This Work is Respectfully Dedicated

Compiler and Publisher

Introduction

For several years the publisher has felt the need of a work of this kind, and the only reason it has not been issued before was the lack of the necessary information. Thanks to a generous public that information has nearly all been obtained.

I wish to mention the fact that the pages of Mr. J. K. Tiffany's "Library Companion" and more especially the private catalogue of Mr. H. B. Deats, have been largely drawn from in compiling this list. These works with the catalogue of my own library, forms nearly all the means of information.

It will be noticed that the names of the publishers are not given; the reason being, it would only tend to make the pages larger and would be of no material benefit. The date and place of publication being all that is needed to locate or classify any particular issue.

Papers that have been announced and not published are not given, as it is intended to give only the numbers of papers actually issued.

The last number of a paper that has ceased publication or changed its name is followed by a dagger †. The end of a volume when the numbers do not run continuously, is marked by a bracket]. Double numbers as far as known are inclosed in parentheses ().

A glance through the following list of papers will show better than any written description what the work is really intended for, and as to its use, its name gives that information. My plan being to check with pen or pencil the numbers I have, leaving the ones wanted unmarked. A collector can easily give the contents of his library, also his duplicates, by checking in two colors, but a list for each is preferable. For collectors it will be found invaluable as a means of exchange.

Any one noting errors or omissions will confer a favor by informing the publisher that future editions may be correct.

This image shows a single page of white paper with very faint, evenly spaced horizontal lines. The lines are light gray or blue, typical of standard notebook paper. There is no handwriting, printed text, or other markings on the page. A few small, dark specks are visible, likely due to scanning artifacts or dust on the original paper.
