dunolly Alluvial, s 2/6. New Leviathan, s 2/. Robert Nichol, s 1/6. WALHALLA, Wednesday.—The Long Tunnel Company cleaned up for the month to-day. The yield is 1,410oz. from 1,700 tons of stone, or 16dwt. per ton. The company will hold to-night, and a dividend of £1 per share declared, after carrying £120 to the reserve fund.

INTERCOLONIAL STOCK EXCHANGES.

ADELAIDE, Wednesday.—Only small business was recorded in silver stocks to-day, and prices generally were easier. There was a very brisk demand for West Australian lines, and exchanges were considerable, but prices in the larger lines were not up to Tuesday's standard. MINING MEETINGS.

Central Curtin-Davis Extended.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Central Curtin-Davis Extended Silver-mining Company was held yesterday, at the Temple-court Hotel, Mr. P. B. M'Master being in the chair. The mining manager's report and the report of Mr. D. J. O'Keeffe on the company's property were read. The report and balance-sheet of the company were adopted. The retiring directors were unanimously re-elected.

Three Star G.M. Co.—A meeting of the shareholders of the Three Star G.M. Company No. 1 Liability, Glen Wills, was held yesterday, at the offices of the company, in Queen-street. Mr. A. T. Brown being in the chair. It was decided to wind up the company voluntarily.

CLAIM FOR WAGES.

At the District Police Court on Tuesday, before Mr. C. H. Nicolson, P.M., and Mr. H. Edwards, J.P., Emil Hansen, seaman, summoned Captain A. H. Thorpe, of the s.s. Elingamite, for £2 19s. 4d. wages due to him for work and labour done between November 5 and November 14, at the rate of £6 per month. The exact amount coming to complainant was £5 9s. 4d., and of this £2 10s. had been paid. As a set-off against the balance defendant pleaded that Hansen had deserted his ship on November 14. It was proved, however, that Hansen had been discharged from the vessel on November 14, but had signed on again the same day, and had worked until 2 p.m. The chief officer had given him permission to go on shore for two hours, but owing to a misleading clock he did not reach the Elingamite before she had sailed. He had no intention of deserting. The man's statement as to his having the chief officer's permission to go ashore was found to be correct, and the set-off against his claim was withdrawn. An order was then made for the amount due to complainant, with £1 10s. costs.

HOUSEBREAKING AT NORTH COTE.

On Tuesday afternoon the residence of Mr. H. Batten, of Barry-street, Northcote, was broken into, and a quantity of wearing apparel stolen. The house was completely ransacked, beloteads being divested of all clothes, and cupboards and chests of drawers burst open. Singular to say, anything in the way of jewellery or plate-ware, although handled by the thieves, was left behind. The next-door neighbour observed a young woman at the back of the premises during the afternoon, but as she kept up a conversation with some person inside the house her suspicions were in no way aroused. Subsequently the same person disappeared, and almost simultaneously a man was also observed passing out in another direction, carrying a huge bundle. The local police and detectives were communicated with, and are now busy making investigations.

CHAMBERS and SEYMOUR.
We are making every effort to cope with the demand for the PRIMUS STOVE,
and are landing an extremely large supply of them this week from the new German mail steamer Friedrich der Grosse.
Nearly every buyer of a "PRIMUS" recommends his or her neighbour to have one, and the mystery of the rapid demand that we experience is partially explained. But the complete explanation is in the absolute success of the
RUBY PRIMUS COOKING APPARATUS,
Of which we are the
SOLE PATENTEES and MANUFACTURERS.
With one Primus Stove, this invaluable cooking apparatus will do all the cooking for a family of ordinary size, and will cook meat in half less time than any other stove.
Messrs. B. A. Hjorth and Co., the Swedish makers of the Primus Stove, have carefully examined and tested our and expressed their absolute satisfaction with it, and their intention to proceed with its manufacture, and to continue its sale with us.
This invaluable apparatus is strongly and handsomely made, with roomy boiling space, large oven, and plate-warmer. The heat is under perfect regulation, and a dinner (joint, vegetables, and pastry) is perfectly cooked by its aid.
The expenditure of kerosene is only one quart for six hours continuous full work.
Prices of the various patterns—28s. 6d., 45s. 6d., 47s. 6d., 52s. 6d., 57s. 6d., 60s., 62s. 6d., 65s., 70s.
NEW PATENT STEAM COOKER.
DAINTY COOKING.
With the heat from a Primus Stove, this most valuable and economical apparatus will cook a joint, an entree, vegetables, pudding, and fruit simultaneously, in a manner to gratify the most exacting palate.
Prices—Three-tier, 11s.; four-tier, 16s.; six-tier, 21s.
