Post Circular No 7. Sunday, 11 May 1838.

Note our Readers are aware Mr Hill suggests as a convenient means of effecting payment in advance - issue of stamps pressed in sheets like a an envelope in a very small piece of paper with a solution of glue at their back, many be fastened to any sheets of paper whatever.

Mr. Hill says he owes his color to Mr Charles Wright - Mr Lewis says (1829) that a Mr. Stead made a similar sug<sup>g</sup>: many years ago. We know not to whom the invention is due but the invention of Mr. Chas. Wright of Beaufort N.C. in 1830 to receive the first to adopt the paper & did not pass unrecorded.
Mr. Wright argued that if the gov<sup>t</sup>: could carry double sheet of the Atlas weighing 49 lbs. it might carry  $\frac{1}{2}$  of 100 of printed m<sup>o</sup>: for 2<sup>d</sup>. to make a large profitable journal (that I ampted several as he called 'Go Free' could be published for 2<sup>d</sup>. Mr. W's plan was printed & freely circulated. but the the Chanc<sup>y</sup> of the S<sup>t</sup>: refused this opp<sup>t</sup>: of creating a popular source of revenue.

Now according to my invention I make a raised pattern on it & I find that the soft pulp enters the depression of the roller so as to make a thicker paper at the parts corresponding with the depression while paper left uniform in thickness elsewhere.

uses a fine wire gauge for his dandy pattern and sieve then supports it by shorter gauge underneath. Roller is of wood as usual with 2 rolls. 2

An imp<sup>d</sup> method of obly a watermark on paper the apparatus employed there

In order to obtain a watermark on paper in the process of manufacture in the paper machine it is customary to use an iron roller, called a Dandy roll, on which pieces of wire or metal are sewn to form the pattern desired.

The paper pulp which still carries water as it is carried forward by the machine passes under this roller & the raised pieces of metal upon the roller where they come in contact with the pulp displace it & produce a thin place at each point of contact.

As soon as the pulp leaves the dandy roll the water is drawn out of it by suction & the pattern is thus set.

Improves in the manner of Encl.

Inventive consists first of means of applying gum or adhesive cement to the flaps of Encl. during the process of folding, so as to cause the flaps of each Encl. to adhere together according to the order in succession in which they are folded & 2nd of means of subjecting Encl. (after flaps have been gummed) to pressure between surfaces, so as more certain to ensure the holding of the Encl.

3rd For causing the "seal flaps" to be coated with gum or cement & then being melted <sup>to</sup> the drying apparatus, such Encl. paper being fed into the machine by hand. . . a way by the act of the machine to be transmitted from a pile of paper to the gumming process. Whether desired paper can be substituted with a device before gum applied fold at the sides which have gone away & the paper being held by the folders allows the other 2 sides to go away also & operation repeated in reverse

Thus the 6 flaps are folded over one after another in same way as if done by hand, & so arranged as one flap is slightly sooner folded than the other

Drawing D shows an array<sup>6</sup> paper for Envs. from paper which had not been first cut into angular shapes, as was described in A. where the further cutting consisted simply of, welds.

There are various machines have been before made & used for cutting envelopes, having hollow cutters of the shape of the intended paper for Envs. -

Therefore we only seek to improve the machine.

We cut out the notches in the web, as will be seen by fig 2. - a frame of paper cut into proper shape, exhibiting three legs, to be angled cut therefrom as indicated by red lines.
Machinery is arranged to cut them in their first descent, cut 2 of the notches at same time. Then the table on which the paper is held is revolved 60 degrees half round in order that the next descent of the cutters may cause the 2 notches to be made in the paper. - made so as to cut a true parallelogram of the desired size when folded adjacent descant &c of "chassis" spells "chissals" so they may not be drawn in a frame cut by the paper, thereby cutting the top & bottom cut. of diff. sizes & the adjustment varied accy to the nature of the paper when being operated upon.

Table is held on table by adjustable screws. Table turns on axis

Notches of diff. sizes can be cut by diff. sized cut.

Machine is arranged for putting it out of motion in case the 2nd cut has been made. to allow the attendant to run

To improve in machinery for cutting or shaping paper for the making of ends 2<sup>d</sup> In any machine for folding over the flaps of ends.

These flaps have generally been folded by hand, without preparation by machine: but in some cases the paper having been cut or shaped them, has been creased by machine so as to aid the person when folding, but in all cases the folding over of the flaps of ends has been done by hand. Now see fig 1 & the 2<sup>d</sup> part of an invention is that the flaps shall be folded by the work of machinery.

PHILADELPHIC
DIARY

James G. Thompson

TO PHILATELISTS ALL THE WORLD OVER.

---

I

N an age of "New Departures" —Philatelic and otherwise—we venture to add yet another, by producing for the first time a Diary and Pocket Book for the use of those engaged (whether as amateurs or professionals) in the popular cult of Philately. So many thousands find the daily need of a pocket diary, that no apology is necessary for the present publication.

In the inside of the front of the cover will be found three pockets for carrying stamps, and on the inside at the back the indispensable perforation gauge in a pocket.

Where the first issue of postage stamps in any country can be fixed to a particular day, the name of the country, followed by the year of issue, will be found in the diary under the day in question.

At the end of the diary we have given a variety of statistics and other information of use to collectors

We shall be glad to receive any hints which may suggest themselves to those who make use of this diary, for its improvement.

A few things worth remembering.

Never cut or trim stamps.

Never remove original gum.

Never divide blocks or pairs of rare unused stamps.

Never remove from their original covers or envelopes the rouletted stamps of New Zealand, Western Australia, Cape of Good Hope, Great Britain (archer roulettes), &c., or the divided stamp of British North America, and a few other countries.

Never fasten stamps in books with gum or paste, use mounts bent to form hinges.

Never mark specimens on the back with ink, as it may show through the paper, and cannot be removed without injuring the stamp.

Handle unsued stamps as little as possible—use tongs.

Most line-engraved and many surface-printed stamps may be cleansed with hot water. The present stamps of Great Britain and many of the Colonies are printed in fugitive inks, which run if liquid is applied.

Be wary of specimens which are rare imperforate, and could have been carved out of common perforated specimens, as in New South Wales and Victoria.

Be wary of specimens in unusual colours, which may be either proofs or have been changed chemically.

Perforation is measured by the number of holes or cuts in a length of 2 centimetres.

In describing compound perforations, the horizontal is taken before the vertical, thus:— “perf. 14 X 12½,” means that the stamp is perforated 14 horizontally and 12½ vertically.

In describing the size of a surcharge, the horizontal length is taken first, the vertical last.

In measuring envelopes, wrappers, &c., the largest side is usually taken first, but it is advisable, when describing the dimensions of envelopes, to take that side as the top (and horizontal) which forms the hinge for the flap at the back, but the top side of a registered envelope (or postcard) is regulated by the instructions on the address-side.

1 centimetre = 10 millimetres (mm.) = 3,937,079 inches.

THE PHILATELIC ALBUM

For Advanced Collectors. 4th Edition.

100 leaves of White Card Paper, printed on one side only, with marginal border and a faint network of quadrille lines; double linen hinges; the leaves retained in the covers by an original and newly-patented plan, dispensing with screws and nuts on the outside. Specially designed handsome title-page.

- A. Strongly bound in half morocco, gilt ornaments and lettering. Packed in a box. Price 30/-, carriage extra.
- B. Handsomely bound in full Persian morocco, bevelled boards, gilt edges, double-action expanding lock and key. Packed in a box. Price 50/-, carriage extra.
- C. Handsomely bound in full Russian leather, rounded corners, gilt edges, lock and key as in B, leaves with raised margins of tinted cardboard, pages covered with faint quadrille. Leaves can be used in unison with A and B. Packed in a box. Price 100/-; Parcel post free, 102/6.
- D. This is an Album of the same style as C, but of a smaller size, being specially suited to those Philatelists who are in the habit of taking a portion of their collections to meetings of the societies. The sunk portion of the leaf measures  $8\frac{1}{2} \times 6$  in., and the raised border is about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  in. all round. Each book contains 30 leaves with gilt edges, and is handsomely bound in half marone morocco, with cloth case. Price 50/-, carriage extra.

Spare Leaves for A and B, 1/9 per dozen, with gilt edges 2/3 per dozen, post free; abroad extra. Sample leaf, 2½d. post free.
