remarked upon the number of poor copies included in the display. But it would be well for visitors to remember, that condition did not receive so much attention in Mr. Tapling's time, as it does amongst the advanced collectors of to-day. One cannot but remark however, that some of the rarest specimens are most lavishly represented in fine unused condition.

It has not been attempted to index every stamp in the collection, but simply to index the chief groups and issues, and to make special mention of some of the rarest stamps which are particularly worthy of close examination. The compiler is perfectly aware that some of the stamps he has mentioned are not so rare as some he has not detailed. But he has endeavoured to pick out the stamps that are likely to appeal most to the general public visiting the collection, and if by doing so he has added to the pleasure with which young collectors and the general public may peruse the collection his weeks of work in the National Institution at Bloomsbury will not have been without their reward.

The writer wishes to record his gratitude to the officials at the British Museum for their courtesy and assistance in his work.

The Story of the Tapling Collection.

HE Tapling Collection of postage stamps and postal stationery at the British Museum is a monumental accumulation of philatelic specimens. It contains probably over 100,000 stamps with a present market value of about £100,000; it is the best collection in this country, and the third, in point of value, in the world.

As is the case with every great collection, the Tapling display is the result of splendid enthusiasm and untiring activity. It was formed by the late Mr. Thomas Keay Tapling, Conservative M.P. for the Harborough division of Leicestershire. He was born in 1855, and when fifteen was at Harrow, whence he went to Trinity Hall, Cambridge, and graduated with honours in law in 1878. In 1880 he was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple.

The death of his father, in 1882, left Mr. Tapling the charge of an important business in London, into the conduct of which he entered with zeal and commercial acumen.

Twice he contested the Harborough division of Leicestershire, failing, in 1885, by 166 votes; yet succeeding the following year in the same division by a majority of 1,138. His political career was, however, short, for his death took place within five years of his election.

As a philatelist, his story is one of striking perseverance and almost unbroken continuity. Starting when about ten years of age, he retained his interest in the pursuit while at Harrow, relaxing only temporarily during his residence at Cambridge. At Harrow he had the good fortune to receive a gift of £100, conditional on his spending and not banking it; the whole amount went on stamps, carefully and judiciously purchased, much to the improvement of his collection, which was even then assuming large proportions for a young lad.

While at Harrow, in 1871, Mr. Tapling joined the Philatelic Society, then about three years old, and under the presidency of Sir Daniel Cooper.

About this time an incident occurred which shows how easily a special rarity can be lost to a great collection. An old established firm of dealers offered Mr. Tapling, for £2, a 12d. black Canada, 1851, on wove paper. The normal variety is on laid paper—the stamp on wove paper was until then unknown, and it was with the greatest reluctance that Mr. Tapling, not being able to afford it, had to return it. He, however, referred the dealer to Sir Daniel Cooper, who bought the specimen for his own collection. (Sir Daniel Cooper's collection was sold to Herr P. von Ferrary, in 1878, for £3000.) It may be mentioned that the normal variety of the Canadian 12d. black stamp is worth nearly £100, specimens having been sold at auction for as much as £75. This rarity is represented in the collection by a pair and a single unused and one used specimen. (See case I. slide 137.)

In 1881 Mr. Tapling became Vice-President of the Philatelic Society in place of Mr. Victoriano G. Ysasi, a Spanish collector, resident in London, who had held the post Shortly before Mr. Ysasi died, his collection, since 1878. which was practically a complete one, was being sold gradually, and Mr. Tapling acquired some of its most interesting sections. Mr. Tapling retained the post of Vice-President until his death in 1891. The year following his election to this position Mr. Tapling made a splendid addition to his collection by the purchase of one formed by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Image. This collection, originally founded by Mrs. Image after receiving a gift of some triangular Cape of Good Hope stamps, was taken over and greatly added to by her husband after her death in 1872. Nearly all the principal rarities were included in it, and it included postal stationery as well as adhesive postage stamps.

The collection lacked the famous Post Office Mauritius specimens, for while Mr. Image rarely let an opportunity go of adding a new stamp to his collection, he refused an offer of the Mauritius pair at £240. The price which Mr. Tapling paid for Mr. Image's albums was £3,000, which is believed to have been a particularly advantageous deal for Mr. Tapling.

The next great acquisition of this insatiable philatelist was the fine collection of European stamps founded by Mr. W. A. S. Westoby, one of the most prolific of philatelic writers, and a philatelist of the first merit. He was editor for a time of the Philatelic Record, and also of the Monthly Circular, and was author of The Adhesive Postage Stamps of Europe, and part author of an important work on The Stamps of Great Britain.

Although Mr. Westoby was a collector from 1862, it was not until much later that he started giving special attention to the stamps of Europe. A notable feature of his collection was the uniform perfection of his specimens. Retaining only his stamps of the United Kingdom, he sold his European stamps to Mr. Tapling about the year 1884.

Although Mr. Tapling did not purchase the collection of Mr. Maitland Burnett, first editor of the Philatelic Record and honorary secretary of the Philatelic Society, he acquired the chief rarities it contained when it was sold in 1885, notably a Cape of Good Hope triangular stamp, watermarked with a crown design and the letters CC. (case 1, slide 145).

Another collection from which Mr. Tapling was able to extract the choicest specimens was a superb display of stamps of Mauritius, compiled by Major E. B. Evans, R.A., editor of Stanley Gibbons's Monthly Journal, and author of numerous philatelic works. Early Afghanistan issues, and a fine selection of the stamps of Portuguese and British India, were added to his great accumulation from the albums of Captain Weare, and some of the British Guiana rarities from the collection of Mr. E. B. Luard, of Georgetown.

One of the foremost collectors of the present day is Mr. M. P. Castle, J.P., of Brighton, who, starting in 1878, succeeded in forming a very fine general collection; after nine years, however, he decided to confine his attention to the stamps of British Australasia, and so he disposed of the other portions of his collections. Many of the finest pieces in his albums passed into Mr. Tapling's, who, during his last ten years, had the pick of nearly every fine collection that came upon the market.

The finest of his later acquisitions was undoubtedly a part of the great accumulation founded by the two brothers Georges and Martial Caillebotte, of Paris. The combination of the two brothers, enthusiastically engaged in building up one gigantic collection, was remarkably successful, and in the course of ten years (1877-1887) they had one of the most magnificent collections in existence, not only of postal adhesive stamps, but of postal and telegraphic stationery of all kinds. It was the portion comprising the adhesive stamps that Mr. Tapling purchased in 1887, M. Martial Caillebotte's marriage in that year having left his brother single-handed, and so unable to continue the great work. The price paid by Mr. Tapling for the Caillebottes' adhesives was £5,000; so fine was it, both in specimens and arrangement, that instead of extracting from it what his own album lacked, he used the Caillebotte as the foundation for a re-arranged collection, supplementing it from his own original albums.

But it must not be assumed that the Tapling collection was solely accumulated by the purchase of large and important collections; the founder of it was an assiduous hunter after individual specimens, and some of the finest portions of the collection are the result of his personal searching and knowledge. He corresponded widely in his endeavours to procure varieties he wanted in the country of their issue, and thus secured many of the very choice specimens of the early New South Wales stamps, which are now in the cases in the British Museum, and several of the older members of the Philatelic Society remember the real pleasure the late Vice-President took in displaying a new and valuable acquisition in the form of some fine block or single rarity.

The arrangement of the collection went through several changes, and after it had been mounted in the Caillebottes' albums, Mr. Tapling intended to adopt a more permanent system and one which would allow of its expansion without overcrowding any particular portion of it. A hundred handsome red morocco albums, each arranged to hold sixty detachable leaves, were purchased from Judge Philbrick, who a few years previously had sold his chief collection to Herr Von Ferrary, of Paris, for £8,000. The stamps were to be mounted each on a small card with a red margin, and then the cards were to be affixed to the leaves of the album. of the obvious advantages of this system was: that the stamps could be re-arranged at will without remounting each stamp, and so handling it over and over again. The leaves of the albums were arranged like certain book files, and could be removed and re-arranged by means of a clasp.

The order in which Mr. Tapling intended the stamps to be mounted in the album was to show first a complete issue unused; following this the shades and varieties of each value in the set were to be treated separately. The advantage of putting one complete set first, is that it forms an index to the series, and shows at a glance how many values there were in the issue under examination. An important feature of the collection as it now stands is the inclusion along with many of the stamps of reprints, official imitations and forgeries, the last being particularly valuable for reference.

Mr. Edward Denny Bacon, one of the foremost of living philatelists, was an intimate friend of Mr. Tapling, and being an eager student of his friend's vast collection, is said to have been better acquainted with it than was the owner himself. He was also fully acquainted with Mr. Tapling's desires in the matter of arrangement, and when the member for the Harborough division died in April, 1891, leaving his entire collection to the British Museum, he was the man most able and fitted to do the work of suitably arranging this monumental collection. The work was entrusted to him, and the task has taken him between seven and eight years.

Even before Mr. Bacon had completed the arrangement of the stamps, it was evident that a very great difficulty presented itself, in the matter of a convenient method for displaying the stamps to the public. It was at first proposed to place the thin cards, on which the stamps were mounted, in shallow glass top drawers; but the experiments with them did not prove very satisfactory, and led to the adoption of cases with vertical slides and glass on both sides, and each containing four cards of stamps, thus economising space—a matter of the utmost importance. In workmanship and suitability the cases are perfect. The slides draw out an ample distance to allow of a close inspection of every specimen, and cannot be detached from the case. Immediately the visitor has concluded his examination the slide is pressed back, and the stamps are preserved from the deteriorating effect of light. The three cases, so elaborate and perfect in construction, were made at a cost of about £3,600. Each holds 396 slides; thus there are 1,188 slides, containing 4,752 cards of stamps, envelopes, and postcards.

Two commissionaires are always standing close to the cases, which occupy a conspicuous position in the centre of the King's Library; but even with this precaution, it has not been deemed wise to place the chief rara aves with the bulk of the collection. Less than a score of stamps, where individual value is represented in hundreds of pounds, are kept in a safe in the inner recesses of the library. This little selection of philatelic gems, consisting of Mauritius, British Guiana, and Hawaiian stamps, forms a very choice display by itself, and may be inspected on application in the Cracherode room. The stamps are mounted in glass-covered hand cases, and are conveniently arranged for very close examination.

To venture upon an analysis of the collection itself would be out of the question. It is very nearly complete in all issues of postal adhesive stamps right up to the end of 1889. The collection is particularly complete in unused specimens, Mr. Tapling having always made a point of getting at least one such specimen of every stamp in all its varieties.

The section devoted to Great Britain is very fine, and fills 55 slides or 220 cards; it contains nearly every variety of the stamps of this country known to the most advanced specialists. In addition to the ordinary issues, there are proofs and trial impressions of the original dies and plates in divers colours, and specimens cut from the imprimatur sheets deposited at Somerset House. There are also sets of stamps which would recall college memories to many a University man, who had quite forgotten the days (dating back to the seventies and early eighties) when various colleges at Oxford and Cambridge issued stamps for use on letters carried by the college messengers. These stamps, after an existence of fourteen years, were suppressed at the instance of a new postmaster-general in 1885, as an infringement of the State monopoly.

In Mr. Tapling's collection there are, in addition to a good display of college stamps, specimens of other British local stamps. The Edinburgh and Leith Circular Delivery Company, which started in 1865, was the forerunner of several similar enterprises in London, Liverpool, Birmingham, Glasgow, Dundee and Aberdeen. Specimens of the stamps issued by all these companies, all of which were suppressed in 1867, are included in the very fine English section of the Tapling collection.

Mr. Bacon, who is more intimately acquainted with the collection as a whole than any other living philatelist, describes it as being singularly rich in the stamps of every country, and it is difficult to specify one which is more perfectly represented in it than another perfectly represented in it than another.

One feature of the collection, which has largely aided scientific philatelists in their researches, is the splendid series of re-constructed sheets of certain stamps, which, owing to the process employed in their production, are not all exactly alike on the sheet. The re-constructed or re-arranged sheets show the positions which stamps, slightly differing in type, occupied on the sheet as originally sent out by the post office.

A few of the chief gems of the vast accumulation may well be enumerated. In the Mauritius section there are two varieties which are deemed too valuable to leave in the cases. The first of these is the One Penny red stamp of 1847, bearing the words Post Office on the left hand side. specimen, which is in perfect condition, used on the entire original envelope, should be worth between £800 and £1,000, and was the chief gem in Major Evans's fine lot of Mauritius stamps. A similar stamp, after having accupied a corner in the Earl of Kintore's album, was recently acquired by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales for £850; the companion stamp—the 2d. blue "Post Office" Mauritius, is also represented by a superb copy (in this case unused) at the British Museum Tabling procured in exchange from Herr Ferrary, whose albums contain four specimens of these two stamps. It may be mentioned that the British Museum specimen is only slightly inferior to the one the Prince of Wales purchased at auction in January, 1904, for £1,450--there are fuller margins round the Prince's stamp. In all the other early issues of Mauritius, the Tapling collection unquestionably comprises a superb display.

Foremost among the Hawaiian specimens is the two cents, of the first issue. This appeared in 1851, and within two days of its issue the General Post Office at Honolulu was burnt down, and with it was destroyed the stock of these stamps. Only a dozen copies are known to remain, and in 1889 a specimen was sold for £740. It is a very unpretentious looking type-set label, to which perhaps none but the trained stamp collector would give a second thought if it were encountered outside the precincts of the stamp album. A small reproduction is given here of the first page of the Hawaiian portion of the collection, including the specimens of the rare two cents. This serves not only to give a general idea of the arrangement, but also to show one of the most valuable pages in the whole collection, representing not less than £2,000. The two stamps at the top have, however, been removed, and are kept with the other great rarities. The page without the 2 cents, specimens is to be seen in slide 398.

Another stamp of the greatest rarity is the 2 cents. British Guiana, 1851. This consists of an ill-formed circle enclosing the type inscription "British Guiana, 2 cents," printed in black upon rose-coloured paper. So crude were these labels that, as a prevention against imitation, the postmaster initialled every specimen that was sent out. An unused pair of these stamps has fetched as much as £1,000. The 4 cents British Guiana, 1856, is also represented, its value being close upon £100. Both of these are in the Tapling safe in the Cracherode Room.

Another remarkable stamp in the collection is the 81 paras Moldavia, 1858, which is worth a very large sum—a specimen was sold at auction for £320, but copies have been sold since for considerably less amounts. Of this gem there are no fewer than four copies, two unused, two used. One of the latter is on a piece of the original cover. These are to be found, along with other valuable stamps of the same issue in slides 744 and 745.

The collection is very rich in triangular Cape of Good Hope stamps, which are particularly popular with all classes of collectors; a 1d. so-called "Woodblock" specimen is illustrated here (slide 144).

The 12d. black Canada, 1851 (slide 137), is of great rarity, and usually fetches from £70 upwards when offered at auction; the Tuscany 3 lire of 1860 (slides 1009, 1010), is of about equal value; so also is the stamp issued by the postmaster of Brattleboro', in the United States, in 1846, some months before the Governmental issues appeared

(slide 1011)

The two Réunion stamps illustrated, the 15 centimes and 30 centimes, worth £50 and £60 respectively, are represented by ten copies in slide 738; Nova Scotia's 1s. violet of 1851 (slide 646), the famous Swiss "Double Geneva" of 1843 (slide 937), the Zurich 4 Rappen, also of 1843 (slide 936), and the Connell stamp, bearing a portrait of Postmaster-General Connell (slide 585), of New Brunswick, are worth approximately £20 apiece.

The collection also contains a very fine series of telegraph stamps and embossed envelopes, newspaper wrappers, and post-cards. Of particular interest are the Sardinian letter sheets of 1818 and 1820 (slide 1121), two decades earlier than the introduction of the adhesive postage stamps in 1840; these are sheets of paper impressed with a circular stamp enclosing a design of a mounted post-boy blowing his horn.

New South Wales was before the "Mulready" envelope of 1840, with its "Sydney letter sheet," which is also shown in the collection (slide 1125). This appeared in 1838, and the sheets were sold in packets of a dozen for 1s. 3d., and did postal duty locally in Sydney.

The "Mulready" envelopes and letter sheets are well represented (slides 1116, 1117), and an interesting, though not very rare specimen, is the "balloon post" (slide 1114) letter sheet, on which messages from the Parisians were carried by balloon during the siege of Paris; fifty-four balloons leaving Paris between September 19th, 1870, and January 28th, 1871, carried nearly two and a half million messages.

Only a small portion of the collection of post cards, envelopes, and other postal stationery can be seen in the slides, but the cupboards which are provided in the base of each of the cases contain a collection sufficient to fill another entire case of slides. It is to be hoped that this section may before long be available for public inspection in all its completeness.

These are but a few of the points of interest in this It is to be regretted that the trustees of the British Museum cannot continue the collection in the interests of philately and of postal history, to say nothing of the other utilitarian value which such an encyclopædia of engravings must prove to artists, designers, printers and colourists. The collection, so far as it goes, is practically complete, but it stops at 1890. It had been Mr. Tapling's intention not to include stamps issued in 1890 and later, thus closing his collection with the issues of the year 1889; but now that the collection occupies a distinguished position in the British Museum, and is available for reference to all, its value would be vastly increased by bringing it up to date. Want of space, probably, more than anything else, is responsible for the reluctance of the trustees to add to the collection, for philatelists themselves would be ready to provide permanently complete collection, the expenses of which would not be great, as the specimens could, in the case of the Colonial stamps, be supplied from the Crown Agents, and, in the case of foreign stamps, from the headquarters of the Postal Union at Berne.

As the collection stands, however, it is a monument to the perseverance and magnanimity of Mr. T. K. Tapling, whose splendid bequest has made his the first name among philatelists, and stamp collectors are indebted more than they can well appreciate to the skill and ability with which Mr. E. D. Bacon has prepared the stamps for their edification and pleasure.

THE GREAT RARITIES IN THE CRACHERODE

ROOM.

A few stamps of extreme rarity, which it has been deemed wiser to keep in a special safe instead of leaving them exposed in the cases, are detached from the main body of the collection. These may be seen on application in the Cracherode room, and the following is a list of these interesting items :

DOCUMENT. Mr. J. Barnard's original estimate for engraving the two "Post Office" Mauritius stamps, and for the supply of other articles.

The Cistafile

SUPERSEDES ALBUMS FOR

IT INSURES-

PERFECT CLASSIFICATION.

ABSOLUTE PERMANENCY.

A few of the Chief Points of The Cistafile are the following:—

- It is practically everlasting, is never obsolete, is continuous, inexpensive, always up-to-date, portable, compact, secure, and almost unbreakable.
- It does away with all blank spaces, and, at the same time, will always exactly fit your collection. It holds equally well the smallest as well as the largest Collections.

When once mounted Stamps need never be removed.

Re-arrangement to any New Order desired can be carried out in the course of a few minutes without unmounting a single Stamp.

The Cistafile is adopted in place of Albums by Collectors throughout the world, and is admitted to be the safest, cheapest, most artistic and correct means for holding Collections.

TESTIMONIALS FROM USERS.

MR. EDWARD J. NANKIVELL,

Editor of "Gibbons' Stamp Weekly," Author of "Stamp Collecting as a Pastime," "The Stamps of the Transvaal," "Popular Guides to Stamp Collecting," etc., etc., writes:

"For the convenient arrangement and careful preservation of Stamps I find The Cistafile the hest system yet devised."

MR. FRED J. MELVILLE,

President of the Junior Philatelic Society, Author of "A.B.C. of Stamp Collecting," "The Postage Stamps of Great Britain," etc., etc., writes:

"After a careful examination of The Cistafile, I am satisfied that it is in many ways an improvement on the stamp album."

MR. PERCY C. BISHOP,

Editor of "The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly," writes:

"I am now mounting my stamps in The Cistafile with which I am greatly pleased."

THE EDITOR OF "THE STAMP COLLECTOR" writes:

"As I use a Cistafile myself, I can endorse the many points put forward in its favour."

THE EDITOR OF "MORRIES" wells :

"The Cistafile system is simplicity itself."

THE EDITOR OF "POOLE'S MONTHLY PHILATELIST" writes:

"We have given The Cistafile a practical test, and are so pleased with the result that we can strongly recommend the invention to all our readers."

THE EDITOR OF "MEKEEL'S STAMP COLLECTOR" writes:

"The Editor is mounting two of his specialized collections in Cistafiles Nos. 2 and 3, and has nothing but praise for them."
