GUIDE

TO THE

Colors of Postage Stamps

BY CHARLES STEWART,

Member of the American Philatelic Association.

THIS little book is intended to assist collectors in determining the exact shades and colors of postage stamps, by comparison with specimens they may have in their albums.

The compiler has been careful to select only specimens of the commoner stamps as illustrations of the different colors and shades, but he believes that every shade will be found among the types selected.

The colors have been arranged alphabetically to facilitate reference, except where the color is preceded by the terms light, dark, pale, deep, bright, etc., and these shades will be found enumerated under the respective colors.

In the case of compound colors such as bronze-green, brown-lilac, emerald-green, etc., the colors will be found under the first word—for instance, emerald-green will be found under "E" and not under "G."

At the end of the book will be found a small album provided with spaces for each of the colors and shades, so that the collector can fill them up, if he chooses, from the stamps indicated in this book.

The numbers and prices given with each specimen referred to, are those of the Standard Catalogue for 1897.

As the stamps selected as illustrations of the various colors are, with few exceptions, catalogued at not more than three cents apiece, and are to be found among almost any collector's duplicates, no trouble will be experienced in filling in the spaces at the end of the book, and a very interesting collection of shades can be readily made, which will prove of great value in determining the exact shade of any particular stamp.
