207 Pearl Street, near Maiden Lane.

P R E F A C E.

THE Publisher of this Price List offers his apology to the stamp collecting public for adding one more to the list of claimants for a share of the stamp trade of the United States ; but having been the second to engage in the business in America, and taking a lively interest in everything that enhances the pleasure and benefit of stamp collecting, he hopes to merit the good will and patronage of all who are engaged in this amusing and instructive recreation.

In making out this catalogue we have aimed to leave out all stamps which have not been authorized and used by the different Governments to prepay postage. Many prefer to collect Locals, Essays, Revenues and Private Company stamps, in order to increase the number of their collection, but we believe that those who regard their stamps as objects of curiosity will receive more satisfaction not to include them.

We think that too much attention is given, at present, to the collection of unused stamps. They are much more expensive, few of them can be obtained in complete sets, if not handled very carefully they do not look as well in a collection as used ones, and there is an additional interest to a stamp which has already paid the postage from some far off country, often bearing the name of the town where the letter was posted. We have seen collections made up with special reference to the post-marks, which were very curious and interesting. Where none are taken that are badly obliterated, torn, mis-stamped or cut too close, we can see but little choice between collections of used and unused specimens.

One great drawback which the stamp collector will find, at the present time, is the want of a good Album which will contain room for all the stamps, without having pages for such rubbish as the Hamburg locals, &c. Any one who will undertake to bring out a good American Stamp Album will be almost sure of success, and we will cheerfully lend our influence to bring it into the notice of collectors. We think the time will come when stamp collections will be kept in volumes ; if one was published now containing places for all the stamps issued prior to 1868, the new issues could be kept in a blank-book for three or four years, until there were new stamps enough for a second volume, and so on indefinitely.

We have attempted to be as accurate as possible in giving the color, shape, and date of issue of all the stamps to the present time. That we have made no mistakes nor left out any which should have been included is not possible, and we shall be pleased to receive from our correspondents any information which will be of use in correcting future editions, and to make a present of stamps to those who will take the trouble, in proportion to the value of the information.
