To the Trade Generally.

FOR the fourth time I publish an entirely new and revised edition of my work—THE STAMP DEALERS' DIRECTORY OF THE UNITED KINGDOM—and I am glad to find that my labours to make it as up to date as possible have been so heartily appreciated by my brother dealers.

All the previous editions have met with a very ready sale, not only in this country, but all over the world, and the present edition bids fair to have a larger sale than any of its predecessors, if the large number of prepaid orders is any criterion.

The trade would scarcely credit the numerous alterations comprised in the present edition: but although it has been my best endeavour to make the work as perfect as possible, I know that there must be of necessity many omissions: and further, although I have used the utmost care, it must be distinctly understood that I do not guarantee all addresses as those of responsible firms. Dealers will doubtless note the large number of new names and addresses which have been added to this edition.

In conclusion I must thank all those who have so cordially supported me with their advertisements and willing assistance, and take pleasure in announcing that the demand for this work has induced me to announce its publication in future ANNUALLY, due notice of which will be given in the philatelic press.
