These columns are free to all, whether subscribers or not, and we will gladly publish any letters that will be of general interest to our readers, provided they are not too long and contain nothing objectionable.

In writing to us for publication, try and be particular to form every letter so there can be no mistake. Remember compositors are always in a hurry and if writing is not quite plain are apt to guess at it and sometimes make queer mistakes which alter the sense of the whole letter.

Write with ink and on one side of paper only and make your letters as interesting as you please. Address, Krums, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

Published monthly and furnished to subscribers at 50 cents a year, postage paid, by

KRUMBS, Pub. Co.,
Aarwood, Kalkaska, Mich.

This paper, though the official organ of the Order of Emorians, is open to all people for subscription or advertisements, and while no Emorian is under any obligation whatever to subscribe for it or use its advertising columns, we shall be pleased to have them do so and believe they will be benefited in many ways by so doing.

Virtue.
Slave to no sect, who takes no private road,
But looks through Nature up to Nature's God:
Pursues that chain which links th' immense design,
Joins heaven and earth, and mortal and divine;
Sees, that no being any bliss can know,
But touches some above, and some below;
Learns, from this union of the rising whole,
The first, last purpose of the human soul:
And knows where Faith, Law, Morals, all began,
All end in love of God, and Love of Man.

—Pope's Essay on Man.

MR. PRESIDENT:—I consider the Emorian Order one of the grandest of the present day. The members of the order at Deep Spring, receive much mail, and samples and kind letters from all parts of the United States. This orders beats all the so-called agents directories, and is worth many dollars a year to any one. Words of the pen cannot give the order justice. I admire the Emorian badges, they are so handsome.—35

Our Order has more than doubled their membership since the last printed list was sent out, and is increasing at a wonderful rate. Let each member help to increase them still more by inducing persons they know, who they think will be good members, to join. There will probably be many advantages in the future which time will develop.—Herald

PUB. OF KRUMBS:—I notice in your supplement attached to KRUMBS that you will after Jan. 1st. appear as the official organ of the Emorians. That tickles me. We need an organ and I want to help grind it. Now then, hurrah for a big boom for our beloved order and may the good Father of us all hasten the time when the whole human race shall be proud to belong to it and throw aside all creeds to become one united brotherhood. Enclosed is my fifty cents for a year's journey with your organ, and I add also fifty cents for ————my friend, who I know ought to have it. May your organ grind many years and pour forth much music for the thirsty souls of the Emorian Order. Fraternally,

AN EMORIAN.

Thanks Brother, may the spirit move many more of our order to follow your example.—Ed.

Emorians by accepting membership in the order, on the understanding of no dues but fraternal kindness to one another, thereby in a sence place themselves upon a pledge of honor to do those little ordinary kindnesses which any friend or brother asks in reason of each other. If we see a brother Emorian doing what we know will be injurious to him it is a duty to warn them, not to shun and condemn. If we see one of our order about to be taken advantage of by others, we should warn them. In business matters, where other things are equal we should give the preference to a member. And by kindly recognition and encouragement to one another in the many little transactions of life show ourselves true members of the order.—Brothers and sisters am I right? —An Emorian.

If all Emorians would use paper or envelopes, with the Emorian heading printed upon it, or would make the emblem of the order, a letter E in a square with a pen or pencil with their signature, they would oftentimes receive more courteous and prompt attention, especially if writing to a member, and as every member has list of names of members it is not easy for persons not members to deceive one who is, even if they should try. Any Emorian can procure the printed stationary very cheap of either the vice-President or Sec'y of the order.—Herald.

Let the Emorians write letters giving their views of Emorianism, for the benefit of each other and the public, or ask questions concerning the order for answer in our next. But if you want questions answered by mail always enclose the 2 cent stamp for reply.—Herald.

New Years Greeting From the President.

DEAR BROTHER AND SISTER EMOR-IANS:—It gives me extreme pleasure to communicate with you in this initial number (of the year 1893) of KRUMBS.
 I am pleased to acknowledge it as our paper and as the official organ of our order. I am also much gratified to acknowledge brother Allan P. Little as Herald or Official Editor and Publisher for the order, also treasurer, I earnestly entreat each member to do his or her part towards helping the order, by sending the publishers 50 cents for a year's subscription to our paper, KRUMBS.
 We advise all new members also to send 50 cents to our treasurer for a subscription to KRUMBS. I am much pleased at the extraordinary rapid growth of the order. I hope and believe that time will give a magnitude and magnificence to this society which will make each member proud to belong to it, and by the co-operation and assistance of each member they will be doing themselves and each other a great help. Let each member try and advertise this society and explain its objects, etc., to persons who are not members and make us many new members as possible.

Yours fraternally,
 ORVILLE L. LEACH, Pres.

"Monthly Visitor," a large 8 page, 48 column family paper. The publisher has been a cripple since August of 1851 and a shut in since May of 1864, and has no hope of ever being anything but a helpless, hopeless cripple, and will be pleased to receive subscriptions at 50 cents a year. KRUMBS and the Monthly Visitor for only sixty cents a year.

Panama shells from Gulf of Mexico, very fine, 25 cents each. J. H. Frier, Alafia, Fla.

Medical and law students, master mechanics, book-keepers, type writers, housekeepers etc., etc., will find our paper the best medium to reach all sections of the country.

As we circulate our paper among all classes of people, it is one of the best mediums for exchange, especially for those who desire to change locations.

It is not always that a person wishing to sell his business, or procure a partner, or sell his home, wishes it known; not because there is anything wrong in so doing, but from a natural dislike to having busybodies enquiring too freely into their business.
 Therefore, no names will be given by us under any circumstances, unless so directed by the owner.

Any correspondence can be carried on as long as the parties wish to do so, by enclosing letter with the number where the stamp will cover it, on the upper right hand corner and enclosing ten cents to us. When you wish to write direct, send your address to your correspondent, when if they desire to do so, they can send theirs, or continue to forward through this office. Address will be published when desired.

You will confer a favor on us and our advertisers if you will when answering advertisements say you saw their advertisement in KRUMBS.

A ARWOOD, MICH., JAN. 1893.

Join The Emorians!

Reader would you like to join the SOCIETY OF THE EMORIANS. It will cost you nothing.

In union there is strength and success. The Society of the Emorians is a fraternal organization, to assist in consummating the great and imperative objects of humanity.

Members are bound together more firmly than are the ordinary public—they are to take especial pains to accommodate each other—to correspond with and exhibit such actions of fraternal obligations as will make each person perceive the benefits from their admission to this Society. Members are located in all parts of the U. S., and Canada, and their peculiar respect and attention to each other is a means of facilitating various beneficial results—each should impart any information which another may desire, which pertains to their own section, etc., or which may lend to assist one or more of the members.

There are no obnoxious preliminaries to admission to this Society nor any tedious appendages after you are a member. There are no dues nor extortions. If you wish to become a member, simply send a letter to the Treasurer, stating your desire to become a member and having your own signature or mark signed to it, and your name will be enrolled on the books and you will continue to be a member until you make a personal request to have your name erased.

There is no creed to vex your memory—no superfluous by-laws to study. The objects of the Society are briefly and tersely expressed by "FRATERNAL KINDNESS"

There are no exceptions made to nationality, color or religion, and there is nothing pertaining to this Society to conflict with any principle or obligation.

From the fact that all these people are contained in the world and are necessarily members of one great order, it is inferred or inducted that they must be of use to one another and the Society of the Emorians copies after this great law.

A sound body is the great necessity for happiness and moral calmness and improvement, thus EMERYPATHY is the medical hobby of the Society and it is expected that members will advocate and dispense as much as possible the best restorer of health, viz., THE EMORIAN POWDER.

There are no expulsions or excommunications from this Society. While a person lives there is hope for reformation and this can better be enacted by fraternal assistance than otherwise.

Send your name and address and keep us informed of any changes in your address, and you will be in continual receipt of many advantages offered to the EMORIANS.

THE EMORIAN POWDER.

ALL EMORIANS are agents for THE EMORIAN POWDER. It is the most wonderful medicine on earth! You simply mix one fourth of a teaspoonful in a little cold water, when it is transformed into a pleasant nectar and elixir of life, curing Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Malaria, Scrofula or any Humor. Rheumatism, Headache, Constipation, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Blisters, Pimples, etc.

This remedy contains no alcohol or other poison and has none of the repulsive pills. It is nothing but Roots and Herbs. Try it.

It counteracts the abuses of the body from perverting Nature; it pleasantly and quietly drives the cause of all disease from the body; parasites and disease germs cannot live where it is used. It gives a good complexion, embonpoint and beauty; it rebuilds the wasted nerves and tissues by causing the stomach to furnish nutrition; instead of racking and tormenting the stomach and bowels, it instantly gives a pleasant and cheering lift to Nature. Numerous testimonials prove it to be the panacea for all diseases.

WE WILL MAIL a neat tin box full to any address in the U. S. postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cts. You can get it of any Emorian, or at wholesale of the President or Treasurer of the Emorian Order.

Electric Lights in Coal-Mines.

A curious test is being made in the coal-mines of Cardiff. It is proposed to light the mines by electricity, but apprehension exists that the gases in the mines may be ignited and an explosion caused should one of the little glass globes about the light be broken. When the globe of an incandescent light is broken the light is at once extinguished—to the eye it seems to expire instantaneously—and the point to be determined is whether or not the thing is so quick that gases may be ignited as they rush into the vacuum.

CORRESPONDENCE.

There are many men doing business on small capital who could do better with a partner. Many overworked doctors and lawyers who want assistants, many colleges and schools requiring teachers, many men and women who would like life partners, and many who wish introduction or correspondence for numerous other reasons. All are sure to find some one wishing to correspond for all such purposes, by advertising in these columns. All persons of good moral character, who will furnish reference when required are invited to insert an advertisement.

We have lady and gentlemen advertisers of many nationalities and of all ages, who are looking for congenial correspondents.

No matter what the object, or how particular you are, we feel sure you will eventually find the one you wish, through this means.

Remember, you can judge far better of a person's character and disposition by a short correspondence than by a long personal acquaintance, as in letter writing there is not that bashfulness or backwardness of expressing themselves that we often see in an ordinary acquaintance; but a person writing to another will generally write out unconsciously their true character, both in their hand-writing and their mode of expression.

We are careful to avoid any stationery calculated to attract attention. Write us for particulars. Address, Box 1, Arwood, Kalamazoo Co., Mich.

A Wood-Destroying Insect.

For the last year a manufactory at Springfield, O., has been seriously endangered by the burrowing of a small insect into the woodwork, the floors, joists, frames, and posts. All the woodwork is full of holes, and the supporting posts rendered thereby very weak. The matter has grown so serious that a member of the company obtained a number of the insects and sent them to the state entomologist to be named, and to ascertain whether there is any way of getting rid of them. Unless this can be done soon the entire woodwork of the manufactory will have to be torn down and replaced by new material.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Should you wish to insert a numbered adv., always send your name and address on a separate slip, so we can forward all answers.

Rules for answering numbered advertisements or those addressed in our care.—First, look over the advertisements and answer such as you wish, placing each in an envelope. If in answer to a numbered advertisement or one directed in our care, put in small envelope and put the No. where stamp will be, on the upper right-hand corner. If in our care, direct it to the name but leave the address space for us to fill. Then enclose all in a larger envelope directed to us, with a short note giving any special directions, and be sure to send 10 cents for each letter you send to numbered advertisements, except real estate, etc., where the words "stamp only" occur; for each of these send two cents, also for those in our care, two cents. If you comply with these rules your letters will be promptly forwarded to the proper person; if you do not, they will be consigned to the waste basket.

SEVEN WONDERS OF COREA.

All Products of Nature Except a Drop of Buddha's Sweat.

Corea, like the world of the ancient, has its "seven wonders," says the St. Louis Republic. Briefly stated they are as follows:

1. A hot mineral spring near Kin-Shantao, the healing properties of which are believed to be miraculous. No matter what disease may afflict the patient, a dip in the water proves efficacious.

2. Two springs situated at considerable distance from each other; in fact, they have the breadth of the entire peninsula between them. They have two peculiarities. When one is full the other is always empty; and, notwithstanding the obvious fact that they are connected by a subterranean passage, one is of the bitterest bitter, and the other pure and sweet.

3. The third wonder is Cold Wind cave, a cavern from which a wintry wind perpetually blows. The force of the wind from the cave is such that a strong man can not stand before it.

4. A forest that can not be eradicated. No matter what injury is done to roots of the trees, which are large pines, they will sprout up again directly—like the Phoenix from her ashes.

5. The fifth is the most wonderful of the seven national curiosities of the peninsula. It is the famous "floating stone." It stands, or seems to stand, in front of the palace erected in its honor. It is an irregular cube of great bulk. It appears to be resting on the ground, free from supports on all sides, but, strange to say, two men at opposite ends of a rope may pass it under the stone without encountering any obstacle whatever!

6. The sixth wonder is the "hot stone," which from remote ages has lain in glowing white heat on top of a high hill.

The seventh and last Corean wonder is a drop of sweat of Buddha. For thirty paces around the large temple in which it is enshrined not a blade of grass will grow. There are no trees or flowers inside the sacred square. Even the animals decline to profane a spot so holy.

A Chronic Growler.

Wife—"This is a pretty time of night for you to come home. At first you came home at 2, then at 3, and now you stay out until 4."

Husband—"Just you keep quiet. When I came in at 2 you growled; when I came home at 3 you growled more, and now you growl more than ever when I come home at 4. I am coming home after this at 5 just to see if you don't growl, then, too."

Letting a Man Alone.

That a husband is at times silent and preoccupied does not argue that he is indifferent to his wife, writes Mrs. Phineas T. Barnum in The Ladies' Home Journal; he may be depressed, and yet not feel that marriage for him is a failure; he may be captious and fret, yet feel no irritation against his wife. I am not absolving men from the obligation to be agreeable to their woman-kind, nor extenuating their frequent infractions of the code of marital amenities; I am only assuring you, for your own good, that these things are often the outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual disaccordance which you have not caused, and about which you would be unwise to grieve. Learn to wait, and by-and-by you will find that business went wrong that day; or he sat in a draft, and all his bones ached with an incipient cold; or he had eaten an indigestible meal (not at home of course,) and was depressed he knew not why. Wait! wait! and when you have found out what the matter was, you will be thankful you did not weary him with foolish questions.

Gulls on a Garbage Scow.

The garbage scow in the Seattle harbor attracts vast multitudes of sea gulls. Whenever the boat is towed out from 1,500 to 2,000 follow it to its destination, and the men employed on it claim that they scarcely have room to work, as the gulls cluster around them in swarms, all fighting one another to get on the scow and select their food.

UNPARALLELED HISTORY.

How the American People Pay Off Their Debts.

A statement of the debt extinguishment of our country since the war never ceases to be impressive. It reflects not only the growth, but the patriotism and prosperity of our people as no other statistical exhibit does. The mere fact is startling that twenty-five years ago, less than a generation, the public debt was $2,756,000,000, entailing an annual interest charge of $151,000,000, and it is now only $921,000,000, and the interest charge is but $29,500,000.

The face of the debt has decreased to one-third its maximum size, while the interest charge has decreased to one-fifth its highest amount, owing to refunding at the constantly declining rates of interest.

In the past ten years a large proportion of the debt has been extinguished. At the time of the 1880 census the public debt was $1,000,000,000, and the interest charge was $79,500,000, so that in a decade the debt has been reduced $998,000,000, or say $1,000,000,000.

It will thus be seen that if the country remains prosperous and continues to be well governed it will be entirely possible to extinguish the entire remaining public debt in the next ten years, so that the people of the United States could, if they chose, enter upon the twentieth century with a net surplus in the Treasury. It has been the historic fiscal policy of our country to pay off its debt; we presume it will continue to be.

The present census will show 65,000,000 people in the United States, in all probability, and this will figure a debt at the present time of only $14 per inhabitant, which is small, while the interest charge of $29,417,603 entails a tax of less than 50 cents per year per inhabitant.

Our readers will see from this how slight a burden the national debt is in comparison with the real taxation of people, which is local taxation, ranging all the way from $9 to $19 per 1,000. The problems which confront this generation of Americans are not those of poverty, certainly—Boston Daily Advertiser.

A colored man made a reputation as a steppochaser on the farm of Captain F. W. Green, on White's Creek, says the Nashville American. A fox that had been captured in a trap was turned loose in the face of a pack of hounds and a body of horsemen for a chase. The negro joined in the chase and actually outstripped both horses and dogs and captured the fox alive with his hands.

An Immense Turtle.

The Cape Sable Advertiser reports that the crew of a fishing schooner a short time since, while a few miles from Cape Sable, saw what at first sight they took to be the genuine sea-serpent come to the surface for an airing. They could see that the immense black mass was propelling itself slowly away from them, and they resolved on giving chase and having a closer view. The captain and another man sprang into a boat and were soon alongside, when they discovered it was a turtle of rather vast dimensions, being fully 14 feet long, 8 feet broad, and between 5 and 6 feet in thickness. Then a wicked-looking head protruded from under the shell to the extent of four feet or more. After vain efforts to capture the creature with a gaff, a harpoon was tried, but the iron rebounded from the solid shell and the attempt had to be abandoned. During the struggle the monster made the spray fly on all sides, and it was not safe to get very near him.

The Great Forests of Africa.

In Stanley's report to the British Government in regard to his expedition for the relief of Emin Pasha he speaks as follows of the discovery of an immense forest: "We can prove that east and north and northeast of the Congo there exists an immense area of about 250,000 square miles which is covered by one unbroken, compact, and veritable forest. . . . Through the core of this forest we traveled for thirteen months, and in its gloomy shades many scores of our dark followers perished. Our progress through the dense undergrowth of bush and ambitious young trees which grew beneath the impervious shades of the forest giants, and which was matted by arums, phrynias, and amomas, meshed by endless lines of calamus, and complicated by great caule-like convolvuli, was often only at the rate of 400 yards an hour. Through such obstructions as these we had to tunnel a way for the column to pass. The Amazon Valley cannot boast a more impervious or a more umbrageous forest, nor one which has more truly a tropical character, than this vast Upper Congo forest, nourished as it is by eleven months of tropical showers."

Cause of Baldness and Catarrh.

An eminent physician declares that a stiff hat is the cause of catarrh and baldness, and another eminent physician says that a soft hat is the cause of baldness and catarrh. These two expert opinions might puzzle us, were it not that another authority on health declares that men will never be healthy until they stop wearing any hat.

These columns are free to all, whether subscribers or not, and we will gladly publish any letters that will be of general interest to our readers, provided they are not too long and contain nothing objectionable.

In writing to us for publication, try and be particular to form every letter so there can be no mistake. Remember compositors are always in a hurry and if writing is not quite plain are apt to guess at it and sometimes make queer mistakes which alter the sense of the whole letter.

Write with ink and on one side of paper only and make your letters as interesting as you please. Address, Krums, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

Aarwood, Kalkaska, Mich.

This paper, though the official organ of the Order of Emorians, is open to all people for subscription or advertisements, and while no Emorian is under any obligation whatever to subscribe for it or use its advertising columns, we shall be pleased to have them do so and believe they will be benefitted in many ways by so doing.

Our Order has more than doubled their membership since the last paper was sent out, and is increasing at a wonderful rate. Let each member help to increase them still more by inducing persons they know, who they think will be good members, to join. There will probably be many advantages in the future which time will develop.—Herald.

RATES—Subscription price fifty cents a year in advance. Cash paying subscribers are allowed advertising space in this paper of not more than twenty words, during the time their subscription runs. All other advertisements must be paid for at the rate of one cent a word for first insertion and one-half cent a word for each time after the first. For special rates on time or large advertising write to KRUMBS PUB CO

Do you want correspondents for self improvement, matrimony or any respectable and legitimate purpose? Send for a copy of Mutual Friend, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

MR. KRUMBS:—I see the Organ is grinding, so I send you a couple of new names to put on the list of esquires, also 50 cents for a subscription for the last name—and 25 cents for a box of that wonderful powder. Give me wholesale price, if its good I maybe can sell some of it; and hurrah for the square E, I am chuck full of it. Expect you will hear enough of me, if your Organ keeps on grinding. I see you had my other effusion in KRUMBS. Dat vas goot mit you. AN EMORIAN.

Emorians by accepting membership in the order, on the understanding of no dues but fraternal kindness to one another, thereby in a sense place themselves upon a pledge of honor to do those little ordinary kindnesses which any friend or brother asks in reason of each other. If we see a brother Emorian doing what we know will be injurious to him it is a duty to warn them, not to shun and condemn. If we see one of our order about to be taken advantage of by others, we should warn them. In business matters, where other things are equal we should give the preference to a member. And by kindly recognition and encouragement to one another in the many little transactions of life show ourselves true members of the order.—Brothers and sisters am I right? —An Emorian.

If all Emorians would use paper or envelopes, with the Emorian heading printed upon it, or would make the emblem of the order, a letter E in a square with a pen or pencil with their signature, they would oftentimes receive more courteous and prompt attention, especially if writing to a member, and as every member has list of names of members it is not easy for persons not members to deceive one who is, even if they should try. Any Emorian can procure the printed stationery very cheap of either the vice-President or Sec'y of the order.—Herald.

Are you an Emorian? Don't you want some stationery with the emblem of the order printed thereon? We have just what you want, either note heads or note paper. Send for samples and prices. Ray M. Phillips, V. Pres., West Chester, Ohio.

Photograph cards, your name neatly printed thereon and a small photo of yourself on the corner, just the thing for Emorians; sample and prices, 2-cent stamp. R. M. Phillips, V. Pres., West Chester, Ohio.

Let the Emorians write letters giving their views of Emorianism, for the benefit of each other and the public, or ask questions concerning the order for answer in our next. But if you want questions answered by mail always enclose the 2 cent stamp for reply.—Herald.

The Constitution will be published in installments for the approval of the order. If you see anything in it you disapprove of or wish to amend, or if there is anything you wish to add to it, make it known at once, as where no objection is made it will be supposed to meet the approval of all and considered adopted. Where differences of opinion may occur, the matter will be decided by the full board of directors or if necessary put to a vote of the order.

PREAMBLE.

WHEREAS: We believe it will be to our mutual benefit, and promote fraternal kindness among the people of the different sections of our common country, we do hereby form ourselves into a Union and agree to be governed by the following rules:

ARTICLE I.

The name of this Union shall be "The Society of Emorians," and the emblem the square with the letter E enclosed, thus

ARTICLE II.

The object of the society shall be to promote fraternal kindness among the members and the world at large, proclaiming peace on earth good will to all, and the practice of those virtues that elevate and adorn society, uniting in the bonds of universal brotherhood, the peoples of every country, sect and opinion not to indulge in controversy or acquire political power, influencing no ones faith, leaving each to choose in politics or religion, the creed most in accord with his own sense of right.

ARTICLE III. MEMBERSHIP.

1. Any person twelve years of age of whatever sex, color or creed, may become a member in the first degree of the society by making application and subscribing to the constitution.

2. Application for membership in the first degree may be made to any one of the officers by simply sending in name and address and expressing a wish to join, when their name shall be placed by the Herald on his books and numbered in the order received and the number given to the member.

3. Any person who has been a member of the society in the first degree for a period of not less than three months, shall be eligible to the second degree and may become a member by the approval of the board of Directors and paying the sum of one dollar into the treasury.

4. Application for membership in the second degree shall be made on a blank to be furnished by the Herald, and shall be accompanied by the sum of one dollar and deposited with the Secretary.

5. Members of the second degree shall be voters and eligible to the offices of the society.

6. The third degree shall consist of officers and past officers of the order.

Medical and law students, master mechanics, book-keepers, type writers, housekeepers etc., etc., will find our paper the best medium to reach all sections of the country.

As we circulate our paper among all classes of people, it is one of the best mediums for exchange, especially for those who desire to change locations.

It is not always that a person wishing to sell his business, or procure a partner, or sell his home, wishes it known; not because there is anything wrong in so doing, but from a natural dislike to having busybodies enquiring too freely into their business. Therefore, no names will be given by us under any circumstances, unless so directed by the owner.

Any correspondence can be carried on as long as the parties wish to do so, by enclosing letter with the number where the stamp will cover it, on the upper right-hand corner and enclosing ten cents to us. When you wish to write direct, send your address to your correspondent, when if they desire to do so, they can send theirs, or continue to forward through this office. Address will be published when desired.

You will confer a favor on us and our advertisers if you will when answering advertisements say you saw their advertisement in KRUMBS.

A ARWOOD, MICH., FEB. 1893.

Join The Emorians!

Reader would you like to join the SOCIETY OF THE EMORIANS. It will cost you nothing.

In union there is strength and success.

The Society of the Emorians is a fraternal organization, to assist in consummating the great and imperative objects of humanity.

Members are bound together more firmly than are the ordinary public—they are to take especial pains to accommodate each other—to correspond with and exhibit such actions of fraternal obligations as will make each person perceive the benefits from their admission to this Society. Members are located in all parts of the U. S., and Canada, and their peculiar respect and attention to each other is a means of facilitating various beneficial results—each should impart any information which another may desire, which pertains to their own section, etc., or which may lend to assist one or more of the members.

There are no obnoxious preliminaries to admission to this Society nor any tedious appendages after you are a member. There are no dues nor extortions. If you wish to become a member, simply send a letter to the Treasurer, stating your desire to become a member and having your own signature or mark signed to it, and your name will be enrolled on the books and you will continue to be a member until you make a personal request to have your name erased.

There is no creed to vex your memory—no superfluous by-laws to study. The objects of the Society are briefly and tersely expressed by "FRATERNAL KINDNESS"

There are no exceptions made to nationality, color or religion, and there is nothing pertaining to this Society to conflict with any principle or obligation.

From the fact that all these people are contained in the world and are necessarily members of one great order, it is inferred or inducted that they must be of use to one another and the Society of the Emorians copies after this great law.

There are no expulsions or excommunications from this Society. While a person lives there is hope for reformation and this can better be enacted by fraternal assistance than otherwise.

Send your name and address and keep us informed of any changes in your address, and you will be in continual receipt of many advantages offered to the EMORIANS.

ALL EMORIANS are agents for THE EMORIAN POWDER. It is the most wonderful medicine on earth! You simply mix one fourth of a teaspoonful in a little cold water, when it is transformed into a pleasant nectar and elixir of life, curing Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Malaria, Scrofula or any Humor. Rheumatism, Headache, Constipation, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Blotches, Pimples, etc.

A sound body is the great necessity for happiness and moral calmness and improvement, thus EMERYPATHY is the medical hobby of the Society and it is expected that members will advocate and dispense as much as possible the best restorer of health, viz., THE EMORIAN POWDER.

This remedy contains no alcohol or other poison and has none of the repulsive pills. It is nothing but Roots and Herbs. Try it.

It counteracts the abuses of the body from perverting Nature; it pleasantly and quietly drives the cause of all disease from the body; parasites and disease germs cannot live where it is used. It gives a good complexion, embonpoint and beauty; it rebuilds the wasted nerves and tissues by causing the stomach to furnish nutrition; instead of racking and tormenting the stomach and bowels, it instantly gives a pleasant and cheering lift to Nature. Numerous testimonials prove it to be the panacea for all diseases.

WE WILL MAIL a neat tin box full to any address in the U. S. postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cts. You can get it of any Emorian, or at wholesale of the President or Treasurer of the Emorian Order.

ONEIAN INSURANCE CLUB.—Do you want to join us? Each member pays one dollar on the death of a member. The cheapest, honest insurance known, classes limited to one hundred and one in each class, you can join in one or more classes. $100 insurance in each class if class is full, or as many dollars as there are members in the class. For full particulars write to Oneian Insurance Club, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co. Mich.

AGENTS wanted, to sell stamps from my approval sheets at fifty per cent. commission. Send at once for sheets to W. S. Curtis, Madison, N. Y.

CORRESPONDENCE.

There are many men doing business on small capital who could do better with a partner. Many overworked doctors and lawyers who want assistants, many colleges and schools requiring teachers, many men and women who would like life partners, and many who wish introduction or correspondence for numerous other reasons. All are sure to find some one wishing to correspond for all such purposes, by advertising in these columns. All persons of good moral character, who will furnish reference when required are invited to insert an advertisement.

We have lady and gentlemen advertisers of many nationalities and of all ages, who are looking for congenial correspondents.

No matter what the object, or how particular you are, we feel sure you will eventually find the one you wish, through this means.

Remember, you can judge far better of a person's character and disposition by a short correspondence than by a long personal acquaintance, as in letter writing there is not that bashfulness or backwardness of expressing themselves that we often see in an ordinary acquaintance; but a person writing to another will generally write out unconsciously their true character, both in their hand-writing and their mode of expression.

We are careful to avoid any stationery calculated to attract attention. Write us for particulars. Address, Box 1, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

CHICAGO BY DAY AND NIGHT.

The reader who scans its pages will learn of features in the great city's life never before revealed.

The World's Fair City unmasked and its secrets and mysteries laid bare. It describes every shade of Chicago life, from the gilded palace of the millionaire to the wretched garret of the mendicant. It pictures every description of fashionable society in the Michigan Ave. mansions, the clubs and the hotels. It tells all about the fast life of the gay men and women of the Western metropolis, and shows how fortunes are annually squandered in the pursuit of pleasure. It likewise describes the gambling dens, and how through them young men are lured to their ruin; the confidence-men, and how they entrap rural visitors. It pictures the life of the poor and lowly, and tells all about the wretched tenements, where scores of human beings live in a single room; the Chinese and the opium dens, the Italian and their haunts, the abodes of crime and degradation, the concert saloons and other resorts after midnight, and the low life of the denizens of Clark St. It tells all about the theatres and the theatrical profession, the strange characters seen upon the streets and their peculiar methods of gaining a livelihood, the blackmailers, the shoplifters, the thieves, the burglars, the detectives. It describes the great buildings, some twenty stories high, Parks, boulevards and other features of the city. It is replete with anecdotes of places and people, which makes it equal to the most thrilling book ever published. A complete history of the World's Fair that will be thrown open in 1893, when the peopled world will be called upon to view the progress of the future metropolis; the colossal buildings and their contents;

Here I am Mr. Herald, with my full description blank filled out on both sides, and my half dollar for subscription to our paper organ (as I see a brother Emorian calls it). Please insert my little ad, as enclosed, also please send me list of members so I can correspond with some of them; and how about badge, and how can we recognize one another.

This is one of many similar letters we receive and in answer to all we will say look over the following

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

To those asking for list of members we will say there is at present no printed list, our numbers are nearly one thousand and fast increasing. It is hoped soon to have arrangements made whereby the lists will be printed, and kept up with the new membership monthly.

To those who ask us to insert notices and short advertisements for them, we say: Cash paying subscribers only, are entitled to have an advertisement of 20 words or less inserted free during the time their subscription is paid, all other advertisers must pay regular rates, viz.: one cent a word for first time and 1/2 cent a word for each time after the first.

To those who write send me KRUMBS regular, we say we shall be glad to do so if you send us the price of subscription, viz.: fifty cents a year, with advertising privilege of 20 words or less. We send sample a copy to each new member, sometimes three or four, but if you wish it regular, you must subscribe.

We are asked by someone every mail to refer them to some brother or sister for correspondence for some special purpose, mostly for the purpose of mutual benefit and pastime, though often for business purposes. These enquiries come from old and young, married and single, male and female, and for all sorts of reasons. In order to be able to select proper correspondents, we send out blanks to each member. The blanks are all alike. Most of them are retained and we have no record of their personality, we hope all will understand by this why they are sent out and fill out and return them. Some ask the origin of the society and the meaning of the word Emorian. To these we will say we expect soon, probably in our next issue to publish a story to be continued through a number of issues, which is founded on the formation of the society by President Leach, and which is written by a personal friend and will be found very interesting to members and those interested to know more of this order.

A few have asked if ladies are eligible for membership, we say certainly. We think the ladies generally make the best members, taking more interest in the prosperity of the order than the male members. Bring them in by all means.

Some ask for a badge to be sent them in reply, at present we have none to send out but hope soon to perfect arrangements whereby all can be supplied who wish them.

Some ask how they may know a member, to which we reply, ask them. There is no secret about it, and we think any member will be proud to say they belong to the order. If you think any one is claiming to be a member who is not, it would be well to ask a few questions as to their number, when they became numbers, and any other questions that may suggest regarding the order.

Some ask if they have to be agents for the sale of Emorian Powders and canvass in order to be members. In reply we say NO only as it is supposed every member knows where they can be procured, they would be kind enough to send for a box or give the address where to send to any one who might inquire for them, thus being in a manner an agent.

All Emorians who wish can have the Powders at wholesale rates, by the dozen or more and keep them on hand, they are a good medicine for old and young, and pleasant to take and we would like to have all try them. They will be supplied at wholesale, or by the single box free by mail, by either the President or at this office by the Treasurer, the prices being always the same.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them, we say, certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be made very sorry it was ever written.

We also say watch the constitution as it appears in part each month in this paper, and see that there is nothing in it but what you can approve of—if you have objections to make let them be made immediately before the articles are approved and become a part of the constitution, then it will be too late to object.

There are quite a number of letters for publication which we shall be obliged to leave out of this issue but some of them may appear in our next or some future issue.

Fraternally,
HERALD.

Carved Wooden Vanes Went Out with Figure Heads in Ships.

When a Phœnician sailor stuck a needle through the stem of a feather and held it out in the wind, he invented the first weather vane, or feather vane. He was nearly equalled by the Indian boy who was taught to moisten his finger in his mouth, and to hold that finger aloft in the air. When that finger grew cold on a certain side, the Indian child knew that the wind came from that particular direction. The Phœnicians, however, were probably the first of all civilized peoples to put the vane of feather into practical use.

Since those early days weather-vanes have been used in every form and by all races, says the N. Y. Recorder. Modern vanes in their present shapes were first made in wood by traveling carvers and later in copper by tinkers and smiths. They were used on poles, churches, public buildings, ships and were placed on rocky points of land along the seashore. They are now made in every conceivable design and pattern. Horses, cows, deer, eagles, ships, roosters and even pigs are hammered out in copper and used to register the direction of the wind.

The newer vanes have rain-cups attached for catching water during a storm. The amount of water that falls is measured by the square inch in a tube under the vane. Wind gauges also are attached. These indicate the speed of the wind. The gauges are small cups hung sideways to the vane. The wind blows them around in a circle and the revolutions are registered by electricity. Nearly all the large weather-vanes in town are connected with dials in the buildings below.

The dial is round like the face of a clock, lettered like a compass and a revolving hand shows the action of the wind on the vane overhead. Vanes are no longer set in sockets, as it is nearly impossible to keep them properly oiled. They are hung loosely, like a cap on a pivot, and the hollow stem of the vane hangs over the head of the pivot, covering it from rain and rust.

One of the largest vanes ever seen in New York was placed on the post-office about fifteen years ago. It was so large that it was considered unsafe and was taken down. A good drawing of it is still in existence. The arrow, scroll and banneret seem to be favorite shapes in vanes at present. The fence-jumping horse and the plow are yet found on the grounds where country fairs are held, but they are not in great demand. The tobacco-leaf vane is found largely in the South and in Connecticut. The spread eagle and running deer are wind signs in the western states, the deer more particularly in Canada. Malt barrels in copper are placed on breweries throughout the country.

KRUMBS, Pub. Co.
Aarwood, Kalkaska, Mich.

This paper, though the official organ of the Order of Emorians, is open to all people for subscription or advertisements, and while no Emorian is under any obligation whatever to subscribe for it or use its advertising columns, we shall be pleased to have them do so and believe they will be benefitted in many ways by so doing.

RATES—Subscription price fifty cents a year in advance. Cash paying subscribers are allowed advertising space in this paper of not more than twenty words, during the time their subscription runs. All other advertisements must be paid for at the rate of one cent a word for first insertion and one-half cent a word for each time after the first. For special rates on time or large advertising write to KRUMBS PUB CO

Emorians by accepting membership in the order, on the understanding of no dues but fraternal kindness to one another, thereby in a sense place themselves upon a pledge of honor to do those little ordinary kindnesses which any friend or brother asks in reason of each other. If we see a brother Emorian doing what we know will be injurious to him it is a duty to warn them, not to shun and condemn. If we see one of our order about to be taken advantage of by others, we should warn them. In business matters, where other things are equal we should give the preference to a member. The Story of Dr. Emery or the Hermit of the Evergreens.

PROLOGUE.

This story is written by a personal friend of our president. The Dr. is represented as an old man the better to facilitate the instructive portion of the story and to make the tale more romantic. The general ideas and principles being founded however on facts. The little old town of Raynham, in the good old Commonwealth of Massachusetts is where the president and founder of the order of Emorians was born, and the name of Leach is well wrought into the history of this little old New England locality, it being the family name of the Postmaster, Town Clerk, Administrator, School Teacher, Singing Master, etc, and stepping over the line into Taunton, we find the name of Leach associated with the office of Principal of High School, Councilman etc. Mr. Albert Leach, the postmaster of Raynham was well known and greatly esteemed for his honesty intelligence and kindness and it was from the stimulus of education imparted by this venerable official to Orville L. Leach, that the science of Emerypathy has been founded. This story will be a combination of fiction and fact, the localities and leading features being fact garnished with sufficient fiction to make it interesting. The little cabin described as the home of Dr. Emery was located on a little island in a quite large lake or pond in the northern part of the town of Taunton only about three miles from the Green or Public Square of the city and is now the property of Horace Smith, a cousin of the Dr. Leach who is now the proprietor of the Dr. Emery remedies and president of the Emorian Order. One side of the island is within about one rod of the main land and a rude log bridge is built across the narrow channel. Dr. Leach assumed the 'Non de plume' of Dr. Emery some years ago and under that name has built up the business of the Dr. Emery remedies and has been the founder of the order of Emorians which will live to perpetuate the laws of Universal Brotherhood.

When a Phœnician sailor stuck a needle through the stem of a feather and held it out in the wind, he invented the first weather vane, or feather vane. He was nearly equalled by the Indian boy who was taught to moisten his finger in his mouth, and to hold that finger aloft in the air. When that finger grew cold on a certain side, the Indian child knew that the wind came from that particular direction. The Phœnicians, however, were probably the first of all civilized peoples to put the vane of feather into practical use.

Since those early days weather-vanes have been used in every form and by all races, says the N. Y. Recorder. Modern vanes in their present shapes were first made in wood by traveling carvers and later in copper by tinkers and smiths. They were used on poles, churches, public buildings, sofas and were placed on rocky points of land along the seashore. They are now made in every conceivable design and pattern. Horses, cows, deer, eagles, ships, roosters and even pigs are hammered out in copper and used to register the direction of the wind.

The newer vanes have rain-cups attached for catching water during a storm. The amount of water that falls is measured by the square inch in a tube under the vane. Wind gauges also are attached. These indicate the speed of the wind. The gauges are small cups hung sideways to the vane. The wind blows them around in a circle and the revolutions are registered by electricity. Nearly all the large weather-vanes in town are connected with dials in the buildings below.

The dial is round like the face of a clock, lettered like a compass and a revolving hand shows the action of the wind on the vane overhead. Vanes are no longer set in sockets, as it is nearly impossible to keep them properly oiled. They are hung loosely, like a cap on a pivot, and the hollow stem of the vane hangs over the head of the pivot, covering it from rain and rust.

One of the largest vanes ever seen in New York was placed on the post-office about fifteen years ago. It was so large that it was considered unsafe and was taken down. A good drawing of it is still in existence. The arrow, scroll and banneret seem to be favorite shapes in vanes at present. The fence-jumping horse and the plow are yet found on the grounds where country fairs are held, but they are not in great demand. The tobacco-leaf vane is found largely in the South and in Connecticut. The spread eagle and running deer are wind signs in the western states, the deer more particularly in Canada. Mail barrels in copper are placed on breweries throughout the country.

Emorians by accepting membership in the order, on the understanding of no dues but fraternal kindness to one another, thereby in a sense place themselves upon a pledge of honor to do those little ordinary kindnesses which any friend or brother asks in reason of each other. If we see a brother Emorian doing what we know will be injurious to him it is a duty to warn them, not to shun and condemn. If we see one of our order about to be taken advantage of by others, we should warn them. In business matters, where other things are equal we should give the preference to a member. DR. EMERY THE HERMIT OF THE EVERGREENS.

It was a wild snowy day, the white flakes were holding high revelry, flying about in all directions and filling the air and covering the road so the old man who was plodding through the almost forsaken roadway could scarcely see to make his way along the path and across the foot bridge to the little wicker cabin nestling back among the pines on a little Island far back from the realms of civilization. But after reaching the place and shaking the snow from his long hair and beard, unlocked the door and entered, proceeded to divest himself of his outdoor garments, and build up a fire in a rude fireplace.

Now reader, I suppose you wonder who this man could be, and why he sought this secluded home far away from the haunts of civilization. Surrounding himself in mystery and solitude, with no companions but his books, charts, retorts, stills, bottles, skeletons, kittles, and what not which seemed to almost fill the room.

To explain this we must revert back to the past life of the old man, who was known as Dr. Emery, the Hermit. He was educated in the ordinary school of medicine, studied the ordinary books which taught the only right way to treat disease was to load the system with mercury, no matter if it did ruin one for life, and that Akonite was a cure for fever—no matter if it did paralyze the nerves of the vital muscular organs, and weaken their action. But by years of practice he began to believe that the whole existing methods of practice were wrong. He found that vegetable remedies cured diseases better than minerals and left no bad results. That nature abhorred shocks, and believed the shock of crude minerals should be somewhat tempered to the system by transition through vegetable remedies, these containing a varying supply of inorganic matter, also he believed the lessening of the pulse in fever by akonite, belladonna and other poisons, was from the same cause as the stupor produced by a blow on the head. He reasoned that the idea that a substance could select a certain part of the body and work a cure there was folly, and he knew how infestinal must be the dose which could reach a remote organ, after it had mingled with the blood and been strained through the liver which cleanses all such impurities from the blood.

We have these letters on file and will cheerfully show them to any doubting advertisers. You may be sure that we will continue advertising in your Combination. Resp., SQUARE DEAL CO.

The News-Letter Combination is composed of papers either wholly or partly printed at the News-Letter Office.

For $1 we will Insert

A 1 line ad. in 100,000 copies.
3 " " 34,000 "
5 " " 20,000 "

For 50 cts. ads. inserted in half this No. of copies. Count 7 words to the line. Address, NEWS-LETTER COMBINATION, Hasbrouck Hts., N. J.

KRUMBS.

A ARWOOD, MICH., MARCH 1893.

Join The Emorians!

Reader would you like to join the SOCIETY OF THE EMORIANS. It will cost you nothing.

In union there is strength and success. The Society of the Emorians is a fraternal organization, to assist in consummating the great and imperative objects of humanity.

Members are bound together more firmly than are the ordinary public—they are to take especial pains to accommodate each other—to correspond with and exhibit such actions of fraternal obligations as will make each person perceive the benefits from their admission to this Society. Members are located in all parts of the U. S., and Canada, and their peculiar respect and attention to each other is a means of facilitating various beneficial results—each should impart any information which another may desire, which pertains to their own section, etc., or which may lend to assist one or more of the members.

There are no obnoxious preliminaries to admission to this Society nor any tedious appendages after you are a member. If you wish to become a member, simply send a letter to the Treasurer, stating your desire to become a member.

The objects of the Society are briefly and tersely expressed by "FRATERNAL KINDNESS"

There are no exceptions made to sex, nationality, color or religion, and there is nothing pertaining to this Society to conflict with any principle or obligation.

ATTENTION!!

Circular Mailers, Distributors, and all Business Advertisers.

To all who send 25c. for White Wings one year, we will insert 1/2 inch ad. free. For 50c. we will insert 1 inch ad. free, and send paper one year. Don't fail to have your ad. in the next No. Send money by Postal Note, Money Order or Registered letter and address all orders to

S. B. Lewis Pub. Murrysville, Penn.

ALL EMORIANS are agents for THE EMORIAN POWDER. It is the most wonderful medicine on earth! You simply mix one fourth of a tea-spoonful in a little cold water, when it is transformed into a pleasant nectar and elixir of life, curing Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Malaria, Scrofula or any Humor, Rheumatism, Headache, Constipation, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Blotches, Pimples, etc.

A sound body is the great necessity for happiness and moral calmness and improvement, thus EMERYPATHY is the medical hobby of the Society and it is expected that members will advocate and dispense as much as possible the best restorer of health, viz., THE EMORIAN POWDER.

This remedy contains no alcohol or other poison and has none of the repulsive pills. It is nothing but Roots and Herbs. Try it.

It counteracts the abuses of the body from perverting Nature; it pleasantly and quietly drives the cause of all disease from the body; parasites and disease germs cannot live where it is used. It gives a good complexion, embonpoint and beauty; it rebuilds the wasted nerves and tissues by causing the stomach to furnish nutrition; instead of racking and tormenting the stomach and bowels, it instantly gives a pleasant and cheering lift to Nature. Numerous testimonials prove it to be the panacea for all diseases.

WE WILL MAIL a neat tin box full to any address in the U. S. postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cts. You can get it of any Emorian, or at wholesale of the President or Treasurer of the Emorian Order.

CORRESPONDENCE.

There are many men doing business on small capital who could do better with a partner. Many overworked doctors and lawyers who want assistants, many colleges and schools requiring teachers, many men and women who would like life partners, and many who wish introduction or correspondence for numerous other reasons. All are sure to find someone wishing to correspond for all such purposes, by advertising in these columns. All persons of good moral character, who will furnish reference when required are invited to insert an advertisement.

We have lady and gentlemen advertisers of many nationalities and of all ages, who are looking for congenial correspondents.

No matter what the object, or how particular you are, we feel sure you will eventually find the one you wish, through this means.

Remember, you can judge far better of a person's character and disposition by a short correspondence than by a long personal acquaintance, as in letter writing there is not that bashfulness or backwardness of expressing themselves that we often see in an ordinary acquaintance; but a person writing to another will generally write out unconsciously their true character, both in their handwriting and their mode of expression.

We are careful to avoid any stationery calculated to attract attention. Write us for particulars. Address, Box 1, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

Answers to Questions.

We have quite a number of enquiries about charters for Local Lodges, will say to obtain Charter for a Local Lodge, it will be necessary to have at least four members of the second or official degree, to apply for a charter and hold the offices. Members of the second degree can obtain all necessary information from this office. Where there are not four members of the second degree, they can organize without a charter by putting in their application and as soon as they have the necessary number to fill the offices, the charter will be granted. If answers to questions are wanted by mail, send self addressed stamped envelopes.

To those who ask us to insert notices and short advertisements for them, we say: Cash paying subscribers only, are entitled to have an advertisement of 20 words or less inserted free during the time their subscription is paid, all other advertisers must pay regular rates, viz.: one cent a word for first time and $\frac{1}{2}$ cent a word for each time after the first.

To those who write send me KRUNBS regular, we say we shall be glad to do so if you send us the price of subscription, viz.: fifty cents a year, with advertising privilege of 20 words or less. We send a sample copy to each new member, sometimes three or four, but if you wish it regular, you must subscribe.

We are asked by someone every mail to refer them to some brother or sister for correspondence for some special purpose, mostly for the purpose of mutual benefit and pastime, though often for business purposes. These enquiries come from old and young, married and single, male and female, and for all sorts of reasons. In order to be able to select proper correspondents, we send out blanks to each member. The blanks are all alike. Most of them are returned, but a few are retained, and we have no record of their personality, we hope all will understand by this why they are sent out and fill out and return them.

A few have asked if ladies are eligible for membership, we say certainly. We think the ladies generally make the best members, taking more interest in the prosperity of the order than the male members. Bring them in by all means.

Some ask for a badge to be sent them in reply, at present we have none to send out but hope soon to perfect arrangements whereby all can be supplied who wish them.

Some ask how they may know a member, to which we reply, ask them. There is no secret about it, and we think any member will be proud to say they belong to the order. If you think any one is claiming to be a member who is not, it would be well to ask a few questions as to their number, when they became members, and any other questions that may suggest regarding the order.

Some ask if they have to be agents for the sale of Emorian Powders and canvass in order to be members. In reply we say NO only as it is supposed every member knows where they can be procured, they would be kind enough to send for a box or give the address where to send to any one who might inquire for them, thus being in a manner an agent.

All Emorians who wish can have the Powders at wholesale rates, by the dozen or more and keep them on hand, they are a good medicine for old and young, and pleasant to take and we would like to have all try them. They will be supplied at wholesale, or by the single box free by mail, by either the President or at this office by the Treasurer, the prices being always the same.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them, we say, certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be made very sorry it was ever written.

We also say watch the constitution as it appears in part each month in this paper, and see that there is nothing in it but what you can approve of—if you have objections to make let them be made immediately before the articles are approved and become a part of the constitution, then it will be too late to object.

There are quite a number of letters for publication which we shall be obliged to leave out of this issue but some of them may appear in our next or some future issue.

There are quite a number of members who will miss the next number of KRUNBS unless they subscribe. We cannot run an extra edition of our paper and give subscriptions away. We are sorry we are obliged to ask it, but we think it but right that all should be treated alike, therefore all must pay or go without it. If any member is unable to pay and will write to us, we will show them how they can get it free.

The Story of Dr. Emery or the Hermit of the Evergreens.

The Portrait of Dr. Emery as a Young Man.

DR. EMERY THE HERMIT OF THE EVERGREENS.

CHAPTER II.

Gradually this honorable man discarded the notions of his earlier education and trusted in a few simple tried remedies. He found great success from his regimas and his fame spread beyond his own town, inasmuch as he was called to surrounding cities. The good old settlement of Roger Williams received his visits and the people learned the benefits of his remedies, particularly his root and herb powders. But care and exposure began to tell upon him and he began to realize that his allotted time on this earth was waning and that his stamina was not equal to the demands of his practice. Loving nature and seclusion he determined to live the life of a hermit, and enjoy the pure air and benefits of a country life. Thus it was that we find him as related in the beginning of this narrative. His life here however was not exactly as he had anticipated. True he reaped the benefits of a rural quiet, but his labors for the care of the sick were not at an end. Hunters and trappers frequented the locality of the doctor's cabin and he was often given a chance to show his medical skill in the treatment of wounds and disease from casual occurrences to the men who plunged into the forests and scoured the fields for game. His ointment which contained pitch to heal and oil to soften, cured their gunshot wounds and burns. This hermit oil or liniment made from the exudations of the pine trees cured their sprains, lung troubles etc., and his cough cure stimulated or gave force to the nerves which caused the involuntary muscles of the vital organs combatting cold, or sending enough blood to the skin and extremities to keep away the excessive grip of the demon of cold, which when once in power makes haste to give internal congestion. The warmth given by the cough cure, drew the blood from the brain to the body, thus giving rest and recuperation. But in fever or dyspepsia the doctor never recommended the cough cure. In dyspepsia he believed stimulants aggravated an already weak stomach so as to cause sleeplessness by an indirect means, that of reflexion, or an equilibrium of disease to the spine and brain, etc. In dyspepsia he recommended that stimulants should be placed on the skin, as on the pit of the stomach. His Hermit Oil being valuable for this, thus the good from stimulation could be realized. Being in a garden of nature where he had free access to the most valued medicinal roots, herbs, buds blossoms, etc., he gathered supplies to be prepared to relieve such persons as came his way and required medical treatment. Stories of his wonderful remedies became rife in cities and towns about His notoriety did not vanish even though he had left the busy throngs of life. Many sportsman of the city held kindly remembrances of the old doctor for his kindness to them when camping or hunting near his cabin, and they often carried his marvelous remedies with them. The strongest advocate of the doctor's remedies however was Robert Verne a broker, who during the warm season occasionally "roughed it" by hunting and trapping. Another advocate was Bill Blackly, who was generally a companion to Verne, while on his trips to the Evergreen Forests. Blackly was a strange admixture of goodness and badness, he was good till his violent temper and revengeful disposition overpowered him. His glib tongue however did much to advertise the doctor's wonderful Root and Herb Powder and other remedies. He would often tell of the Golden Colored Powder which mixed with a little water became a pleasant nectar, which was an elixir of life, and cured nearly every disease, and kept up perpetual youthful organic conditions of the body by driving off wastes or mineral water which had a tendency to ossify the tissues, causing heart disease, rheumatism and premature old age. This nectar never causing nausea nor impeding the digestion and giving activity to the liver, thus relieving the kidneys from overwork and the poisons forced upon them by a sluggish liver. Blackly never related what the doctor told him in regard to intemperance in drink, but he would often discuss the evils of over eating or making too much blood and thus distending the already too heavy laden blood vessels of a diseased part. He was ever ready with an essay based on these principles when he was reproved for not eating during his periodical sprees. Two other companions of Verne on his expeditions were "Bad Boy Bob" his office boy, and Lije his gardener.

But we will now return to the old doctor whom we left in his cabin having just sated himself before the blaze, when rap! rap! came at the door. He started in surprise at this very unusual occurrence in the winter time. Slowly he rose and opened the door. He was much more surprised to see Verne, Bad Boy Bob and the dwarfish peculiar stature of Lije. Come in! said the doctor, but what on earth brings you north at this time of the year?

ARTICLE VII DUTIES OF OFFICERS.

1 The president shall preside when present at any meeting of the Grand Lodge or of the directors and shall enforce a strict obedience to the Constitution and Laws and Regulations of the society. He shall have power to make such rules as he may deem advisable for the good of the order; or dispense with any rules temporarily when not inconsistent with the constitution and not disapproved by a majority of the board. He shall approve and affix his signature to all drafts drawn upon the Treasurer, sign all charters for local lodges and perform such other duties as are incumbent to the office.

2 The vice-president shall assist the president in the discharge of his duties, and in his absence or inability shall perform the duties of the president's office. His signature to any official document shall be recognized the same as the president's.

3 The Secretary shall receive all moneys due the society and keep an account of the same and turn all monies over to the treasurer, requiring a receipt for the same, and shall prepare and sign all drafts upon the treasury and present the same to the President or Vice-President, keeping strict account of the same. Shall prepare and sign all charters for subordinate lodges and present them to the President and at least four other of the board of officers for their signatures, and shall keep a record of all charters granted and number them in the order issued. He shall keep a record of all officers elected and file their oath or affirmation of office, and perform such other duties as may appertain to his office by the direction of the Board of Officers.

4 The Treasurer shall receive all money or valuables placed in his charge by the board and safely keep the same, paying such drafts only as shall be signed by the president or vice-president and the secretary, or by a majority of the Board of Officers. He shall keep a strict account of all monies he may receive for the society and preserve all drafts as vouchers for the expenditure of the same, and perform such other duties as may be required by the Board of Officers.

5 The Herald shall with the advice and council of the President and the Board of Officers, aid and assist them in the performance of their duties, shall devise and recommend measures for meeting the necessary expenditures of the society, shall examine and report upon all bills incurred; shall keep a full record of the proceedings of the board. He shall be the official editor of the society. He shall keep safely the official seal of the society and affix the same to all charters or other official documents when the same have been properly signed and presented to him for the purpose; he shall when present act as clerk for all meetings of the Board or the grand lodge and keep a record of the same and if not present, shall file and preserve the record of the temporary clerk who may be appointed to act in his stead. He shall keep the roll of the members of the order and number them in the order. He shall send out notifications of elections or meetings, and perform such other duties as may be required by the President or the Board.

6 The Legal Counselor shall carefully report upon such legal points as may be required by the officers in the discharge of their duties, shall carefully scrutinize the proceedings of the society and report promptly to the President or proper officer any illegality he may discover in the proceedings and perform such other duty as may be incumbent upon him as such officer.

7 The 7th, 8th and 9th Directors shall assist the officers in the performance of their duties, and occupy any office and fulfill the office of the same when necessary by request of the President or the Board, or act upon any question properly referred to them as members of the Board of Officers.

ARTICLE VIII. DUES.

1 There shall be no dues in the first degree of this society.

2 Members who choose to take the second degree shall pay $1 upon making application therefor and if accepted shall pay thereafter the sum of $1 per year into the office of the secretary.

3 The members of the second, third, and fourth degrees, who have paid their dues and are clear on the books of the secretary shall be entitled to vote for officers, or upon any questions legally brought before the society for action.

4 A member of the degree who shall fail to pay their dues for the term of one year shall be notified by the secretary, and if not paid in six months more shall be again notified and in three months more upon neglecting to pay the same, shall be reduced to the first degree.

5 A member who has been reduced to the first degree for non-payment of dues shall be eligible to take the second degree in the same manner as a new member.

6 A degree member wishing to withdraw from the society may do so upon paying all dues to date and applying for a card from the Secretary.

7 A degree member thus withdrawing may if they desire be re-established in the degree to which they belonged upon the payment of one dollar to the secretary and making application.

ARTICLE IX. CHARTERS.

1 Upon application of nine members four of whom are degree members and there are no local lodges within five miles of the location of the place where they design to meet, a charter may be granted to form a local lodge.

2 All charters for Local Lodges shall be approved and signed by the President, or Vice President and a majority of the of the Board of Officers of the Grand Lodge of the Society, and when so signed shall receive the imprint of the Great Seal of the order and be in full force and effect until surrendered or revoked.

3 All Local Lodges shall work under the constitution for Local Lodges, approved by the Grand Lodge.

4 A charter may be revoked for cause by the board of the Grand Lodge of the society, or may be surrendered when there are less than nine members who wish to retain membership in the lodge.

5 In case of the revocation or suspension of the charter of any local lodge the charter, books, papers, regalia and all lodge property shall be turned over to the treasurer of the Grand Lodge who shall safely keep the same subject to disposal of the Board of officers of the Grand Lodge.

6 When there are nine or more members in good standing may wish to reorganize in the same locality a local lodge which has been suspended. Upon application and approval the charter books and other property may be restored to them as to the original lodge.

7 Local Lodges may at their discretion refuse to admit to membership in their lodges any persons as they may see fit, and may refuse entrance to any but their own members or an officer of the Grand Lodge. They may consist of all male or all female members, or otherwise as the lodge may determine, but no political or religious distinctions or preferences shall be allowed under penalty of revocation of charter.

8 No person shall be admitted as a member of a local lodge who has not first been recorded as a member by the Grand Lodge and no member who may be upon the black list of the same or any lodge shall be allowed to remain in the lodge room.

9 A local lodge may be established within the distance of five miles of another lodge, provided there is no local lodge within that distance which objects to the granting of such charter.

Join The Emorians!

Reader would you like to join the SOCIETY OF THE EMORIANS. It will cost you nothing.

In union there is strength and success. The Society of the Emorians is a fraternal organization, to assist in consummating the great and imperative objects of humanity.

Members are bound together more firmly than are the ordinary public—they are to take especial pains to accommodate each other—to correspond with and exhibit such actions of fraternal obligations as will make each person perceive the benefits from their admission to this Society. Members are located in all parts of the U. S., and Canada, and their peculiar respect and attention to each other is a means of facilitating various beneficial results—each should impart any information which another may desire, which pertains to their own section, etc., or which may lend to assist one or more of the members.

There are no obnoxious preliminaries to admission to this Society nor any tedious appendages after you are a member. If you wish to become a member, simply send a letter to the Treasurer, stating your desire to become a member.

The objects of the Society are briefly and tersely expressed by "FRATERNAL KINDNESS"

There are no exceptions made to sex, nationality, color or religion, and there is nothing pertaining to this Society to conflict with any principle or obligation.

ATTENTION !!

Circular Mailers, Distributers, and all Business Advertisers.

To all who send 25c. for White Wings one year, we will insert 1/2 inch ad. free. For 50c. we will insert 1 inch ad. free, and send paper one year. Don't fail to have your ad. in the next No. Send money by Postal Note, Money Order or Registered letter and address all orders to

S. B. Lewis Pub. Murrysville, Penn.

ALL EMORIANS are agents for THE EMORIAN POWDER. It is the most wonderful medicine on earth! You simply mix one fourth of a teaspoonful in a little cold water, when it is transformed into a pleasant nectar and elixir of life, curing Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Malaria, Scrofula or any Humor. Rheumatism, Headache, Constipation, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Blotches, Pimples, etc.

A sound body is the great necessity for happiness and moral calmness and improvement, thus EMERYPATHY is the medical hobby of the Society and it is expected that members will advocate and dispense as much as possible the best restorer of health, viz., THE EMORIAN POWDER.

This remedy contains no alcohol or other poison and has none of the repulsive pills. It is nothing but Roots and Herbs. Try it.

It counteracts the abuses of the body from perverting Nature; it pleasantly and quietly drives the cause of all disease from the body; parasites and disease germs cannot live where it is used. It gives a good complexion, embonpoint and beauty; it rebuilds the wasted nerves and tissues by causing the stomach to furnish nutrition; instead of racking and tormenting the stomach and bowels, it instantly gives a pleasant and cheering lift to Nature. Numerous testimonials prove it to be the panacea for all diseases.

WE WILL MAIL a neat tin box full to any address in the U. S. postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cts. You can get it of any Emorian, or at wholesale of the President or Treasurer of the Emorian Order.

ONEIAN INSURANCE CLUB.—Do you want to join us? Each member pays one dollar on the death of a member. CORRESPONDENCE

There are many men doing business on small capital who could do better with a partner. Many overworked doctors and lawyers who want assistants, many colleges and schools requiring teachers, many men and women who would like life partners, and many who wish introduction or correspondence for numerous other reasons. All are sure to find someone wishing to correspond for all such purposes, by advertising in these columns. All persons of good moral character, who will furnish reference when required are invited to insert an advertisement.

We have lady and gentlemen advertisers of many nationalities and of all ages, who are looking for congenial correspondents.

No matter what the object, or how particular you are, we feel sure you will eventually find the one you wish, through this means.

Remember, you can judge far better of a person's character and disposition by a short correspondence than by a long personal acquaintance, as in letter writing there is not that bashfulness or backwardness of expressing themselves that we often see in an ordinary acquaintance; but a person writing to another will generally write out unconsciously their true character, both in their hand-writing and their mode of expression.

We are careful to avoid any stationery calculated to attract attention. Write us for particulars. Address, Box 1, Agrwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

THE VALUE OF COINS.

Why Some of Them Command High Premiums.

Send 25 cents in silver, and we will mail to your address, postpaid, a coin book that may be the means of bringing you Hundreds of Dollars, and our 8 page, 32 col. young peoples paper on trial one year. The book contains a revised and corrected list of all United States and Colonial coins that command a premium. Address, SOCIETY AND HOME, Port Huron, Mich. box 997.

Answers to Questions.

We have quite a number of enquiries about charters for Local Lodges, will say to obtain Charter for a Local Lodge, it will be necessary to have at least four members of the second or official degree, to apply for a charter and hold the offices. Members of the second degree can obtain all necessary information from this office. Where there are not four members of the second degree, they can organize without a charter by putting in their application and as soon as they have the necessary number to fill the offices, the charter will be granted. If answers to questions are wanted by mail, send self addressed stamped envelopes.

To those who write send me KRUMBS regular, we say we shall be glad to do so if you send us the price of subscription, viz.: fifty cents a year, with advertising privilege of 20 words or less. We send a sample copy to each new member, sometimes three or four, but if you wish it regular, you must subscribe.

We are asked by someone every mail to refer them to some brother or sister for correspondence for some special purpose, mostly for the purpose of mutual benefit and pastime, though often for business purposes. These enquiries come from old and young, married and single, male and female, and for all sorts of reasons. In order to be able to select proper correspondents, we send out blanks to each member. The blanks are all alike. Most of them are returned, but a few are retained, and we have no record of their personality, we hope all will understand by this why they are sent out and fill out and return them.

A few have asked if ladies are eligible for membership, we say certainly. We think the ladies generally make the best members, taking more interest in the prosperity of the order than the male members. Bring them in by all means.

Some ask if they have to be agents for the sale of Emorian Powders and canvass in order to be members. In reply we say NO only as it is supposed every member knows where they can be procured, they would be kind enough to send for a box or give the address where to send to any one who might inquire for them, thus being in a manner an agent.

All Emorians who wish can have the Powders at wholesale rates, by the dozen or more and keep them on hand, they are a good medicine for old and young, and pleasant to take and we would like to have all try them. They will be supplied at wholesale, or by the single box free by mail, by either the President or at this office by the Treasurer, the prices being always the same.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them, we say, certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be made very sorry it was ever written.

We also say watch the constitution as it appears in part each month in this paper, and see that there is nothing in it but what you can approve of—if you have objections to make let them be made immediately before the articles are approved and become a part of the constitution, then it will be too late to object.

There are quite a number of letters for publication which we shall be obliged to leave out of this issue but some of them may appear in our next or some future issue.

There are quite a number of members who will miss the next number of KRUMBS unless they subscribe. We cannot run an extra edition of our paper and give subscriptions away. We are sorry we are obliged to ask it, but we think it but right that all should be treated alike, therefore all must pay or go without it. If any member is unable to pay and will write to us, we will show them how they can get it free.

We have only a few copies of KRUMBS of the March and April numbers, containing the list of names of the members of the order from 1 to 400, also the first part of the Constitution and the story of the Hermit. As long as they last we will send them to those who want them for 5c. a copy, or 10c. for the two numbers.

The Story of Dr. Emery or the Hermit of the Evergreens.

The Portrait of Dr. Emery as a Young Man.

DR. EMERY THE HERMIT OF THE EVER-GREENS.

Well said Verne, I was feeling poorly and hearing that game was plenty, I thought I would take a vacation for a week and come up and spend it here with you. Well said the doctor, 'tis a good idea, when you are in the open air you have but one temperature to contend with, but when you are shut up in a room for hours and then go out into the cold atmosphere the change is too sudden, for the blood is heated and greater in quantity by the expansion of the heat. By suddenly cooling the skin you force the blood internally which causes a strain on vessels of the internal organs, the weakest being congested and deceased, but come in and get yourselves comfortable. I will put the fire to work and we will have some dinner. When all were comfortably seated the doctor continued. "Diseases like consumption, dyspepsia and consequent nervous conditions, etc., are caused by congestion or an excess of blood crowded into these vessels and may be relieved by exercise, friction, weights, pressures and the burning of the skin by the sun. The inflamed condition of the skin from the cold air and condensed oxygen absorbed by the skin allows the blood vessels of the skin to bulge out after we are warmed up again beside the warm fire thus, drawing the excess of blood from the inner organs. Not so with the one who sits in the house or office and eats up their vitality by reading, writing, thinking, etc. During exercise the muscular contractions draw the excess of blood to the limbs and force the blood through the lungs while the pure air oxidizes it, giving it life and power. The air in a pine forest is very pure, as the emanations of pitch and balsam are nature's means of destroying the germs of malaria and other disease. We should all be careful in our personal habits, keeping in correct channels. There is much in dieting and in the time of eating, one should one hearty meal a day, and that at noon. This will supply all requirements of the body. In the morning the powers of the body are not awakened and hearty food is not proper, bread and milk and light food only should be indulged in for breakfast. At night the body is tired and hearty food imposes on the powers of the body, hence the same rule for supper as for breakfast. By this regimen you will be healthier and happier, your food will not ferment in your stomach and poison your blood, your temper will be more even and your nature more controllable. Do not eat much fruit as it contains acid or mineral matter which will act like the humors or post organics of the body. Avoid an excess of sugar or preserves and sweets. Fresh meats vegetables, bread, custard or spanish pie and plain cake or cookies are sufficient for a dinner bill of fare. Avoid too much grease, which is condensed heat giving food. Never eat what you do not like because you think it healthful, a relish for food is necessary to good digestion. Rich, creamy warm milk is very useful for consumptives as it gives warmth to their bodies, the numerous globules furnished to the blood by the cream allows a greater acquisition of oxygen from the air, thus giving more force and power to the nerves and muscles and obviating the use of medicine in a great degree. Some systems require such aids to the forces of the body, while others make force very easily and require less cream, etc. When a person is used to meat or animal food they become adapted to it and require it, some stomachs are small and happy and require meat, eggs, fish and milk, or condensed foods, while others are large and the fluids of the body are adapted to elaborating vegetable substances. Never outrage nature, the appetite is generally the correct guide. I would not recommend my ointment to be applied all over the body in a case of fever as it contains stimulants which would be absorbed, the ointment would soften the skin but so will water soften the skin and allow the humors to pass off and besides the evaporation of the water, lessens the heat of the body, which is excessive during a fever. A sponge bath of tepid water should be used often in cases of fever, but care must be taken not to allow too much cold air to strike the patient, as we can carry most any condition to excess."

It was now dinner hour and the party set down to dinner. Blackly took a bottle of whisky from his pocket and asked all to partake of it. No said the doctor, "I never use stimulants except only as a medicine, then only such as are contained in my cough cure. Stimulants will give large force to the motor nerves and thus hurry the action of the heart, lungs, etc; but it strains the nerves. These poisons are of use only, when an enemy is behind and you are on horseback, in a case where the end will justify the means and by a lesser deprecation on the system avoid a greater."

The next morning the party were re- we the doctor and pursue the hunt. The sun rose warm and bright the warm. Consuming the snow, melting detachments were falling thicker and faster, betokening speedy dismissal of natures crystal robe. The party bid good by to the doctor and expressing feelings of gratitude for his hospitality, set out to fulfill the plans of the trip. After a pleasant and successful trip the party returned to their homes.

Blackly's appetite for drink seeming to increase constantly, his property was fast being swept away. Verne after repeatedly assisting him with loans and entreating him to reform and seeing it in vain, finally foreclosed a mortgage on his property in order to protect himself, and it was in consequence of this action that the following scene was enacted in the broker's office near the home of Verne, a pleasant apartment on the ground floor of the block on one of the principal streets. The passers-by were called to a halt in front of the office door by the loud and boisterous talk of Blackly, now a drink crazed, wild, reckless individual who was addressing his curses and accusations to Robert Verne the broker. As he walked to the door he exclaimed: "Verne you have foreclosed one mortgage too many. I can get no redress openly but I will watch you like the serpent that lies in the grass. I will poison every spring of happiness from which you drink."

ARTICLE X. COMMITTEES.

The President with the approval of the board may appoint such standing committees as he may deem necessary, also such special committees as may be deemed necessary for any particular service, all committees to consist of from one to five members as may be necessary.

ARTICLE XI. REGALIA & BADGES.

The regalia of the order shall consist of a square apron with a border and the capital letter E. in the center, and in first degree shall be light blue with border and E of white and silver; in the second degree yellow or gold with border of white or silver; in the third degree scarlet or red with border and E of yellow or gold; in the 4th degree of purple with border with border and E of yellow or gold. Acting officers on duty also to wear a collar of the color of the degree to which they belong as such officer, and past officers a sash over one shoulder of color of the degree.

2 The badge of the order shall consist of the square and emblems as on the great seal of the order and shall be in the same colors in the degrees as the regalias.

ARTICLE XII. DISCIPLINE.

1 The offences cognizable by the Order of Emorians shall be disobedience to the constitution, by-laws, rules or regulations of the order, or disrespect of lawful authority, or violating oath of office, the commission of scandalous crime against the laws of the land, conduct unbecoming a member in their relation to the order.

2 Penalties may be either degradation from office or from the higher to lower degree, placing name on black list either permanently or for a stated time, fine or reprimand at the discretion of the court.

3 All accusations shall be made in writing, stating the charge to the master of a local lodge if the accused be a member of one if not a member of a local lodge, then to the president and they will appoint a committee of investigation who may proceed to try the accused, always in private and with as little publicity as is consistent with a fair and impartial trial and report their finding and recommend the penalty to the officer by whom they are appointed, which officer shall pronounce sentence upon such recommendation. No member shall be tried except by request of a member of the degree to which they belong or a member of a higher degree.

4 If a charge is tried and the accused may deem injustice has been done them an appeal may be taken to the officers of the grand lodge who may examine the evidence and reverse or confirm the decision.

5 With the consent of the board the president may pardon or commute the penalty of the sentence.

ARTICLE XIII. SEALS.

1 The Grand Lodge Seal shall consist of the square containing the emblems of the order, viz: The globe, branch, hands, ink stand and pen, the books and lamp with the letter E in centre and surrounded by two circles, between the inner circle and square will appear the words Unity, Fraternity, Honesty, Prosperity, and between the inner and outer circles, Society of Emorians. The grand lodge below on one side, O L L on the other side 1892.

2 Each local lodge shall have a seal to be similar to the grand lodge seal, except between the inner and outer circles shall appear the name and No. of the lodge, year of charter and town and state.

ARTICLE XIV.

This constitution may be altered or by a two thirds vote of the members of the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th degrees who vote, but only after two months notice in the official paper of the society.

In the next months issue we will begin the publication of constitution for local lodges.

Reform in Liquor Traffic.

On and after May 15 next licenses issued to storekeepers in this city to sell liquor not to be drank on the premises will cost $200 a year instead of $50 as heretofore. The new rate, which applies to those whose sales aggregate less than $2,500 a year, was agreed upon by the excise board on Tuesday. Its adoption is a salutary, practicable and proper measure of excise reform.

It is salutary because it will tend to restrict the evil of surreptitious drinking in grocery, provision and drug stores which are patronized by women, and in which the charge for liquor is added to the cost of household commodities.

It is practicable, because it will augment the city's excise revenues without a corresponding increase in the number of saloons or in the amount of liquor sold.

It is proper, because it will do away with the unfair distinction which has heretofore existed between ordinary saloons where liquor is sold openly and stores where the same article is sold privately.—New York Sun.

CHICAGO BY DAY AND NIGHT

For years the attention of America and a great part of Europe has been attracted to Chicago. From now on until after the World's Fair this attention will be increased. This book has been prepared to supply the millions of visitors with every possible bit of information about the city. Chicago has been called the PARIS OF AMERICA. In no other city of its size is the same variety of amusements to be found. All tastes may be satisfied, all preferences served. The readers will learn how to view, buy or enjoy what they wish. This book is rightly termed a "PLEASURE SEEKER'S GUIDE." It is written in a breezy manner and treats of points calculated to interest the chance tourist or steady visitor. Even those who do not intend to visit the World's Fair at Chicago will find it not a dry line in the book, but it is INTERESTING AS A NOVEL. It contains anecdotes of places and people which make it equal to the most thrilling book ever published. A vivid picture of the light and dark sides of life in the gateway of all American cities. Millions of people of the United States alone will leave their homes and travel to the Paris of America, ready for sight-seeing and pleasure such as they never dreamed of. Each and every one of these millions of people will buy a book about Chicago. But everyone, whether visiting the city or not, should buy a copy of "Chicago by Day and Night." By so doing one may learn of things that even life-long residents are ignorant of. THE WORLD'S FAIR.—A complete history of the colossal buildings and their contents; hints for the wayfarer to follow in his strolls about the grounds; attraction of the Midway Plaisance, including the villages and communities of the barbarous and savage people which will be located there, and the reproduction of sections of famous or curious buildings, and the programme of the World's Fair Auxiliary.

"Chicago by Day and Night" deals in all the great city's attractions and points of interest, not excepting the shady places and persons that it would be well for strangers to avoid. It is written in an agreeable, chatty style, that cannot fail to please the reader. —Arkansas Traveler.
 "Chicago by Day and Night" describes concisely and well the hotels, the theatres, the various kinds of entertainments to be found, suited to all tastes, the free and easy shows, panoramas, etc. It points out many of the pitfalls that beset the unwary in a great city. —Chicago Herald.
 The nature of this handsome and most useful paper covered book is sufficiently expressed in its title. —The Philadelphia Times.
 It is not likely any book better than "Chicago by Day and Night" will find its way to the market. It is not a mishmash of old material or a series of paid puff of people and points to view, but bears evidence of having been prepared for the occasion. The illustrations are good, and the cover is beautiful (that is the word) as may be desired. —The Book and News Dealer.

"Chicago by Day and Night" is a useful and entertaining book in its 300 pages, which are profusely illustrated, will be found a quantity of valuable information not easily obtained elsewhere. —Omaha Bee.
 "Chicago by Day and Night" is a directory to the pleasure resorts in and around Chicago. The stranger who reads it will fully understand how best to see it and what to avoid seeing in his rounds. The dangers which lie in wait for the stranger about a great city are not at all exaggerated. The book is published in handsome style. —Chicago Daily Inter Ocean.
 "Chicago by Day and Night" is gotten up on an entirely new and original plan and differs from the ordinary cut and dried guide books. The stranger is told in a gossiping manner all about the attractions of the city, and by its perusal the readers can learn what kind of a time the different places will afford them. One can hardly think of a question that is not answered regarding the city. Owing to its having the merit of being as interesting as a novel, it will probably be bought by thousands who never intend to visit Chicago and the World's Fair. —Chicago Globe.

CHICAGO BY DAY AND NIGHT is printed in artistic style, upon the best paper. One dollar would be a low price for this book if it were asked and thousands of people would willingly pay that price after seeing it, rather than fail to get a copy. 300 Pages, 69 Illustrations; Price 50 cts. postpaid or 5 copies for $2.00, prepaid.

KRUMBS.

A ARWOOD, MICH., MAY 1893.

Join The Emorians!

Reader would you like to join the SOCIETY OF THE EMORIANS. It will cost you nothing.

In union there is strength and success. The Society of the Emorians is a fraternal organization, to assist in consummating the great and imperative objects of humanity.

Members are bound together more firmly than are the ordinary public—they are to take especial pains to accommodate each other—to correspond with and exhibit such actions of fraternal obligations as will make each person perceive the benefits from their admission to this Society. Members are located in all parts of the U. S., and Canada, and their peculiar respect and attention to each other is a means of facilitating various beneficial results—each should impart any information which another may desire, which pertains to their own section, etc., or which may lend to assist one or more of the members.

There are no obnoxious preliminaries to admission to this Society nor any tedious appendages after you are a member. If you wish to become a member, simply send a letter to the Treasurer, stating your desire to become a member.

The objects of the Society are briefly and tersely expressed by "FRATERNAL KINDNESS"

There are no exceptions made to sex, nationality, color or religion, and there is nothing pertaining to this Society to conflict with any principle or obligation.

ALL EMORIANS are agents for THE EMORIAN POWDER. It is the most wonderful medicine on earth! You simply mix one fourth of a teaspoonful in a little cold water, when it is transformed into a pleasant nectar and elixir of life, curing Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Malaria, Scrofula or any Humor. Rheumatism, Headache, Constipation, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Blotches, Pimples, etc.

This remedy contains no alcohol or other poison and has none of the repulsive pills. It is nothing but Roots and Herbs. Try it.

It counteracts the abuses of the body from perverting Nature; it pleasantly and quietly drives the cause of all disease from the body; parasites and disease germs cannot live where it is used. It gives a good complexion, embonpoint and beauty; it rebuilds the wasted nerves and tissues by causing the stomach to furnish nutrition; instead of racking and tormenting the stomach and bowels, it instantly gives a pleasant and cheering lift to Nature. Numerous testimonials prove it to be the panacea for all diseases.

WE WILL MAIL a neat tin box full to any address in the U. S. postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cts. You can get it of any Emorian, or at wholesale of the President or Treasurer of the Emorian Order.

CORRESPONDENCE.

There are many men doing business on small capital who could do better with a partner. Many overworked doctors and lawyers who want assistants, many colleges and schools requiring teachers, many men and women who would like life partners, and many who wish introduction or correspondence for numerous other reasons. All are sure to find someone wishing to correspond for all such purposes, by advertising in these columns. All persons of good moral character, who will furnish reference when required are invited to insert an advertisement.

We have lady and gentlemen advertisers of many nationalities and of all ages, who are looking for congenial correspondents.

No matter what the object, or how particular you are, we feel sure you will eventually find the one you wish, through this means.

Remember, you can judge far better of a person's character and disposition by a short correspondence than by a long personal acquaintance, as in letter writing there is not that bashfulness or backwardness of expressing themselves that we often see in an ordinary acquaintance; but a person writing to another will generally write out unconsciously their true character, both in their hand-writing and their mode of expression.

We are careful to avoid any stationery calculated to attract attention. Write us for particulars. Address, Box 1, Agrwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

To THOSE WHO WANT BADGES. We have a few Solid Silver hand engraved badges in form of Scarf Pin, can be placed on the lapel of coat, on a bow for Ladies or in any way you choose. While they last we will send them to any member sending 25 cents in silver or postal note. No stamps.

Answers to Questions.

We have quite a number of enquiries about charters for Local Lodges, will say to obtain Charter for a Local Lodge, it will be necessary to have at least four members of the second or official degree, to apply for a charter and hold the offices. Members of the second degree can obtain all necessary information from this office. Where there are not four members of the second degree, they can organize without a charter by putting in their application and as soon as they have the necessary number to fill the offices, the charter will be granted. If answers to questions are wanted by mail, send self addressed stamped envelopes.

To those who write send me KRUMBS regular, we say we shall be glad to do so if you send us the price of subscription, viz.: fifty cents a year. We send a sample copy to each new member, sometimes three or four, but if you wish it regular, you must subscribe.

We are asked by someone every mail to refer them to some brother or sister for correspondence for some special purpose, mostly for the purpose of mutual benefit and pastime, though often for business purposes. These enquiries come from old and young, married and single, male and female, and for all sorts of reasons. In order to be able to select proper correspondents, we send out blanks to each member. The blanks are all alike. Most of them are returned, but a few are retained, and we have no record of their personality, we hope all will understand by this why they are sent out and fill out and return them.

A few have asked if ladies are eligible for membership, we say certainly. We think the ladies generally make the best members, taking more interest in the prosperity of the order than the male members. Bring them in by all means.

Some ask if they have to be agents for the sale of Emorian Powders and canvass in order to be members. In reply we say NO only as it is supposed every member knows where they can be procured, they would be kind enough to send for a box or give the address where to send to any one who might inquire for them, thus being in a manner an agent.

All Emorians who wish can have the Powders at wholesale rates, by the dozen or more and keep them on hand, they are a good medicine for old and young, and pleasant to take and we would like to have all try them. They will be supplied at wholesale, or by the single box free by mail, by either the President or at this office by the Treasurer, the prices being always the same.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them, we say, certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be made very sorry it was ever written.

There are quite a number of letters for publication which we shall be obliged to leave out of this issue but some of them may appear in our next or some future issue.

There are quite a number of members who will miss the next number of KRUMBS unless they subscribe. We cannot run an extra edition of our paper and give subscriptions away. We are sorry we are obliged to ask it, but we think it but right that all should be treated alike, therefore all must pay or go without it. If any member is unable to pay and will write to us, we will show them how they can get it free.

THE HERALD.

In answer to some who inquire if we run an Intelligence Bureau. We try to refer all members who make reasonable requests to such other members as we think may need assistants, partners, or to purchase or sell real estate, stores or business of any kind, etc. This we do free and often are also willing to assist otherwise but we do not profess to run an intelligence bureau.

This paper, though the official organ of the Order of Emorians, is open to all people for subscription or advertisements, and while no Emorian is under any obligation whatever to subscribe for it or use its advertising columns, we shall be pleased to have them do so and believe they will be benefitted in many ways by so doing.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY—Subscription price fifty cents a year in advance. All advertisements must be paid for at the rate of one cent a word for first insertion and one-half cent a word for each time after the first. For special rates on time or large advertising write to KRUMBS PUB CO.

We have only a few copies of KRUMBS of the March and April numbers, containing the list of names of the members of the order from 1 to 400, also the first part of the Constitution and the story of the Hermit. As long as they last we will send them to those who want them for 5c. a copy, or 10c. for the two numbers.

The Story of Dr. Emery or the Hermit of the Evergreens.

The Portrait of Dr. Emery as a
Young Man.

DR. EMERY THE HERMIT OF THE EVERGREENS.

Blakely now pursued his way to the depot and with his eyes looking downward in meditation, walked to the rendezvous of the hackmen, and long and quietly conversed with one who seemed to be an old acquaintance; at the end of their long talk, Blakely walked away saying, "Five hundred dollars remember."

It was about a week after that, Mrs. Robt. Verne was returning from a visit to some friends in New York. She had taken with her Eda Verne her only child, a little girl of about two years of age. As Mrs. Verne alighted from the train she was met by a hackman who informed her that her husband had sent him to convey her and the child to their home. Mrs. Verne of course accepted, but noticed that the hack was driven with great speed, and through streets which were strange to her, and after half an hours time she inquired of the driver if he was not near the end of the journey. He refused to answer and urged the horses onward, she became terrified. It was now evident that she was the victim of foul play. Powerless, she could only await her doom, and Eda, what was to become of her? But now the hack had halted before an old dingy broken down building in a wild looking country place. "Get out, you and your child," gruffly ejaculated the hackman.

"Bring her in Jack," cried a voice, "but the young one must go elsewhere, so that it cannot be found, but use it kindly," Mrs. Verne heard this with horror. It was all plain to her now. Blakely was seeking revenge. He had selected this means to make Robert Verne miserable. He was to imprison her and abduct the child.

"Mrs Verne," said a voice "you will be kindly treated, but you must be imprisoned. Come to this room, it is to be your home for many months."

Weeks and months passed by. Telegrams were sent, detectives were at work, but the half crazed Robt. Verne was no nearer finding his lost wife and child. She and the child had left her friends in New York all safe, that was all.

Blakely was arrested but nothing was proved.

We will now return to the doctor. It was a warm summer day, there was a dead calm in the air, the pine boughs drooped lazily and the flowers of the field relaxed their forms and quietly waited for the cool atmosphere of the evening hour to revive them; the quietude was soon broken, however, by the appearance of a man bearing in his arms a little child. Upon nearer approach the man was seen to be masked. He came within a few yards of the tree under which the doctor was sitting, then standing the child down on the ground, cried out, "take her, and keep her!" was gone into the depth of the forest, and the reverberating words of the stranger and the little child standing and gazing wonderingly about her, were all that was left.

There was but one thing to do, the doctor must take her and keep the little child, he could not see her suffer, and he knew not where, nor to whom she belonged.

He took her and cared for her, yes, he even learned to love her as his own. Her sunny hair, bright eyes of heaven's own blue, and charming face and quaint childish manners had captivated the old doctor.

The little girl soon became at home in the charming woodland spot, and as she grew older she roamed the fields in summer and gathered herbs and culled flowers. In winter she would sit beside the doctor before the fire place and sing him the songs which he had learned her, she read the pictures in the fire, and as the cold wind whistled and shrieked through the trees without she uttered thanks that she was safe and warm within.

Robert Verne has suffered much in the few years past. He had recovered his wife as we will relate, but Eda was still lost. Blackly had divulged the secret of Mrs. Verne's imprisonment to one of his pals in a bar-room, not knowing that anyone was within hearing, but as luck would have it, Lije was in a front shop and overheard the conversation. You can easily imagine the result. The location of the prison of Mrs. Verne being known, the officers of the law set her free and Blackly was imprisoned.

Robt. Verne did not resume his hunting adventures for several years. When he did of course he found Eda, now quite a girl and Queen of the Evergreen Forest and the pride of old Dr. Emery.

The hired accomplice of Blackly's had unknowingly left Eda with a friend of her father, and here he found her after years of separation.

Later there were happy changes. The old doctor went to live with the broker. Blackly was released from prison and reformed and lastly as a finale a glorious reunion party was given, prominent at which was Eda, Mr. and Mrs. Verne, Lije, Bob, Blackly and the doctor. There is a thrilling sequel to this story which we cannot give at present.

The attachment which had sprung up between Eda Verne and Bob Livingston (formerly Bad Boy Bob,) furnishes the love theme, and the romantic Emery Island again becomes the rendezvous of note. A society called the Emorians also becomes of interest.

Constitution,

FOR LOCAL LODGES OF THE SOCIETY OF EMORIANS.

E

ARTICLE I.

This Lodge shall be known as Lodge No., of, State of, working under a charter granted by the Grand Lodge of the Society of Emorians. Dated the day of, 18

ARTICLE II.

This Lodge shall be composed only of members, * duly elected by ballot at a regular meeting, or a special meeting, especially called for the purpose, and proper notice given, and who have taken the obligation, and complied with the requirements of the Grand Lodge and this Lodge.

*There may be inserted White, Male or Female, or other distinctions approved by the Grand Lodge.

ARTICLE III.

The Lodge shall assemble on each Thursday, before the last Monday, on or before each full moon, for the transaction of business; and no important business shall be transacted at other meetings, unless due notice is given of the intention, and voted by a two-thirds vote of the members.

ARTICLE IV.

OFFICERS AND THEIR DUTIES.

At the first regular meeting of a new Lodge, and at the last regular meeting previous to July first in each year, there shall be elected from 2d, 3d or 4th degree members, a Worthy Master, a Worthy Chief, a Scribe and a Purser; and at the option of the Lodge, a Junior Scribe and a Junior Purser, but the election may be postponed by a two-thirds vote, to the next meeting, or called at a previous meeting.

2—Such election shall be under the supervision of a person appointed by the President.

3—Upon being declared elected, the officers shall sign and file with the Herald of the Grand Lodge:

I,, having been declared elected to the office of, in Lodge No., of, State of, do hereby promise that I will perform the duties of said office to the best of my ability, and support and maintain the Constitution, Laws, Rules and Regulations of the Grand Lodge and this Lodge.

And thereupon may assume the duties of the office.

4—The duties of officers will be as laid down in Ritual, and approved by the Grand Lodge.

5—The Worthy Master, upon assuming the duties of the office, will appoint a Senior Warden and 1st Lieutenant, and, at the option of the Lodge, a Junior Warden and 3d Lieut.

6—The Worthy Chief, upon assuming the duties of the office, will appoint a 2d Lieutenant, a Senior and Junior Watch, and at the option of the Lodge, a 4th Lieutenant.

ARTICLE V.

1—All applications for membership in this Lodge, shall be made in the following form, viz:

I,, having examined the Constitution of your Lodge, and of the Grand Lodge of the Society of Emorians, am willing to yield obedience thereto, if accepted; and hereby make application for admission as a member. My Grand Lodge is No. Signed this day of, A. D. 18, applicant. Presented by 2—All applications, when presented, must be accompanied by the initiation fee of, which, if the application be not accepted, will be returned.

3—All applications must be referred to a committee of three members, who will indorse on the same the word approved, or, disapproved, and sign the same.

4—After being reported upon by the committee, all applications must be balloted for by white and black ballots; white to elect, black to reject, and if three or more black ballots are cast, the candidate will be considered rejected, and unless reconsidered at the same meeting, may not be balloted for again for a space of three months.

5—All members present will vote, except upon a valid excuse being given, they may be excused by the Master.

6—If the candidates shall fail to present themselves for initiation for four months, without being excused by the Master of the Lodge, they shall only be accepted after being again balloted for, and paying a fine of $1. And no candidate shall be initiated at the same meeting they may be elected, without a three fourths vote of those present.

7—Any member wilfully and knowingly making known to any person not a member, the fact of any person having made application for membership in this lodge, before a ballot is taken, or afterwards, if rejected, shall be considered guilty of conduct unworthy of a member, and be punished as a competent authority may direct.

ARTICLE VI.

1—Any person who may have a card of recommendation from another lodge, upon depositing the same in this lodge, and paying a fee of, may be balloted for if no objection be raised, and if elected, may be received as a member. If objection is made, the application will be referred to a committee as in the case of a new member.

2—Any Grand Lodge Officer upon duty, shall be entitled to admission to the lodge room. And if visiting the lodge officially, shall be received by the lodge with due honors.

3—Members of the Fourth Degree and visiting members from other lodges who have the proper pass-words, may be admitted to seats in the lodge room.

1—If the lodge shall so elect, they may hold the lodge open to all persons, but no ballot or trial, or any business which might cause injury to any, shall be done in open lodge.

ARTICLE VII.

1 There shall be three funds in the lodge. The one called the General Fund to be used for all ordinary purposes of rent, printing, care taking, etc. The second or Benefit Fund, shall be held for the purpose of benefits only. The third or Charity Fund for any charity or extra purposes, the lodge may determine by a two-thirds vote.

2 The first or general fund shall be all fees for initiation and assessment of — upon each member each quarter of three months.

3 The second or benefit fund shall be an assess of — upon each benefit member only, and shall be used for no other purpose. Any member in good standing who pays benefit dues and is not in arrears for dues will be considered a benefit member, and if by accident or unavoidable sickness they shall be unable to care for themselves, they shall be paid out of this fund the sum of per week. Upon the death of a member be paid the sum of as a funeral benefit, provided if the funds be insufficient to pay the said benefits, or the lodge shall at any time consider it expedient, they may temporarily suspend the payment in any or all cases.

4 The third or Charity Fund shall be all moneys or valuables presented for that purpose and all fines shall be used to assist worthy members or their families and such purposes as the lodge may direct.

5—If a member of a distant lodge shall be in need of assistance it would be a duty to see them provided for, upon showing a proper proof of membership, and correspond with the lodge to which they may belong.

ARTICLE VIII.

1—Any member who may wish a membership card, may apply to the lodge for the same, and it shall be put to a vote, and if granted and they are clear upon the books, upon the payment of one dollar into the Charity Fund they may be granted such a card.

2—Where it is necessary to appoint a committee of assistance, such members others being equal, shall be preferred.

3—This card in the possession of a member from abroad shall be entitled to especial consideration and shall be in force for six months from date as a proof of membership wherever they may be.

4—Any member may take a card for as long a time as they may choose by paying into the Charity Fund the sum of one dollar for each six months and paying their regular dues to the date of expiration.

5—This card shall be signed by the Master and Scribe and bear the impress of the seal thereon.

6—Any member who may wish a withdrawal card may apply to the lodge for the same and it shall be put to a vote and if granted, upon payment of one dollar into the General Fund, and all dues to date, shall be given such card duly signed by the Master and Scribe and bearing the impress of the seal of the lodge and on a form as adopted by Grand Loewe.

7—This card shall entitle the holder to apply to any other lodge as a member, or to receive all consideration as a member of his lodge the same as if in active membership, to visit other lodges and receive assistance if need be for the space of one year from date.

ARTICLE IX.

1—The officers of the lodge shall constitute a visiting committee, whose duty it shall be to visit the sick and relieve distress of members of this lodge or any other worthy emorian, and render them such aid as may be in keeping with the circumstances; calling if necessary upon members of the society for assistance in caring for such as may require it.

2—In emergencies the Master by and with the consent of the elective officers or a majority thereof may appropriate money in reasonable bounds from the Charity Fund, explaining the circumstances and stating the amount at the next regular meeting to the members of the lodge.

3—Any member who shall refuse without reasonable excuse to render assistance to another when called upon by the officers as such committee shall be deemed guilty of conduct unbecoming an Emorian, and liable to such fine or punishment as the case may call for.

ARTICLE X.

1—Any member who has neglected to pay dues for the space of nine months shall not be entitled to receive the pass-word or be privileged to speak or vote in the lodge, but may at the discretion of the Chief be admitted to the lodge room until suspended.

2—Any member who is in arrears for one year or more and has been duly notified by the Scribe and still neglects to pay, may be suspended from the lodge and reported upon blacklist to the Grand Lodge and shall not be admitted to any other lodge.

3—A member suspended for non-payment of dues may be reinstated by vote of the lodge within one year upon payment of dues and a fine of one dollar for the Charity Fund.

4—Every officer who absents himself from his duties without an acceptable excuse therefore shall be subject to such fine as the lodge, in reason, may require to be paid into the Charity Fund.

5—Any member who shall in the ante room or in the lodge room use indecent or disreputable language or refuse to obey a proper request by officers, shall be subject to a fine for each offense, in no case more than five dollars into the Charity Fund.

7—If any member divulge the name or fact of a member voting or speaking against a candidate for membership or make public any business of the lodge to the detriment of another they shall be liable to such fine as the lodge may in reason require to be paid into the Charity Fund.

9—Every member shall be entitled to a fair trial, and if they choose to resist a fine, may demand a trial, and upon trial if they feel that injustice is done them, may appeal to the Grand Lodge.

ARTICLE XI.

1—No smoking or liquors of any kind shall be allowed in the lodge room or any room adjoining it while under the control of the lodge.

2—All members are enjoined to treat each other with due courtesy and respect; avoiding all ungenerous personal allusions and sarcastic language, by which the feelings of a member be wounded and fraternity be wounded and it shall be the duty of the officers to advise everything to the contrary.

ARTICLE XII.

This constitution may be added to, altered or amended by a two thirds vote only after being proposed in writing and brought to the attention of the of the lodge two meetings before it is acted upon and receiving the sanction of the Grand Lodge.

Join The Emorians!

Reader would you like to join the SOCIETY OF THE EMORIANS. It will cost you nothing.

In union there is strength and success. The Society of the Emorians is a fraternal organization, to assist in consummating the great and imperative objects of humanity.

Members are bound together more firmly than are the ordinary public—they are to take especial pains to accommodate each other—to correspond with and exhibit such actions of fraternal obligations as will make each person perceive the benefits from their admission to this Society. Members are located in all parts of the U. S., and Canada, and their peculiar respect and attention to each other is a means of facilitating various beneficial results—each should impart any information which another may desire, which pertains to their own section, etc., or which may lend to assist one or more of the members.

There are no obnoxious preliminaries to admission to this Society nor any tedious appendages after you are a member. If you wish to become a member, simply send a letter to the Treasurer, stating your desire to become a member.

The objects of the Society are briefly and tersely expressed by "FRATERNAL KINDNESS"

There are no exceptions made to sex, nationality, color or religion, and there is nothing pertaining to this Society to conflict with any principle or obligation.

ALL EMORIANS are agents for THE EMORIAN POWDER. It is the most wonderful medicine on earth! You simply mix one fourth of a teaspoonful in a little cold water, when it is transformed into a pleasant nectar and elixir of life, curing Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Malaria, Scrofula or any Humor. Rheumatism, Headache, Constipation, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Blotches, Pimples, etc.

This remedy contains no alcohol or other poison and has none of the repulsive pills. It is nothing but Roots and Herbs. Try it.

It counteracts the abuses of the body from perverting Nature; it pleasantly and quietly drives the cause of all disease from the body; parasites and disease germs cannot live where it is used. It gives a good complexion, embonpoint and beauty; it rebuilds the wasted nerves and tissues by causing the stomach to furnish nutrition; instead of racking and tormenting the stomach and bowels, it instantly gives a pleasant and cheering lift to Nature. Numerous testimonials prove it to be the panacea for all diseases.

WE WILL MAIL a neat tin box full to any address in the U. S. postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cts. You can get it of any Emorian, or at wholesale of the President or Treasurer of the Emorian Order.

CORRESPONDENCE.

There are many men doing business on small capital who could do better with a partner. Many overworked doctors and lawyers who want assistants, many colleges and schools requiring teachers, many men and women who wish introduction or correspondence for numerous other reasons. All are sure to find someone wishing to correspond for all such purposes, by advertising in our columns. All persons of good moral character, who will furnish reference when required are invited to insert an advertisement.

We have lady and gentlemen advertisers of many nationalities and of all ages, who are looking for congenial correspondents.

No matter what the object, or how particular you are, we feel sure you will eventually find the one you wish, through this means.

Remember, you can judge far better of a person's character and disposition by a short correspondence than by a long personal acquaintance, as in letter writing there is not that bashfulness or backwardness of expressing themselves that we often see in an ordinary acquaintance; but a person writing to another will generally write out unconsciously their true character, both in their hand-writing and their mode of expression.

We are careful to avoid any stationery calculated to attract attention. Write us for particulars. Address, Mutual Friend, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

To THOSE WHO WANT BADGES. We have a few Solid Silver hand engraved badges in form of Scarf Pin, can be placed on the lapel of coat, on a bow for Ladies or in any way you choose. While they last we will send them to any member sending 25 cents in silver or postal note. No stamps.

Answers to Questions.

If answers to questions are wanted by mail, send self addressed stamped envelopes.

To those who write send me KRUMBS regular, we say we shall be glad to do so if you send us the price of subscription, viz.: fifty cents a year. We send a sample copy to each new member, sometimes three or four, but if you wish it regular, you must subscribe.

We are asked by someone every mail to refer them to some brother or sister for correspondence for some special purpose, mostly for the purpose of mutual benefit and pastime, though often for business purposes. These enquiries come from old and young, married and single, male and female, and for all sorts of reasons. In order to be able to select proper correspondents, we send out blanks to each member. The blanks are all alike. Most of them are returned, but a few are retained, and we have no record of their personality, we hope all will understand by this why they are sent out and fill out and return them.

A few have asked if ladies are eligible for membership, we say certainly. We think the ladies generally make the best members, taking more interest in the prosperity of the order than the male members. Bring them in by all means.

Some ask if they have to be agents for the sale of Emorian Powders and canvass in order to be members. In reply we say NO only as it is supposed every member knows where they can be procured, they would be kind enough to send for a box or give the address where to send to any one who might inquire for them, thus being in a manner an agent.

All Emorians who wish can have the Powders at wholesale rates, by the dozen or more and keep them on hand, they are a good medicine for old and young, and pleasant to take and we would like to have all try them. They will be supplied at wholesale, or by the single box free by mail, by either the President or at this office by the Treasurer, the prices being always the same.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them, we say, certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be made very sorry it was ever written.

There are quite a number of letters for publication which we shall be obliged to leave out of this issue but some of them may appear in our next or some future issue.

There are quite a number of members who will miss the next number of KRUMBS unless they subscribe. We cannot run an extra edition of our paper and give subscriptions away. We are sorry we are obliged to ask it, but we think it but right that all should be treated alike, therefore all must pay or go without it. If any member is unable to pay and will write to us, we will show them how they can get it free.

In answer to some who inquire if we run an Intelligence Bureau. We try to refer all members who make reasonable requests to such other members as we think may need assistants, partners, or to purchase or sell real estate, stores or business of any kind, etc. This we do free and often are also willing to assist otherwise but we do not profess to run an intelligence bureau.

A Bit of Comfort.

Little Johnny—Was I born on a Thanksgiving day?

Mamma—Yes, but if you keep on being such a bad boy I don't know what I'll have to be thankful for.

Little Johnny—Well, you can be thankful I isn't twins anyhow.—Good News.

Not Certain.

Little Girl—I am afraid this isn't the kind of tea mamma wants.

Grocer—Why?

Little Girl—Well, she said she always paid two prices here, and I've only paid one for this.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Tribute to the Sex All Over the World.

Ledyard, the great traveler, says that among all nations women adorn themselves more than men, but that wherever found they are the same kind, civil, humane and tender beings, inclined to be cheerful, timorous and modest. He has found the women on the plains of inhospitable Denmark, through honest Sweden, frozen Lapland, churlish Finland and unprincipled Russia more hospitable and generous than men, full of courtesy, fond of society, but industrious, economical and ingenious. And whenever the traveler in the language of decency and friendship has asked a question of any woman, civilized or savage, he has always received a decent and friendly answer, while with men it is often otherwise.

Getting a Home.

She—So she married that baldheaded old scamp! Why, I heard he had been black-balled at every club in town.
He—That's why he married—for a home.—Life.

This paper, though the official organ of the Order of Emorians, is open to all people for subscription or advertisements, and while no Emorian is under any obligation whatever to subscribe for it or use its advertising columns, we shall be pleased to have them do so and believe they will be benefitted in many ways by so doing.

PUBLISHED MONTHLY—Subscription price fifty cents a year in advance. All advertisements must be paid for at the rate of one cent a word for first insertion and one-half cent a word for each time after the first. For special rates on time or large advertising write to KRUMBS PUB CO.

We have only a few copies of KRUMBS of the March and April numbers, containing the list of names of the members of the order from 1 to 400, also the first part of the Constitution and the story of the Hermit. As long as they last we will send them to those who want them for 5c. a copy, or 10c. for the two numbers.

The biggest paper of our size and the oldest paper of our age in Michigan. We started small but are growing rapidly. We are a healthy infant, young in years but old in circulation. Well begun is half done. We may never be rich but we are as independent as a chipmunk. We reach every part of this world and believe some of our friends carry it to another. We have no regular subscribers in the moon, but the man in the moon has been seen reading a copy through a big telescope. Our subscription price is fifty cents a year. No pay, no paper, consequence. Pay as you go readers. They take it because they want it and their number is constantly increasing. Too many advertisements is the only complaint of our readers. Others care most for the advertising. We are publishing this paper to buy bread and clothes for the children. We can't please everybody so we please ourselves. If you are pleased we are glad of it, if not, we can't help it, so we will accept all respectable cash paying advertising we can get, but no trust, "not by a jug full." Money may be sent by P. O. Money Order on Traverse City or Elk Rapids, by Adams or American Express Money Order, Postal Note or Cash in a registered letter, but no slow notes or back country bank checks.

They who by their trade would thrive, Must either bust or advertise.

Advertisers who have any doubts whether our paper is a paying medium, are invited to try it and see for themselves. "Prove the pudin by chewin the string." Others have done it and are satisfied. Mzy be you would like to address a few words to our army of readers. A sample copy and special rates will be sent to any who send us a copy of the advertisement they want inserted. It has satisfied others, it may you. KRUMBS PUB. CO., Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

We notice Brother Vandermark [E] No. 844, address Box 835, Ithica, N. Y., is doing a good work for the order. Being a good printer and doing an extensive mail business, he is doing a great deal in extending the membership of our order by judicious advertising.

Bro. Greenleaf Harrison [E] 396, circular distributor, address 150 Calvert St., Baltimore, Maryland, is also taking quite an active interest as well as a great many others. By explaining to their friends the benefits of fraternity and inducing them to join us, we sincerely thank all of you and believe you will receive your reward.

The Constitutions are now finished, adopted and in print. Any who wish a copy of either the Grand Lodge or Local Lodge constitution, can have one by writing for it. We have also a supply of the new form of blank applications for membership, for all who would like them. Write and say how many you need. We will take no offense if you enclose stamp for postage.

Owing to the space taken to publish the constitution and the list of names of the Emorian society, correspondence has been crowded out, but hereafter we shall try to make room for it and shall be glad to receive letters from all for publication. Criticize us, point out any defects, give us pointers and new ideas and make suggestions for the good of your order or the public, give us short letters straight to the point you wish to express, but no political or religious discussion or criticism. These only are barred out. Write plain and on one side of paper only. Strangers who have seen the paper for the first time, whether subscribers or not, are specially invited to write. By criticism we are shown our faults and can better learn to improve. We shall take no offense if you find fault with us, but don't flatter us too much.

Trying to Be Polite.

An old man rode up to the door of a Cumberland county postoffice on a gig. As soon as the postmaster spied the visitor he tore around behind the little c. of boxes, grabbed a letter and a paj. and darted out of doors at the same high rate of speed.

"Here's your mail, Mr. Smith. Little rainy, isn't it? Hope your ground's looking well," etc., until the old man tucked his mail under his leg and drove away.

The postmaster saw fit to explain a little when he came back. "That's one of the old seed Democrats of this town, and"—with a burst of confidence—"it always pays to be polite to them kind. I don't know as it will amount to anything, but it don't cost a cent, and," continued this rural diplomat, with a wan smile, "there ain't any signs of a new postmaster being appointed yet." All of which indicated the state of suspense of the fourth class postmasters in this devoted country.—Lewiston Journal.

The Largest Block of Coal.

An enormous cob of cannel coal was recently raised from the Abram collieries, Wigan, and sent by train to the Alexandra dock, Liverpool, for shipment to Boston. It is said to be the largest block of coal ever dug from the earth and weighs over 12 tons. It took nine months to hew it out of the seam. It is said that the cost of obtaining it was £1,000, or about £83 per ton. When raised, the cob was inclosed in a case of planks, the weight of cob and case being 13 tons 11 hundredweight. From Boston the coal will be conveyed by train to Chicago for the World's fair. There have also just been shipped from Liverpool several large blocks of salt rock from the Cheshire salt district. Some of them are skillfully carved into figures.—London Tit-Bits.

To Emorians.

You are members of an order that is honorable in all its appointments; pure and rich in all that commands the respect and esteem of mankind, with charity towards all, fraternal to a greater degree than any other society or organization in the world, seeking to cultivate in all the great principle of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of all mankind. We admit there are some not imbued with these principles but there are "black sheep" in every flock. In the great make up of the world it is necessarily so, else how would we distinguish the good and the beautiful, without comparison; but such "misfits" do not fix our status; the earnest members are the ones who stand out vividly in the light and give character in the eyes of those who do not number themselves with us. The people see in us an organization increasing in numbers constantly scattered broadcast over the face of the earth scattering sympathy and encouragement, soothing sorrows and lightening the pains of the suffering, carefully and tearfully soothing the dying and caring for the orphans. What more can we do? Of such an order with such glorious principles and with a future giving promise of an inimitable future; you have a right to be proud, then be in earnest for its honor, its enlargement and its development. If you have friends whom you honor and to whom this great good would be a boon, invite them to come with us and partake of its blessings.

The Emorian cause, a home for all, seeking what is true, honest, just, pure lovely and of good report, in any and every part of the world which our Father has created. "Fraternal Kindness" the watchword, "Let us help one another" the motto. Oh what happiness such a society is capable of. Here all descensions and strife are shut out, and the only rivalry is who can prove themselves the most worthy the love and respect of the brothers and sisters of the society. Who in this wide world can resist the invitation to come and be one of us. No dues are asked; only a promise and fraternal kindness to one another. Can there be anything in this world more enticing—yes brothers and sisters I come, by simply signing my name and address.

The Emorians as a fraternal society, carrying the banner "Let us help one another" and with "No dues unless you choose" constitute a society alike for all, both rich and poor. In union there is strength, in honesty is prosperity, are also mottoes of the society. What capabilities exist in such a union, none but those who try it can know how blessed is the privilege of friends all over the country and the privilege of correspondence with those we may regard as brothers and sisters, and if traveling, and being in a strange place, of meeting friends and perhaps of attending a Lodge of brothers and sisters, or in case of need of being cared for among strangers, by brothers and sisters, and knowing if need be when called from this earth, our loved ones left behind will be cared for by friends. God created us all alike, we are all his children, therefore, let all who will come and join us, even as he accepts all who will truly come. As our Father in Heaven makes no distinctions, but accepts all who sincerely come, far be it from us to deny admission to any admission, to any who come sincerely and with pure fraternal love for their fellow creatures, as our creator makes no distinction but showers rain and sunshine alike on people of all nations, tongues and creeds. We accept all as his children, meeting as brothers and sisters on neutral ground, admitting no disputes or political or religious discussions in our midst, but fostering fraternity and love of fellowman.

MAHOMED.

- A good Emorian
- Will not speak ill of another,
- Will spread no evil report,
- Will take the best possible view of another's misconduct,
- Will be prompted by our motto, "Let us help one another,"
- Will pity the deserving poor and hearken to the voice of the needy,
- Will try to make the world better by example, not preaching,
- Will be slow to anger and ready to forgive,
- Will guard the speech to do no injury to our order,
- Will keep proceedings of Lodges to themselves,
- Will avoid conduct that will bring disgrace to our order,
- Will try to extend the benefits of the order to new members.
- High as are the aims and pure and self sacrificing as are its motives and great as is the good it is distinct to accomplish, Emorianism is not religion. The sacred prerogative of religion is left for the Creator and the conscience of each. We seek to better the condition of all and inspire to a loftier and nobler action toward all God's creatures, extending the hand of fellowship in every good word and work.

A MEMBER.

The Society of Emorians I notice differs in several particulars from any of the old fraternal organizations. One special difference I notice is Woman Suffrage. All according to the constitution being on terms of equality without regard to sex. If I make no mistake in reading it a woman may hold any office to which elected and take any degree and vote in the Local Lodge or Grand Lodge on precisely the same footing as a man. Still it is allowed, if they shall choose that either the men or women may have a local lodge of their own, to which none are admitted of the opposite sex unless it be an official visitor of the Grand Lodge. There are several other points of difference I notice which I may call attention to some other time. If people only realized what an education can be gained in such a lodge room more would join. A member soon learns to rise and speak without embarrassment in any meeting on any topic. And especially for young men and women is the lodge well adapted not only on that account but as an educator of a taste for examining into rules of government and giving a right direction to the mind keeping them from places where they learn only evil.

EMORIAN CONVERT.

Questions Answered.

What do we have to do to get a charter? Answer. Get a blank from this office, then have it signed by nine members at least four of whom have taken the second degree, and forward it with one dollar to the Herald.

Are there any secrets in the society? Yes. In Local Lodges only, the password, signs of recognition, etc., and the names of applicants for admission, or of one who has been rejected is kept secret, but there is no secret formula or any other less secrets.

What benefits are paid to members? None, except to members of Local Lodges who pay dues for benefits, in the lodge, it is optional whether you be a member of a local or a non-benefit member. How can we get degree badges and what? Degree badges in any degree can be obtained of President Leach at from 25c. for white metal enameled, up according to quality. Write him.

KRUMBS.

AARWOOD, MICH., JULY, 1893.

Join The Emorians!

Reader would you like to join the SOCIETY OF THE EMORIANS. It will cost you nothing.

In union there is strength and success. The Society of the Emorians is a fraternal organization, to assist in consummating the great and imperative objects of humanity.

Members are bound together more firmly than are the ordinary public—they are to take especial pains to accommodate each other—to correspond with and exhibit such actions of fraternal obligations as will make each person perceive the benefits from their admission to this Society. Members are located in all parts of the U. S., and Canada, and their peculiar respect and attention to each other is a means of facilitating various beneficial results—each should impart any information which another may desire, which pertains to their own section, etc., or which may lend to assist one or more of the members.

There are no obnoxious preliminaries to admission to this Society nor any tedious appendages after you are a member. If you wish to become a member, simply send a letter to the Treasurer, stating your desire to become a member.

The objects of the Society are briefly and tersely expressed by "FRATERNAL KINDNESS"

There are no exceptions made to sex, nationality, color or religion, and there is nothing pertaining to this Society to conflict with any principle or obligation.

Badges this size and style except reversed, the branch being above instead of below the E, made of white or yellow metal and enameled in colors of the different colors can be obtained of Pres. Leach from 25c. up. Write to him for prices, etc.

ALL EMORIANS are agents for THE EMORIAN POWDER. It is the most wonderful medicine on earth! You simply mix one fourth of a teaspoonful in a little cold water, when it is transformed into a pleasant nectar and elixir of life, curing Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Malaria, Scrofula or any Humor. Rheumatism, Headache, Constipation, Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Blotches, Pimples, etc.

This remedy contains no alcohol or other poison and has none of the repulsive pills. It is nothing but Roots and Herbs. Try it.

It counteracts the abuses of the body from perverting Nature; it pleasantly and quietly drives the cause of all disease from the body; parasites and disease germs cannot live where it is used. It gives a good complexion, embonpoint and beauty; it rebuilds the wasted nerves and tissues by causing the stomach to furnish nutrition; instead of racking and tormenting the stomach and bowels, it instantly gives a pleasant and cheering lift to Nature. Numerous testimonials prove it to be the panacea for all diseases.

WE WILL MAIL a neat tin box full to any address in the U. S. postpaid, upon receipt of 25 cts. You can get it of any Emorian, or at wholesale of the President or Treasurer of the Emorian Order.

CORRESPONDENCE.

There are many men doing business on small capital who could do better with a partner. Many overworked doctors and lawyers who want assistants, many colleges and schools requiring teachers, many men and women who would like life partners, and many who wish introduction or correspondence for numerous other reasons. All are sure to find someone wishing to correspond for all such purposes, by advertising in our columns. All persons of good moral character, who will furnish reference when required are invited to insert an advertisement.

We have lady and gentlemen advertisers of many nationalities and of all ages, who are looking for congenial correspondents.

No matter what the object, or how particular you are, we feel sure you will eventually find the one you wish, through this means.

Remember, you can judge far better of a person's character and disposition by a short correspondence than by a long personal acquaintance, as in letter writing there is not that bashfulness or backwardness of expressing themselves that we often see in an ordinary acquaintance; but a person writing to another will generally write out unconsciously their true character, both in their hand-writing and their mode of expression.

We are careful to avoid any stationery calculated to attract attention. Write us for particulars. Address, Mutual Friend, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

To THOSE WHO WANT BADGES. We have a few Solid Silver hand engraved badges in form of Scarf Pin, can be placed on the lapel of coat, on a bow for Ladies or in any way you choose. While they last we will send them to any member sending 25 cents in silver or postal note. No stamps.

Answers to Questions.

If answers to questions are wanted by mail, send self addressed stamped envelopes.

To those who write send me KRUMBS regular, we say we shall be glad to do so if you send us the price of subscription, viz.: fifty cents a year. We send a sample copy to each new member, sometimes three or four, but if you wish it regular, you must subscribe.

We are asked by someone every mail to refer them to some brother or sister for correspondence for some special purpose, mostly for the purpose of mutual benefit and pastime, though often for business purposes. These enquiries come from old and young, married and single, male and female, and for all sorts of reasons. In order to be able to select proper correspondents, we send out blanks to each member. The blanks are all alike. Most of them are returned, but a few are retained, and we have no record of their personality, we hope all will understand by this why they are sent out and fill out and return them.

A few have asked if ladies are eligible for membership, we say certainly. We think the ladies generally make the best members, taking more interest in the prosperity of the order than the male members. Bring them in by all means.

Some ask if they have to be agents for the sale of Emorian Powders and invass in order to be members. In reply we say NO only as it is supposed every member knows where they can be procured, they would be kind enough to send for a box or give the address where to send to any one who might inquire for them, thus being in a manner an agent.

All Emorians who wish can have the Powders at wholesale rates, by the dozen or more and keep them on hand, they are a good medicine for old and young, and pleasant to take and we would like to have all try them. They will be supplied at wholesale, or by the single box free by mail, by either the President or at this office by the Treasurer, the prices being always the same.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them, we say, certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be made very sorry it was ever written.

There are quite a number of letters for publication which we shall be obliged to leave out of this issue but some of them may appear in our next or some future issue.

There are quite a number of members who will miss the next number of KRUMBS unless they subscribe. We cannot run an extra edition of our paper and give subscriptions away. We are sorry we are obliged to ask it, but we think it but right that all should be treated alike, therefore all must pay or go without it. If any member is unable to pay and will write to us, we will show them how they can get it free.

HIS BABY FACE.

It's Disfigurement Brought Happiness to James Ellis.

"Jimmy Ellis is indeed a funny boy," laughed Julia Costello to a friend.

"They say he is head over heels in love with you—follows you, is to be found somewhere near you most of his time. They tell me you have completely bewitched the boy," rejoined the friend.

"I must confess he seems to act very foolishly. No matter what I do or say, or ignore him, I can't scare him away. I have never done the slightest thing to encourage him," Julia soberly replied.

"What's the matter with the boy, then, that he hangs around you so much?" the friend asked.

"I don't know," Julia slowly said, and added in a wistful manner, "I wonder whether Jimmie will ever be a man—will ever look like a man."

"He's a pretty boy, anyhow," laughed the friend.

"Pretty as a baby," said Julia, joining in the laugh.

The subject of this conversation was not a boy, but a man of thirty years. A man of full stature, yet with the expressionless face of a baby. It was round and full. The skin was of a soft pink color, with a tinge of darker color in the cheeks. The eyes were large and of a light blue, and opened in an innocent surprise when their owner was spoken to. He had a little chubby nose and a small mouth. There were no lines or shadows on his face.

He was a pretty man; so pretty that his face was repulsive to man and to womankind. There was nothing about the face to counteract the seemingly expressionless vacancy there. Strangers continually asked: "Who is the man with the baby face?" The reply was always Jimmy Ellis. The man James Ellis was swallowed up in the boy Jimmy.

Another characteristic heightened the effect of this boyishness. His voice was pitched an octave higher than is usual in men. He spoke in a light, chattering tone that went off into a screech. He talked and laughed like a woman. All his male associates as he became older grew away from him, deriding the man with a baby face and a woman's voice. Womankind seemed ever to be making sport of him.

James Ellis was extremely sensitive in respect to these characteristics. He was conscious of the fun and sport others were having at his expense. In consequence he gave humanity a wide berth. While he did so, he hated that big baby face of his. It made life miserable to him. It angered him at times to hear his own voice. He had tried in vain to coax a growth of whiskers to hide the face. A tuft of yellow hair here and there was all that made its appearance. In despair he had given up any further attempts in this direction.

Notwithstanding these outward signs, James Ellis was a man of true, honest and honorable instincts and aspirations. He delighted in the pleasures of a robust manhood. He was an all-round athlete. There was not a better horse-back rider in the town in which he lived. His mother had died when he was a child. His father died when he reached his majority, leaving him a home in the Pennsylvania town of B—and two farms lying near the village. An aunt had been installed, as housekeeper over the home.

James Ellis was a better manager of the farms than his father had been before him. He gave them his constant attention. There was no part of the work on the farm he could not do. Those under him knew what he expected from them. James Ellis not only knew how to manage the farms better than his father, but knew how to live and enjoy life and that which he made better.

There was not a better library in the town than his; he had collected it himself. He was a lover of art. James Ellis was a talented man. His large hunting dog heard many a scolloquy that for originality and brightness would have rivaled the mental caliber of by far the greater number of his fellow-townsmen.

James Ellis' life had been, however, a failure, as he looked at it—an unhappy failure—a miserable existence, caused by a baby face and a woman's voice.

His greatest happiness, and at the same time his greatest unhappiness, was his love for Julia Costello. He was not content unless near her. He worshiped her. It was the love of a strong man; the only love of a lonely life. He had known her from childhood and had always loved her. He loved her because he could not conceive how life could be complete without her. Because he believed that with woman—the best gift to man—this woman, could he alone reach the great blessings of existence—home, love, happiness. He was miserable because he had been and was no more to Julia than "Jimmy." He felt that, with his baby face and woman's voice, he had failed to awaken the chords of love, to sound the depths of her heart. She liked him, respected him, but he was only "Jiamy," her boy playmate.

Shortly after the conversation between Julia and her friend, James Ellis succeeded in gaining a long-looked-for opportunity. Taking Julia's hand in his, he said, in his squeaky voice:

"Julia, darling, I love thee, I love thee. This love is the sweetest, the only thing on earth that makes life worth the living to me. Be mine. Love me—marry me."

Julia could not help but see the ridic-

HIS BABY FACE.

It's Disfigurement Brought Happiness to James Ellis.

"Jimmy Ellis is indeed a funny boy," laughed Julia Costello to a friend.

"They say he is head over heels in love with you—follows you, is to be found somewhere near you most of his time. They tell me you have completely bewitched the boy," rejoined the friend.

"I must confess he seems to act very foolishly. No matter what I do or say, or ignore him, I can't scare him away. I have never done the slightest thing to encourage him," Julia soberly replied.

"What's the matter with the boy, then, that he hangs around you so much?" the friend asked.

"I don't know," Julia slowly said, and added in a wistful manner, "I wonder whether Jimmie will ever be a man—will ever look like a man."

"He's a pretty boy, anyhow," laughed the friend.

"Pretty as a baby," said Julia, joining in the laugh.

The subject of this conversation was not a boy, but a man of thirty years. A man of full stature, yet with the expressionless face of a baby. It was round and full. The skin was of a soft pink color, with a tinge of darker color in the cheeks. The eyes were large and of a light blue, and opened in an innocent surprise when their owner was spoken to. He had a little chubby nose and a small mouth. There were no lines or shadows on his face.

He was a pretty man; so pretty that his face was repulsive to man and to womankind. There was nothing about the face to counteract the seemingly expressionless vacuity there. Strangers continually asked: "Who is the man with the baby face?" The reply was always Jimmy Ellis. The man James Ellis was swallowed up in the boy Jimmy.

Another characteristic heightened the effect of this boyishness. His voice was pitched an octave higher than is usual in men. He spoke in a light, chattering tone that went off into a screech. He talked and laughed like a woman. All his male associates as he became older grew away from him, deriding the man with a baby face and a woman's voice. Womankind seemed ever to be making sport of him.

James Ellis was extremely sensitive in respect to these characteristics. He was conscious of the fun and sport others were having at his expense. In consequence he gave humanity a wide berth. While he did so, he hated that big baby face of his. It made life miserable to him. It angered him at times to hear his own voice. He had tried in vain to coax a growth of whiskers to hide the face. A tuft of yellow hair here and there was all that made its appearance. In despair he had given up any further attempts in this direction.

Notwithstanding these outward signs, James Ellis was a man of true, honest and honorable instincts and aspirations. He delighted in the pleasures of a robust manhood. He was an all-round athlete. There was not a better horse-back rider in the town in which he lived. His mother had died when he was a child. His father died when he reached his majority, leaving him a home in the Pennsylvania town of B— and two farms lying near the village. An aunt had been installed, as housekeeper over the home.

James Ellis was a better manager of the farms than his father had been before him. He gave them his constant attention. There was no part of the work on the farm he could not do. Those under him knew what he expected from them. James Ellis not only knew how to manage the farms better than his father, but knew how to live and enjoy life and that which he made better.

There was not a better library in the town than his; he had collected it himself. He was a lover of art. James Ellis was a talented man. His large hunting dog heard many a soliloquy that for originality and brightness would have rivaled the mental caliber of by far the greater number of his fellow-townsmen.

James Ellis' life had been, however, a failure, as he looked at it—an unhappy failure—a miserable existence, caused by a baby face and a woman's voice.

His greatest happiness, and at the same time his greatest unhappiness, was his love for Julia Costello. He was not content unless near her. He worshiped her. It was the love of a strong man; the only love of a lonely life. He had known her from childhood and had always loved her. He loved her because he could not conceive how life could be complete without her. Because he believed that with woman—the best gift to man—this woman, could he alone reach the great blessings of existence—home, love, happiness. He was miserable because he had been and was no more to Julia than "Jimmy." He felt that, with his baby face and woman's voice, he had failed to awaken the chords of love, to sound the depths of her heart. She liked him, respected him, but he was only "Jimmy," her boy playmate.

Shortly after the conversation between Julia and her friend, James Ellis succeeded in gaining a long-looked-for opportunity. Taking Julia's hand in his, he said, in his squeaky voice:

"Julia, darling, I love thee, I love thee. This love is the sweetest, the only thing on earth that makes life worth the living to me. Be mine. Love me—marry me."

Julia could not help but see the ridicalous in the voice, in the face, interrupted him several times & spoke, saying:

"Oh, don't, Jimmy! Don't, Jimmy!" Silence ensued. He began again: "Won't you give me your answer? Can't you love me?"

"Oh, don't! Oh, don't, Jimmy!" Julia again pleaded.

"Can I hope? Tell me something," James Ellis urged.

"I hardly know what to say," Julia answered. "I have never thought such a thing as you have seems funny. You seem but the boy I played with yet. I hardly know whether to bid you to hope or not to hope. I might answer better in a month."

"I'll wait the month," the man readily said.

"Make it two months."

"Well, let it be two, then."

"Four months might be better yet."

"Make it, dear, just as you will. I am content if only in the end you will be mine."

So it was decided that at the end of four months she would give her answer, yes or no, to his suit, or whether he might hope or whether it was hopeless. This was February—June might witness the making of one life or it might not.

While James Ellis was content to wait, he was not hopeful. He was only "Jimmy" to Julia. Jimmy, the boy—the playmate with the pretty face and a woman's voice. Julia wished a man for her husband, representative of manhood and strength. He feared the decision. The time crept on fast; weeks had flown, a month passed. There was no change in Julia's feelings that he could detect.

It was in the latter part of March that, in the dead of night, a fire-alarm was sounded. Men sprang from their beds, jumped into their clothes. It was a country town in which every man and many women were needed to fight the dread fiend. It was soon discovered that a weather-boarded dwelling-house had taken fire at the roof. When the crowd reached the house the top of it was wrapped in flames. James Ellis was among the first on the ground. It was thought that every soul had left the house. There was a terrible scream. In the second-story room, by the blaze of the fire, could be seen a woman.

The blood froze in the men's faces as they looked at the awful scene. They looked at each other, then back at the woman. Who would make a move to save her? Like a flash James Ellis rushed toward the house, kicked open the door, disappeared, fought his way through the smoke and heat in the second story until he reached the woman. He dashed out a window and helped her to the ladder that had been raised.

As the crowd watched, James Ellis disappeared. Another second and there was a fall of heavy timber into the house; a column of sparks went upward. Seconds passed. The fire was making headway rapidly. James Ellis had not appeared. At last anxious watchers crept into the house and came upon the body of Ellis lying at the bottom of the stairs. He had been knocked down by the falling timber. The fire had not reached the place where he was lying.

He was tenderly picked up, carried out of the house and to his home. The falling timber had struck him in the face, cutting and tearing great gashes the whole length. The hot embers of the wood had burned great red blotches along the wound.

It was only after weeks of careful nursing by the faithful aunt that James Ellis was pronounced well. He had recovered from the wound to fall into a fever. It was June when the doctor told him he had done all he could for him, that it was for him to grow in strength. It was not until that time that James realized that a great change had taken place.

"Jimmy" with the baby face was a thing of the past. There was an ugly scar on the forehead, another on the chin, and one on the cheek. There were red patches where he had been burned. He was no longer prett. He was ugly, yet not repulsively so—no uglier than many other men. With the fever had also gone the woman's voice. It was now like that of other men.

It was four months since that day in February that he decided to venture out. He waited until it was dusk. Then he made his way to the home of Julia. He was ushered into the parlor, where a half-light burned. In a moment Julia came, coming quickly to see her "Jimmy"—the much talked-of and admired hero of the night of the fire—and to congratulate him on his recovery. She rushed up to him, and, taking his outstretched hand, exclaimed:

"Oh, Jim—" stopping startled as she looked in his face, then stammering, continued: "Beg-pardon—Mr.—Ellis—I'm so glad to see you!"

The man was surprised into formality. "Mr. Ellis!" Julia had never addressed him thus before. What did it mean?

As the evening passed they talked of the events of the past months. As he spoke in that low, tender, pleading, manly voice Julia listened enraptured. There were chords in her being that were touched, and responded as they had never done before. There was something in her being that went out to the man—the scarred hero. At last, in low, passionate tones, he pleaded:

"Julia, darling, I have come for the answer promised, that can make life the sweetest thing on earth to me. I have come now to know whether I dare hope for happiness. I'm disfigured now—ugly, but I love you—love you, if possible, more than I ever have. Can you love me?"

As he held her in his arms, Julia, tenderly caressing the scars with the tips of her fingers, whispered:

"These don't disfigure you, dear. You are not ugly to me."—William A. McCleary, in Leslie's Newspaper.

Stub Ends of Thought.

Some old people have an idea they are occupying space which younger ones want.

The agility of a man's tongue is no sign of the size of his brain.

No woman can do as much as she says.

When a man says he is perfectly happy he lies, and when he lies he is found out, and when he is found out he is not happy.

A Fable for Fathers.

He was the son of a worthy citizen, and had just returned from college. His father was a brusque, matter-of-fact man who had no liking for anything pronounced, and he noticed with sorrow that his son returned with the latest thing in collars, and various other insignia of dudedom. The old gentleman surveyed him critically when he appeared in his office, and then blurted out: "Young man, you look like an idiot."

Just at that moment, and before the young man had time to make a fitting reply, a friend walked in.

"Why, hello, Billy, have you returned?" he asked. "Dear me, how much you resemble your father."

"So he has been telling me," replied Billy.

And from that day to this the old gentleman has had no fault to find with his son.—Ernest P. Neville, in Life.

ACCROSTIC.

BY [E] 610

Each should try in kindness to excel,
Much good to do, and do it well;
Onward to the prize, we all should try
Resolved to win, we'll get there bye
[and bye;
In friendly acts what friends we gain
And from hard words we will abstain;
Nought but the purest, best desires,
Improves our minds and leads us high-
Such is the prize we have in view. [er;
Much good to do, be honest, true.

Dear Editor:

It is very encouraging to see the spread the order and its membership increasing day by day, and as it becomes better known, it will become more appreciated. The principals on which the order is founded ought to interest the world at large as it brings into one universal brotherhood the people of every nation, sex, or creed.

The hand of fellowship is extended to all, it offers peace and good will to all the world, fraternal kindness to its members, kind advice for the erring and guilty, and relief for the distressed. Emorians ought to practise those virtues which will make them better and show to the world what an Emorian really is. I am proud to be numbered among its members, it will teach me to put off those things that are displeasing to my fellowmen, it will bring me a cheerful spirit, it will bring me out of my poor selfish nature to learn to love my neighbor as myself, to do to other as I wish that others would do to me.

What a world this would be if fraternal kindness existed everywhere; thanking you for allowing me space to say a kind word for the order, A Bro.

To The Ladies our doors are open wide. We do not simply admit them to a side degree and keep them in ignorance of all the rest, but on the contrary, they are admitted to the highest degrees and offices of the Order. Ladies are very efficient workers and their refining influence in the lodge room is for good. They prove very efficient organizers, and the most active and faithful members. May they cherish our institution ever in their hearts. A SQUARE E.

Brothers and Sisters. Do you want to be happy; what will bring true happiness? There is nothing more easily attainable, if sought in the right way. Preserve your health, "Keep your head cool and your feet warm" as the old saying has it, and JOIN THE EMORIANS, have Brothers and Sisters all over the world. Be friendly, and you will be happy. How simple, yet strange that these truths escape the knowledge of so many. A SISTER.

— Yes Sir; In answer to yours of recent date, all of us Emorians ought to do our best for our beloved order.

I am glad to know there are many of us who are doing everything that lays in their power to further the end in view. There is no earthly object more noble or grander for any people to apply themselves to with profound and hearty zeal, than the common good of all. EMORIANS! welcoming every race, color or creed to establish themselves beneath its standard, which floats bravely to the breeze, and when ever occasion offers: to show to the world their true colors. It is a glorious thing to work hand in hand for the benefit of the human race.

We live for our beloved order, when we take an active part, thoughtful interest in procuring for it good government, and in adopting and supporting a beneficial and just constitution for the conduct of its affairs. It is not ourselves individually that we try to benefit, but the world at large, bringing peace and good will to all.

With such an order as ours, and with such promise as it presents now, and the beautiful principle that it teaches, it will not be long before our roll will number into the tens of thousands. We are divided in this country as to race and creed, but I am glad to see that in the high aim we have in view, there is no creed or social division in EMORIANISM.

I will endeavor to do my duty to the best of my ability, and I am sure that all of us from our Noble President down to the lowest in our order, will endeavor as in the past, in every way possible to advance the best interests of THE SOCIETY OF

EMORIANS.

Signed [E] 610, Nanaimo, B. C.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO Join the EMORIANS

A society for the promotion of fraternal kindness among the members and the world at large, proclaiming peace on earth, good will to all, and the practice of those virtues that elevate and adorn society uniting in the bonds of universal brotherhood the people of every country, sect and opinion, not to indulge in controversy or acquire political power, influencing no ones faith, leaving each to choose, in politics or religion, the creed most in accord with his own sense of right.

There are no dues in the first degree those who choose to take the second degree pay one dollar upon making application, and one dollar per year dues, du's are the same in the second, third and fourth degree, a second deg. member is eligible to hold office in a Local Lodge.

There are no benefits paid except to benefit members in local lodges. The officers and past officers of the local lodges constitute the grand lodge membership and are third degree members. The officers and past officers of the grand lodge are fourth degree members. There are no secrets in the lodges except the grip, pass words, signs, etc., and the names of persons who apply for admission or who have been rejected, or matters concerning trials or proceedings of the lodge room.

There is no initiatory ceremony in either the or social lodge which any may object to go through.

To join you simply send to us for a blank application, fill it out and return it; upon being accepted and recorded you will be notified and your number given you, then you will be a in the first degree. In writing to this office address Krumb's, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them we say certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be sorry it was ever written.

Just Retribution.

"Did you hear about Andy?" asked one reminiscient westerner of another. "No? Well, Andy made a strike of sixty-five thousand dollars at Cripple Creek. As soon as he got the money in his hands he went down to Denver and blew it in. Rum, cards and fun. You know how it is. The morning that he woke up sober and found all his money gone he set out to punish himself by walking to Cripple Creek. He wouldn't borrow a cent. A fellow who was teaming for me overtook him and offered him a lift, but he wouldn't get in, and he plugged along, muttering to himself: 'Walk, curse yer, walk. Blow in your dust, will yer? Then walk, you fool. It'll do you good. No, you needn't stop at no spring. Ain't you drank enough? Go dry, you son of a gun. Light out and walk, you durned jackass.' And he did."

A NOVEL EXPERIMENT.

Measurements of School Children to Be Taken for Scientific Purposes.

Superintendent Powell, of the Washington public schools, and Dr. Harris, of the bureau of education, wish to find, by actual experience, whether or not there can be established any certain relation between the physical and mental development of the children in the various grades, and for this purpose there will be taken a series of measurements of about twenty thousand of the school children, under the supervision of the director of physical training. Miss Stonerod, the teacher, has made a study of the systems of physical measurement in use in the gymnasiums and schools throughout the United States and Germany, besides having done a good deal of experimental work in the same line, and the results of her experiments will be embodied in the series of measurements to be taken in the public schools of Washington, which will include the height, weight, chest measurement and some cranial measurements, besides a series of experiments as to nervous sensibility. These last consist principally in ascertaining, at what distance apart the child is able to distinguish between the points of a pair of calipers touching the wrists. The results in this experiment are regarded by the Post as interesting, some of the subjects being able to distinguish between points a very small fraction of an inch apart, while others require a distance of more than two inches before they can tell without looking whether one point or two is touching their wrist. When the results of these measurements are tabulated it will be easily seen whether there is any definite relation between the physical and mental development of the pupils, and if this relation is satisfactorily established it will be used to advantage in guiding the teachers as to the amount of work that may be required of a pupil, in many cases preventing an overstraining of those whose physical development does not keep pace with their mental, and pointing out as well when more work can be required of a pupil without fear of injury. This experiment is a new departure, but it is in line with the advance of modern school work, and the teachers of the schools are hopeful that it will lead to valuable results.

The Poet's Joke.

"Is there something familiar you see, sir,

That thus at a stranger you stare?"

"There is so; for it's quite plain to me, sir,

That my stolen umbrella you bear."

ODD ENTERTAINMENTS.

From Turkish Bath Parties to Games of Quotations from Authors.

It is a merry dance that Fashion leads us with her capricious fads and fancies. Now it is in the method of shaking hands, and then it is the religious following after each other in the matter of amusements. We take, says the New York Sun, to amateur acting and are devoted to slumming. We go in for skirt dancing or Salvation Army work just as the mischievous will-o'-the-wisp leads us. The latest freak is for Turkish bath parties, where one woman secures the baths and invites all her friends to come and be clean. The gentlemen join the party when the curls are all in order again, and the affair winds up with a supper, where the ladies, with their glowing faces and bright eyes, wait and wonder where and when the things will ever be ready to eat. There is something unique in this bath party idea when one gets accustomed to it and understands that one's hostess doesn't at all mean by her invitation that her guests are remiss in the matter of ablution, but that they will enjoy the bath solely for its luxuriousness. And if this form of entertainment lacks the attribute of godliness, it may claim that which lies nearest it—cleanliness.

Another kind of a party also much in vogue with women just now is a "fad party." It usually takes the form of a luncheon, where everything is rose colored and tied up with bows. And every woman is obliged to confess her pet fad, which, when it has made its blushing bow in conscious modesty, is toasted and talked over. Then there is the literature party, in which the woman's club dame or the Chautauqua circle girl revels. It is played something on the principle of progressive euchre, only that the guests find at one table four sets of partially-written quotations, which they are required to fill out; at another names of books, whose authors are inquired for; at another pseudonyms to be assorted among the rightful people. This game is very exciting to the Philadelphia and Boston suburbs girl, the prizes being books. Of course, some of the dames who went to the Browning readings at Sherry's this year in diamonds and velvets, and at the conclusion of the course when a "request Browning programme" was offered, called for "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother," and "The Curfew Shall Not Ring To-night," mightn't see the hilarity in such a form of diversion, but the woman to whom the entertainment appeals can't sleep nights for thinking of it.

FROM THE CAPE TO CAIRO.

How It Is Proposed to Carry a Telegraph Line Across the African Continent.

The business partner of one of the directors of the company formed to build the telegraph line from the cape to Cairo has given the Pall Mall Gazette some interesting information. Capital has been subscribed to the extent of seven hundred thousand dollars, which is considered sufficient to carry the line as far as Uganda. The materials are now being ordered in London and will be shipped shortly. The poles are to be of iron of light construction, in order to outmaneuver the white ants, who would eat away wooden poles. From Salisbury the line is to be carried to Tete, on the Zambesi, and from thence to Blantyre. There Consul Johnston will report the result of his surveys as to the best manner of proceeding on to Uganda, and the constructing party will have to come to terms with the natives and Arabs by subsidizing the chiefs and others of influence. There will be nothing in the way of impenetrable undergrowths or rank vegetation to contend with, as the line will avoid the low country and keep to the high plateau the entire distance. There are two alternative routes for the conveyance of the materials. There is good transport from the Transvaal to Fort Salisbury, or a shorter route would be adopted if materials were shipped direct to Beira, carried along the railway now being built as far as it extends, and then conveyed the rest of the distance by ox wagons. The scheme is being pushed forward with great activity now.

MOVEMENT OF INDIAN PEOPLE.

Widows May Remarry, and the Marriage of Infants Is Less Common.

The report of the last census in Bengal, which has just been published, upsets several beliefs which hitherto have found general acceptance. For instance, it proves that the natives, instead of being averse to leaving their ancestral villages, are steadily moving from more densely populated areas to those where the population is less crowded; also that widow remarriage is practically universal in Behar, Orissa, Chota-Nagpore and among the lower castes of Bengal proper and is unknown only among a very few high castes everywhere and the more respectable Sudras of Bengal proper. The report also states that infant marriage does not exist to any appreciable extent except in northeast Behar and among the Brahmins, Kayasths and other purely Sudra castes of western Bengal. It also shows the great progress of Mohammedanism, which has increased more than nine per cent. in Bengal proper in the last decade, while the increase in Hinduism is less than five per cent. This fact is explained to be due to the desire on the part of the lowest castes to adopt a religion which treats all men as equals.

SAVED BY AN APE.

The Adventure of an American Traveler on the Panama Canal.

Why I stopped in Panama on my return from my trip to South America is a mystery. The quaint Spanish fashion of the old city interested me, and I found it difficult to tear myself away. When I was ready to leave my brief sojourn in the country had inspired me with so much confidence that I eagerly embraced the suggestion of my landlord to cross the isthmus on horseback.

"Take it leisurely," he said; "follow the old road. It touches various points along the canal. You can make the journey in a couple of days and you will not mind spending a night in one of De Lesseps' villages."

Now the canal was a pet hobby of mine. I was anxious to see how it was progressing. Besides, I had a friend who was one of the contractors, and I wanted to pay him a visit.

The next morning I mounted a gentle mustang, furnished by my host, and set out for Aspinwall, the Atlantic port, where I intended to take the steamer. As I wished to reach the camp of my friend Jackson by midday, I rode rapidly during the morning.

At one place the road ran along in sight of the canal for half a mile. Here I saw a scene not to be watched anywhere on earth. Enormous machines were at work excavating thousands of tons of dirt, and countless wagons were employed removing the loose earth. Myriads of workmen swarmed everywhere, jabbering to each other in all the tongues of the known world. Among them were men from all the countries of the world—Americans, Africans, Chinamen, West Indians and Malays. The fierce looks cast upon me by these fellows alarmed me; but I pretended to be a calm spectator of the animated scene. One of the contractors was about, and from him I learned that I would find Jackson about five miles further on.

"Are you armed?" asked the contractor.

I told him I had a revolver.

"You will probably need it before you reach Aspinwall," said he. "You are passing through thirty thousand of the worst cutthroats that were ever collected together."

After hearing that I had a great mind to return to Panama, but the dread of being laughed at made me decide to push on. Assuming a determined, business-like look, I put spurs to my mustang and ambled through the motley gang of laborers until I had the satisfaction of leaving them behind me. Fortunately I encountered no obstacle, and Jackson's camp was made just in time for dinner.

Here I was safe. Jackson was a big fellow, whose men were nearly all Americans. He was delighted to see me and gave me a capital dinner. During the two hours that I spent with him I filled him full of news, and he, on the other hand, told me a lot of wonderful things about the canal. He made no secret of his conviction that the enterprise would drag along for years, but, as he was making bushels of money, the delay played into his hands. As I declined to stay all night with him, Jackson gave me some directions about my route, and at my departure confided to me a package containing ten thousand dollars, asking me to deposit it for him in one of the banks at Aspinwall. I suggested that there was danger in carrying such a sum of money through the country, but the stalwart fellow laughed at my fears. He said that I would make the hacienda of Don Francisco Mendez at nightfall, where I would be royally entertained. By daylight he thought I could take care of myself.

While this was going on I saw two brutal-looking Mexicans at a short distance watching us intently and conferring together in low tones.

"I don't like the looks of those rascals," I said.

"Hello, there, Pedro' and you, Juan," shouted Jackson. "Go to work, you lazy beggars!"

"They are two of the worst men in camp," said Jackson. "but they are not likely to bother you."

I had my doubts; but the prospect of staying all night with Mendez somewhat reassured me, and I started off in very good spirits. My road took me through a scene of bewildering beauty. The tropical foliage round me glittered with all the hues of the rainbow. Unknown flowers of gorgeous magnificence and overpowering fragrance brightened the roadside.

Suddenly I came upon a pond of clear water in an open space. Hot, dusty and travel-worn, I could not resist the temptation. Without counting the consequences, I fastened the mustang to a sapling and undressed in a hurry, placing my revolver under my clothes on the edge of the water. Then I plunged in and enjoyed a refreshing swim.

One thing annoyed me. All along the way I met with monkeys everywhere. They were of all sizes, and the interest they took in my movements amused me not a little. Sometimes they chattered at me indignantly and shook their fists almost in my face. At a wave of hand, however, they fled in precipitate terror.

As soon as I entered the lake the monkeys took fresh courage. They scrambled about in droves and abused me to their hearts' content. Among them was one of a species that I had not seen before. He was a ferocious-

SAVED BY AN APE.

The Adventure of an American Traveler on the Panama Canal.

Why I stopped in Panama on my return from my trip to South America is a mystery. The quaint Spanish fashion of the old city interested me, and I found it difficult to tear myself away. When I was ready to leave my brief sojourn in the country had inspired me with so much confidence that I eagerly embraced the suggestion of my landlord to cross the isthmus on horseback.

"Take it leisurely," he said; "follow the old road. It touches various points along the canal. You can make the journey in a couple of days and you will not mind spending a night in one of De Lesseps' villages."

Now the canal was a pet hobby of mine. I was anxious to see how it was progressing. Besides, I had a friend who was one of the contractors, and I wanted to pay him a visit.

The next morning I mounted a gentle mustang, furnished by my host, and set out for Aspinwall, the Atlantic port, where I intended to take the steamer. As I wished to reach the camp of my friend Jackson by midday, I rode rapidly during the morning.

At one place the road ran along in sight of the canal for half a mile. Here I saw a scene not to be watched anywhere on earth. Enormous machines were at work excavating thousands of tons of dirt, and countless wagons were employed removing the loose earth. Myriads of workmen swarmed everywhere, jabbering to each other in all the tongues of the known world. Among them were men from all the countries of the world—Americans, Africans, Chinamen, West Indians and Malays. The fierce looks cast upon me by these fellows alarmed me; but I pretended to be a calm spectator of the animated scene. One of the contractors was about, and from him I learned that I would find Jackson about five miles further on.

"Are you armed?" asked the contractor.

I told him I had a revolver. "You will probably need it before you reach Aspinwall," said he. "You are passing through thirty thousand of the worst cutthroats that were ever collected together."

After hearing that I had a great mind to return to Panama, but the dread of being laughed at made me decide to push on. Assuming a determined, business-like look, I put spurs to my mustang and ambled through the motley gang of laborers until I had the satisfaction of leaving them behind me. Fortunately I encountered no obstacle, and Jackson's camp was made just in time for dinner.

Here I was safe. Jackson was a big fellow, whose men were nearly all Americans. He was delighted to see me and gave me a capital dinner. During the two hours that I spent with him I filled him full of news, and he, on the other hand, told me a lot of wonderful things about the canal. He made no secret of his conviction that the enterprise would drag along for years, but, as he was making bushels of money, the delay played into his hands. As I declined to stay all night with him, Jackson gave me some directions about my route, and at my departure confided to me a package containing ten thousand dollars, asking me to deposit it for him in one of the banks at Aspinwall. I suggested that there was danger in carrying such a sum of money through the country, but the stalwart fellow laughed at my fears. He said that I would make the hacienda of Don Francisco Mendez at nightfall, where I would be royally entertained. By daylight he thought I could take care of myself.

While this was going on I saw two brutal-looking Mexicans at a short distance watching us intently and conferring together in low tones.

"I don't like the looks of those rascals," I said.

"Hello, there, Pedro' and you, Juan," shouted Jackson. "Go to work, you lazy beggars!"

"They are two of the worst men in camp," said Jackson, "but they are not likely to bother you."

I had my doubts; but the prospect of staying all night with Mendez somewhat reassured me, and I started off in very good spirits. My road took me through a scene of bewildering beauty. The tropical foliage round me glittered with all the hues of the rainbow. Unknown flowers of gorgeous magnificence and overpowering fragrance brightened the roadside.

Suddenly I came upon a pond of clear water in an open space. Hot, dusty and travel-worn, I could not resist the temptation. Without counting the consequences, I fastened the mustang to a sapling and undressed in a hurry, placing my revolver under my clothes on the edge of the water. Then I plunged in and enjoyed a refreshing swim.

One thing annoyed me. All along the way I met with monkeys everywhere. They were of all sizes, and the interest they took in my movements amused me not a little. Sometimes they chattered at me indignantly and shook their fists almost in my face. At a wave of hand, however, they fled in precipitate terror.

As soon as I entered the lake the monkeys took fresh courage. They scrambled about in droves and abused me to their hearts' content. Among them was one of a species that I had not seen before. He was a ferociouslooking monster, fully five feet high and as muscular as a bear. Before I realized the situation this great long-legged fellow swooped down on my clothes and started with them for the woods. For a moment I was absolutely paralyzed. It was no joke to ride to Aspinwall in a decent rig, but I had no fancy for the role of Lady Godiva.

There was no time to lose. The monkey had left my revolver, and as soon as I could seize it I fired. He gave a howl of rage and dropped everything but my coat. I hastily jumped into my recovered garments and gave chase. It was useless. The thief scurried up into the top of a tall coconut tree, and in a twinkling of an eye put on my coat, buttoning it round him, and then proceeded to hurl coconuts at me with such precision that I was glad to quickly leap into the saddle and ride off.

But my troubles had just begun. I had reconciled myself to the loss of my coat, as Jackson's money was in an inside pocket of my waist, but the monkey showed a disposition to follow me. After firing at him several times I gave it up. His tough hide seemed bullet-proof, and there was no chance to kill him unless I shot him in the eye.

The declining sun warned me that it was time to seek shelter for the night, and I knew that in these tropical solitudes there was no twilight. I saw no cultivated fields, no houses, no signs of the hacienda of Don Francisco Mendez.

The situation was growing serious. Occasionally a stone weighing a pound or two was hurled at me from some leafy covert, and then the gigantic monkey would give a horrible laugh and scamper away. He was a funny-looking chap in my blue flannel coat, but I was too angry to enjoy the comic aspect of the matter. It struck me that if the brute caught me in the dark he would make an end of me in no time. It was both horrible and humiliating, such a death in the tangled forests of this savage land.

Just then I saw a short distance off, in a clearing, a square stone hut. Here was shelter and protection. I was not disappointed much to find it uninhabited. It was strongly built, with no windows, and one entrance, from which the door had long since rotted away. A stepladder led to the loft. Ascending, I found a small apartment dimly lighted by round holes in the wall, which had evidently been used by sharpshooters at some revolutionary period in the history of the country. My mind was made up in an instant. I went back to my mustang and picketed him about one hundred and sixty yards from the hut in the bushes. Then I returned to my fortress just as the darkness closed in upon me, and sought refuge in the loft, pulling up the ladder after me. I was safe here, even from the monkeys, and I lay down feeling a sense of perfect security.

It must have been late in the night when I heard something moving in the room under me. Looking through the opening in the floor I could see nothing. I struck a match, and by the flickering flame recognized the monkey. The wretch still wore my coat, and in the dim, uncertain light his appearance was more repulsive than ever.

I lay down again, knowing that the beast could not get into the loft, and commenced planning for his destruction in the morning. I was satisfied that the animal belonged to a species of mountain apes of great strength and terrible ferocity. Their cunning, I heard, was almost human, and they did not scruple to attack men and rend them limb from limb. I concluded, when the morning light appeared, to draw the brute's attention and shoot him in one of his eyes. Having settled on this plan, I was about dropping into a doze, when I heard voices outside the hut. I listened with alert ears.

"If, as you say, Pedro, this American is inside, we should ambush him and shoot him when he comes out in the morning."

"Now, by all the saints, Juan," was the reply of Pedro, "you are a cowardly fool. The Englishman, like all his countrymen, has his eyes open, and may get the drop on us."

"Wonder what they'll do with the monkey?" I said to myself with a chuckle.

"I hear the American moving," said Pedro.

It was the monkey. The monster was walking in a circle all the time, and the dead leaves that had drifted into the hut rustled under his feet. There was another whispered consultation, and the Mexicans rushed into the room below. The outlaws saw a dark form and charged with their long, murderous knives.

I heard two dull thuds, and knew that Pedro and Juan had been dashed headlong against the walls.

"Mother of Moses!" gasped Juan. "Knife him!"

The robbers made another rush.

"Ah! ah!" yelled Pedro. "Where are you, Juan? This hog of an American has me by the throat and I have lost my knife."

"He is a demon!" groaned Juan. "He is pounding my head against the wall!"

A volley of yells followed and then a chorus of groans. Through it all I heard an ominous dull thud. At length silence prevailed, and then I knew that all was over.

My last match was gone, but to my great delight it was almost morning. With the first rays of daylight I peered through the hole in the floor. It was a ghastly sight that met my gaze. The two Mexicans lay on the floor quite dead. Their heads had been smashed to jevy against the bare walls and their throats bore dark blue marks.

Sitting in the corner was the monkey. He was bleeding profusely and was evidently seriously hurt. At first I thought I would spare him. He saved my life and I was grateful. But when I fixed the ladder and descended the untamable beast prepared for a spring, and there was such evident malice in his eyes that I aimed at his eye and fired. One shot did the work. He rolled over dead.

It was no place for me after such an adventure, and I at once went in search of my mustang. To my great joy he was all right, and I was soon in the saddle and on my way to Aspinwall.

Depositing Jackson's money in the bank when I arrived, I immediately boarded the steamer. I knew that it would not be prudent to speak of the two Mexicans, and I had a suspicion that a statement of the part the monkey had borne in the tragedy would be regarded by the authorities as a cock-and-bull story. So I wisely kept my mouth shut until I was again among friends.

Of course I have never wasted any regret on Pedro and Juan, but I still hold my horrible friend, the monkey, in great esteem.—N. Y. Dispatch.

A Question Often Asked.

Does any brother know of a sick brother or a brother's family in distress? Do those who ask it really feel what they say? How hollow it sounds to me! Yes I know of a brother in distress; who is he! is he worthy of assistance, why he has a house over his head and property besides; why should he need assistance; he is able to keep his dues paid up, he has not made application to us for assistance, what right have we to bother about him. My friends, a man may have the home and the property you speak of, and yet may need the necessities of life; he is a stranger in the neighborhood, it ought to be our duty (he being a brother) to find out more about him, knowing as we do that he is in good standing with his own lodge; we hear that he has sickness in his family, we know that he is a first-class man in his profession.

Does it show brotherly love to be willfully ignorant of these things.

The motto "Every one for himself &c" shows selfishness to the core, to live for ourselves only, is a nature devoid of brotherly love. Funds are accumulated by the Lodge, is it set apart for the distressed brother; is it to help a brother up the ladder and place his feet where he will be safe, or is it to erect a fine Palatial Hall in honor of the Craft, in the near future.

Yes that is about the sum and substances of it. The good old times are past, it matter not who a brother was, so long as he was in good standing, the hand was ever ready to help him at all times. The rich or poor all were alike in that respect.

What benefit these so-called friendly orders are, is more than I can see, there is very little friendship, if any, shown to the stranger; I speak from present experiences. I know of only one order existing to day, that shows just as much kindness to the stranger that it shows to one of our own Lodge, and that order is "EMORIANISM" it extends the hand of fellowship to all the world, it makes no difference what you are as to creed, or nation, it promotes fraternal kindness among all its members, brings peace on earth and good will to all.

We all should endeavor by a kind word or a kind act to help a brother up over the stile of misfortune.

Wishing the Society a success:

I remain,

Yours faithfully, [E] 610.

Nationalities in Austria.

Foreigners are wont to classify Austria among the German countries. As a matter of fact, her German-speaking population is but limited, and annually losing ground. The increase in population among the German inhabitants of Austria is but 5.17 per thousand per year; the increase with the Italians in Austria is 5.92, and with the Slavonic races 7.93. Of one hundred marriageable women in the German districts forty-one find husbands; among the Slavonic races the percentage is fifty-two. One of the reasons for this showing is that in the German districts of Austria the economic management of affairs is almost prohibitory to marriage among the younger sons and daughters of the peasants. The homestead goes to the eldest son, whose brothers and sisters become his servants. Among the Slavs the family property is equally divided among all children after the death of the father, and each one is allowed to begin housekeeping on his own hook.

Materials of the Sculptor.

The materials of the sculptor comprise almost every substance capable of being carved, cast or molded. For carving, marble, alabaster, bone, ivory, granite, basalt and porphyry have all been used from time immemorial.

LIVING SCARECROWS.

Children Utilized to Keep the Crows from Pulling Up the Corn.

A wrecking gang on the Delaware division of the Erie railway were clearing up a wreck at Nobody's Block, not far from Cochection, last week, says a Port Jervis correspondent of the New York Sun, when their attention was called to a curious, shrill, cooing sound which came at short and regular intervals from a cornfield across the Delaware river in Wayne county, Pennsylvania. They made an investigation and found that the sound emanated from the children of a German farmer who had been stationed around his cornfield to scare away the crows from pulling up the young and tender shoots of corn. The farmer had been unusually well blessed with progeny, his wife having borne him no less than twelve children, including four pairs of twins. He had been yearly bothered with crows in corn-planting time, and he had adapted all the scarecrow devices in common usage among farmers, such as placing stuffed straw men in the fields, stringing twine over poles with bits of white rags fluttering in the wind, etc., but the crows had become used to those things, and, crow-like, would post their sentinels on lofty treetops to give warning of danger while their companions were at work uncovering the hills. A happy thought struck the farmer by which he could protect his corn and utilize his several offspring. Arming two of them with old tin pans each day, he placed them in the field at four o'clock in the morning and told them to call out "Coo! coo!" and pound their pans whenever they saw any crows flying near. When the children became tired the father replaced them with two others, and thus by successive relays the crows were kept away. This process was repeated each day until the corn was of size sufficient to protect itself. It was this strange noise, kept up all day long, from early morn till eve, that made the Erie wreckers marvel. It is said that this is the second year in which the Wayne county farmer has protected his cornfields with living scarecrows.

Probably Haunted.

Mrs. Slimpurse—Did you inquire about that house we liked so much?

Mr. Slimpurse—Y-e-s. That house is haunted, or something.

"N-o, not exactly, but he seemed to be sure we'd move out inside of a week."

"Horrors! Did he say he thought we would?"

"Well, n-o; not in so many words."

"Then what did he say?"

"He said he wanted a month's rent in advance."—N. Y. Weekly.

Boys! write to girls. Girls! write to boys with invisible ink "Mama" can't catch on. By mail 25c. per bottle. Miller & Chapman, West Unity, Ohio.

How Those Girls Love One Another.

"Well, Maud, I hear you are engaged to Jack."

"Yes."

"Well, I congratulate you. He was about the nicest fiance I ever had."—Truth.

What She Didn't Know.

Mr. Sappy—Didn't you know, Miss Mawy, that a horse kicked me once and knocked me senseless?

She—I didn't know that it was a horse that did it, Mr. Sappy.—Brooklyn Life.

Shades of Matthew Vassar!

"What do you hear from your daughter at Vassar?"

"Oh, extraordinary good news. Clara won the first prize in the annual gum-drill last Chewsdlay."—Judge.

Intermittent Flights.

Madge—When do you go to the seaside?

Mabel—Whenever a visitor calls whom I don't wish to see.—Chicago Record.

SMILES

No Ear for Music.

Agent—There are pianos built in the walls of these flats, the use of which you can have by paying two dollars a month extra.

House Hunter—I'll pay four dollars extra if you'll have the piano nailed up so that nothing will open it but a charge of dynamite.—Brooklyn Eagle.

An Expressive Melon.

Mr. Uptown—I bought the first watermelon of the season.

Mr. Harlem Heights—How much did it cost you?

Mr. Uptown—I don't know yet. The doctor is up at the house now.—Texas Sittings.

An Aggravated Case.

"Isn't that a restaurant kitchen opening out into this court?" asked a visitor, looking out of the window of a down-town office.

"Yes; can't you tell by the odor? Sometimes it is so strong that I have to pick my teeth."—Chicago Record.

Two Views.

Mrs. Henry Peck—Isn't this terrible? A man in Pennsylvania sold his wife for fifty dollars!

Henry Peck—Oh, I don't know. Business is business. A man is entitled to get all he can for anything he sells.—Puck.

Stolen Sweets.

Edythe (playfully)—How dare you steal a kiss from me, sir? Don't you know it is petty larceny?

Jack (enthusiastically)—I call it grand larceny.—Brooklyn Life.

The Same Old Thing.

Penelope—Well, how do you like married life?

Younglove—Rawther monotonous.

Penelope—Oh, you and your wife quarrel all the time, do you?—Truth.

No Need of Calls.

Little Son—Goin' out to make calls?

Mother—Calling is out of fashion.

Little Son—Does you see all the ladies you know at the bargain counters?—Good News.

Extract from an Advertisement.

"When the baby is through nursing it must be uncorked and put under the tap. If the baby does not thrive on fresh milk it must be boiled."—Puck.

A Biter Truth.

Ethel—Are marriages really made in Heaven, Jack?

Jack—Not all of them. Some of them are made in haste.—Truth.

A Fool to Lend It.

Parker—How do you know he is a fool?

Neverpay—I borrowed ten dollars from him once.—Brooklyn Life.

PROVIDENCE COTTAGE.

Why Captain Sol Buddle Concluded He Wouldn't Build It.

"'Providence cottage,' Mrs. Pringle, ma'am, it shall be," said Capt. Sol Buddle firmly, as he passed his huge cup for another cup of tea, and wiped his forehead with a red bandana handkerchief.

"Well, captain," said Mrs. Pringle, in tones of amiable acquiescence, "you being a scholar, and having book-learning moreover, it isn't for me to gainsay you."

"Mrs. Pringle, ma'am," said the captain, emphatically rapping his spectacle case on the table, "your sentiments do me great honor. When a man comes to the end of his life—"

Mrs. Pringle made a little deprecatory movement of her pretty fat hand.

"Oh, my dear Capt. Buddle," softly suggested Mrs. Pringle.

The captain bowed courteously. "Not being a member of the society of amiable ladies like yourself, Mrs. Pringle, I don't quite know how to undecieve you as a matter of fact."

On the neighboring waves beat noisily against the shingly shore, as if insisting that Capt. Sol Buddle should be done up to them; inside, the only sound which broke the stillness was a pained cry from Mrs. Pringle's person. The captain paused again, took up the cat and thoughtfully poured on some milk for it. "My cat on board the 'Morning Star' would not take his milk without a spoonful of gin in it," he said, reminiscently; "but he used it too much for his strength, he was always ambitious, that cat was—too ambitious. Laid himself out to eat up all the ship's cockroaches, though he knew they'd disagree with him, and there was a funeral soon after—his funeral. He took a lot of cockroaches with him, too—as many as he could hold, poor chap." Capt. Buddle heaved a sigh to the memory of his departed favorite.

"As to my years," he resumed, "they—"

The quiet Mrs. Pringle, who was not much given to interruptions, did a most unusual thing—she interrupted the captain again—for the third time. "A man is as young as he looks," she said. "And you, Capt. Buddle, don't look a day over forty-five."

The captain again bowed with nautical grace. "Seeing you've set your mind on it, Mrs. Pringle, we'll make it so; though, if any questions are asked the facts will go against it."

"No one will be so impertinent," said Mr. Pringle, as she looked pensively down at her pretty slipper.

The captain passed his cup for another beverage to which he had lately taken a great fancy; its novelty appealed to him most strongly. In his suffering days at this hour—like the departed cat—he had generally partaken of a soothing beverage with rum in it. But the widow had gradually weaned the captain from such an unhealthy beverage as rum in the daytime, and he found ever fresh delight in tea—tea with cream in it—tea by the bucket—tea containing four lumps of sugar to each supply. At ten o'clock every night, however, the widow's fair hands brewed her lodger what he was facetiously apt to call "a stiff nor'-wester." Then, the captain sat thoughtfully by the fire, living his voyage over again, and full of simple, reverent thankfulness that he had been spared to drift into such a pleasant haven of peace.

Mrs. Pringle continued to knit, as the cat dreamily purred on the captain's knee. The captain put down his cup and took up the plan of a very snug, two-storied cottage, with a veranda running all round it. "'Providence cottage,' it shall be, Mrs. Pringle," and he looked about for a pipe spill.

Mrs. Pringle handed him one with something of a sigh.

"For more than six months," said the captain, meditatively drawing a long breath and carefully using his little finger for a tobacco stopper—"for more than six months I've been laid up in port, so to speak, and yet in sight and smell of the sea."

"Yes, you can certainly smell it," said Mrs. Pringle, dubiously. "And when the fishing boats come in, it's a little bit—ch—strong."

"Well," said the captain, admiringly, "a trifle, maybe, for a delicate lady's nose like yours, Mrs. Pringle; but there's not an unpleasant flavor about it to a man who's spent his life in communion, so to speak, with such smells. Why, every port has a different smell, and you get to know the lay of the land by it long before you drop anchor."

"Aren't you tired of the sight of the sea?" somewhat inconsequently asked Mrs. Pringle, again filling the captain's cup, which was blue and white, with "A Present from Ventnor" on it in bold, clear characters of green. Mrs. Pringle lived about a mile beyond Ventnor, in a snug little cottage, whose garden ran down to the sea.

"No, ma'am. I ain't," returned the captain, meditatively. "'Cause why, Mrs. Pringle? The sea gets into a man's blood and heart and brain. When he goes down to the ships, likewise fishing smacks, it's because he's drawn to it, so to speak. He can't help it. The wonders of the deep are always wonders to him, though he's seen them all his days; the harvest of the sea—its dead men's bones, its coral caves, where, saving your presence, those fish-tailed hussies, the mermaids, sit waiting for you with deceitful murmurings and delusive songs—is store him ever in the night watches; every wind that blows, every whale that spouts, is known to him almost as well as its Creator."

Mrs. Pringle shuddered. "It's a cruel, treacherous thing," she said—"a cruel, treacherous thing. I sometimes wake at nights and draw the clothes over my head to shut out the noise. It makes me shudder, and yet I can't leave it."

"You're right, Mrs. Pringle," said the captain, drawing his chair a little closer to her—"you're right. It is a cruel, treacherous thing, with its changing winds and hungry, foaming waves, its never-resting, never-ending ebb and flow, its little baby ripples and soft surface a-shining in the sun. And then, when you slide down into it just to feel its soft touch, why, as like as not," continued the captain, rather ashamed of his oratorical flight—"why, as like as not, there's a shark waiting to grab and drag you down to Davy Jones' locker."

Mrs. Pringle looked frightened, so the captain hastened to reassure her. "It's a wonderful place is the sea, Mrs. Pringle, such a lot of spare room in it for rubbish. I should like to take two or three of these contractors who've sent in estimates for Providence cottage and bump 'em down into Port Royal harbor, so that Port Royal Tom could just open his jaws and contract for them. One would think I was going to build a palace instead of a tidy little six-roomed cottage."

"Ah, but the masterful way in which you rule and direct them, Capt. Buddle!" said Mrs. Pringle, admiringly. "You've a natural gift for the ruling of men."

"Maybe," said the captain, pleasantly; "but that's a different thing from the ruling of women, Mrs. Pringle. You can't elineh any little difference of opinion with a handspike when you're arguing with lovely woman. You've got to keep your hand on the helm all the time and not let her know it."

"Yes," rejoined Mrs. Pringle, thoughtfully; "women like a strong, masterful hand that'll guide them; but they won't be driven."

The captain shifted himself in his chair. Suddenly it dawned upon him that the matter might be one capable of personal interpretation. He had never tried his hand in that direction. It seemed to him that the howling wind outside, as it blew among the unfinished rafters of the Providence cottage, was jeering at him for his lack of skill in the direction of the fair sex. He stirred his tea and took another lump of sugar.

And the widow, too, thought of many things in her quiet, gentle way as she sat by her side of the fire. Capt. Buddle, with his wonderful flow of language and quaint descriptive power, had been a great source of comfort to the amiable Mrs. Pringle. And now in a couple of months Providence cottage would be finished and the captain cease to remain her lodger. How kind he had been when that "land-shark" of a coal man tried to cheat her out of a sack of coals! The captain, albeit a man of peace, had knocked the fraudulent coal man into the middle of the cellar, and refused to allow him to depart until he put his head through the circular opening and humbly apologized. It was something to have a great, strong, gentle—the captain was wonderfully gentle to her—sailor about the premises. Ah, well, she would take her nephew Jack and his pretty bride, Polly Humphreys, to live with her until they had saved enough money to buy a house—no thrifty fisherman at Ventnor ever married before he had bought a house—and try to forget the captain's pleasant ways. Then she remembered that Jack was a little uncertain in his temper, and that the captain was, except when justifiably roused by fraudulent coal men, as mild as a lamb.

Suddenly Capt. Buddle rose from his chair and crossed over to Mrs. Pringle's side of the room. "Mrs. Pringle, ma'am," he said—and his flow of language seemed to have returned to him—"Mrs. Pringle, ma'am, what would you think of a man who was safe in port if he ventured out to sea again in a new craft—a craft that might be lopsided and cranky, with shifting ballast, given likewise to shipping bilge water"—there was a touch of real pathos in his voice as he drew this touching picture—"and maybe that wouldn't answer her helm? What would you think of such a man if he was to leave his snug bunk in port and go drifting up and down, a-steerin' all over the points of the compass generally?"

"I should think of him whatever you thought of him, Capt. Buddle," said Mrs. Pringle. "It is not for me to set my opinion against that of a sea-faring gentleman like yourself. But if the man you speak of is the man I take him to be, then—"

"Then what, Mrs. Pringle, ma'am?" eagerly inquired the captain.

"He—he would stop in his bunk in port, as you nautical gentlemen say," returned Mrs. Pringle.

The captain's face glowed with excitement. He took up the plans of Providence cottage to cast them in the fire. Mrs. Pringle gently stayed his hand. "What are you doing?" she asked.

"Mrs. Pringle, ma'am, I'm going to commit these plans to the flames," said the captain, "unless you'll let me give them to Jack and Polly."

"W-what?"

"Yes, Mrs. Pringle, ma'am, I am that lubber," said the captain, with repressed excitement. "Why should I go building a house like Providence cottage, when my Providence is here! This is my port; and if so be you'll allow me to cast anchor and stay here!"— "In command?" queried Mrs. Pringle, scarce knowing what she had said.

The captain took her hand. "No, Mrs. Pringle; but as first officer, with you in command, and Prudence and the cat to swab decks."

"Ye-es," said Mrs. Pringle; and the captain, forgetting the cat, kissed her.

The cat walked out of the room, her tail stiff with indignation.

Outside, the wind howled dismally among the brick work of the partially completed Providence cottage. Ten o'clock struck as the widow brought out her family Bible, and Prudence Pemberton, the maid, sat coyly down on the edge of a chair just inside the parlor door.

The captain opened the Bible reverently. "Now we'll have our sailing orders for to-morrow," he said.

Mrs. Pringle laid aside her knitting, looked at the captain with tearful eyes, and placed his spectacles on the open Bible, thus tacitly taking command of that goodly mariner, Capt. Sol Buddle, who put on the spectacles and somewhat laboriously began to read.—G. D. Burgin, in Chambers' Journal.

Measuring the Great Wall of China.

The great wall of China was measured in many places by Engineer Unthank, the American who surveyed for the chief Mongolian railroad. His measurements give it an average height of eighteen feet, and a top width of fifteen feet. Every few hundred feet the wall is widened and surmounted by towers twenty-four feet square and from twenty to twenty-five feet high. The foundation of the wall is of solid granite, and the brick, which constitute the main part of the structure, are still good, even though they are supposed to have been made two hundred years before Christ. In building this immense fence as a barrier to the regular incursions of the Tartars, the builders did not even attempt to avoid mountains or chasms to save expense. For eighteen hundred miles the wall goes straight over mountains and plains, hills and dales, utterly regardless of nature's greatest obstructions.

Cheap Historic Homes.

Historic homes are cheap in London. The house of the banker and poet Samuel Rogers was lately withdrawn from an auction sale because of the smallness of the bids. This house, still in a fashionable quarter, was in its prime the resort of Fox, Wellington, Byron, Moore, Sydney Smith, Wordsworth, Macaulay and a host of other great people. Rogers occupied it for nearly half a century.

We have received a new supply of Badges, enameled in color of the degrees which we will send to any member who wishes one, postpaid for 25cts Krumb's Pub. Co.

The Society of Emorians was originated in August 1892 by Orville L. Leach as a list of names friendly interest in the welfare of each other and by gradual increase the list in November of the same year was about eighty names. When Officers were appointed and Krumb's was made the Official Organ and Constitution were submitted through the columns of the paper in instalments for the approval of the members, and in July 1893 the constitutions were finished and approved and published in pamphlet form. The Order has been increasing rapidly and is now in the second thousand, with ever prospect of a constantly increasing interest among the members, and a future prosperity and usefulness unequalled by any other society. The only secrets of the society are the names of rejected candidates, or persons accused of offences, and the signs of recognition distress, grip, etc. in local lodges.

Since the society was first started but one person has ever expressed a wish to withdraw, and that one, without knowing anything of the working of the order. [E] 844.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO Join the EMORIANS

A society for the promotion of fraternal kindness among the members and the world at large, proclaiming peace on earth, good will to all, and the practice of those virtues that elevate and adorn society uniting in the bonds of universal brotherhood the people of every country, sect and opinion, not to indulge in controversy or acquire political power, influencing no ones faith, leaving each to choose, in politics or religion, the creed most in accord with his own sense of right.

There are no dues in the first degree those who choose to take the second degree pay one dollar upon making application, and one dollar per year dues, dues are the same in the second, third and fourth degree, a second deg. member is eligible to hold office in a Local Lodge.

There are no benefits paid except to benefit members in local lodges. The officers and past officers of the local lodges constitute the grand lodge membership and are third degree members. The officers and past officers of the grand lodge are fourth degree members. There are no secrets in the lodges except the grip, pass words, signs, etc., and the names of persons who apply for admission or who have been rejected, or matters concerning trials or proceedings of the lodge room.

To join you simply send to us for a blank application, fill it out and return it; upon being accepted and recorded you will be notified and your number given you, then you will be a member in 1st. degree. In writing to this office address Krumb's, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them we say certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be sorry it was ever written.

Here is a very interesting letter from Bro. Haberstraw, [E] 1015.

THE PHILATELIC WORLD.

OUR BRITISH LETTER.

Matters philatelic are ever on the move nowadays therefore it is only meet that "Krumb's" moves with the times, and becomes a medium for the closer relationship between the collectors of Britain and those of the States.

The season is just about to commence here, and by all expectation promises to be an unusually busy one.

The excessive, almost tropical heat of the past few months has rendered philately for the nonce a comparative deadletter, but everybody is "girding up their loins" now and preparing for the coming busy time.

Two new stamp papers i. e. :- The Philatelic Observer, and The Stamp World see the light this month, and one of our largest dealers intends following suit shortly. Mr. Perry C. Bishop the well known Editor of the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain has resigned his post. He now occupies the London office of THE STAMP CHRONICLE. The event of the past month on the Continent has been the clever fraud of bogus Bolivian stamps on many of our leading dealers.

A Mons Moens of Paris was, it seems, the leading spirit in the business, and he succeeded in swindling Messrs Stanley Gibbons, our British Mekeel, to a considerable tune.

Those collectors in possession of Bolivian stamps with the representation of a train running from the top left to the bottom right corner, are recommended to throw them away.

The latest fraud is the 10c. Monaco card, brown on white. It seems the original lilac color has been chemically altered and a close examination will show the change. There will be a monster stamp exhibition in London in '95 which will eclipse, outshine, and generally confusate any previous show. The last approach to anything of the kind, recently, was a magnificent exhibition of the Stamps of Ceylon and India by members of the London Philatelic Society. New stamps from the Cook Islands are expected daily, and the same may be said of Mauritius, Bosnia, Austro-Hungary, and Montenegro.

The London Stamp Club is now in full swing. There was the greatest need for such an institution, and I am glad to see the affair is going along swimmingly. My initial letter is of necessity a brief one, as we are not quite with the season yet. I shall in my next however have a good long

IT PAYS THE BEST AND IS THE SAFEST INVESTMENT I EVER MADE.

There are single retail shoe stores in our large cities which sell 2,000 pairs of shoes a day, making a net profit of $250,000 a year. We sell shoes low, but we sell a great many pairs, the clear profit on our ladies', misses' and children's shoes is at least ten cents a pair, and on our mens' and boys' shoes 15 cents a pair. We shall establish shoe stores in each of the fifty largest cities of the U. S., and if they sell only 300 pairs of shoes a day they would earn $324, 00 a year. We should be able to pay a yearly dividend of $5.25 a share, or over 50 per cent. a year on the investment. We sell the stock at $10 a share. The price must inevitably be much more than $10 a share. No stock has ever been sold at less than this price, which is its par value. Stock non-assessable. Incorporated, Capital $7,000,000. We have over 1,000 stockholders, and the number is increasing daily. Some of the principal stockholders are: T. S. Walling, N. Y.; L. J. Peck, Boston; N. A. Reed, Jr., Chicago; J. B. Campbell, Chicago; W. M. Kavanaugh, Little Rock, Ark.; L. H. Eddy, Chicago; J. F. Turner, Phila.; B. Harding, N. Y.; E. J. Mason, Battle Creek, Mich.; F. P. Bullette, Arcade, N. Y.

Write for a prospectus containing the names of our stockholders, etc., or send an order for stock, enclosing cashier's check, cash or money order. Orders taken for one or more shares. Price, $10 a share.

A FELINE PROTECTOR.

He Puts a Brace of Bold Burglars to Headlong Flight.

They Were Having Things All Their Own Way Until Tommy Roused the Family with a Hair-Raising Racket.

A little coterie of professional burglars walked quietly through the silent streets of Bloomfield, N. J., late the other night, says the New York Journal. The Bloomfield police force of one was asleep on the steps of the police headquarters and the merry burglars had the entire town to themselves. They walked down Linden avenue, with their pockets bristling with jimmies and rattling with skeleton keys, till they came to the fine house and handsome grounds of Mr. N. B. Adams, one of the society leaders of the town.

One burglar was stationed near the front gate to keep a sharp lookout for the Bloomfield police force. The two other burglars stole through the grounds to inaudible, slow music, like burglars in a melodrama. When they reached the front porch the cautious one flashed a dark lantern around the corners of the house and in the little poultry yard, the woodshed and the carriage-house.

"I feel relieved," said he, in a fine whisper; "there is no dog kennel."

"This house is just pie," said the other burglar, in a delicate whisper.

"Pie!" whispered the first burglar. "It is an oyster pie, a mince pie and a George Washington pie, all in one."

Then the jocund burglars made an end of persiflage and went to work with professional adroitness and a right good will. The shutter of one of the parlor windows was pried open, the window was raised and the cautious burglar, lifting his eyes to the level of the sill, explored the room with his dark lantern.

The bold burglar climbed through the window. Then the cautious burglar climbed through as softly as a cat. They paused a moment to criticise the pictures and tapestries by the light of their dark lantern and cursorily examined the silver ice pitcher to see if it was standard metal.

But their business was more important than the mere dilettante pursuit of art and they tip-toed through the house, guided by the mellow, golden light of their dark lantern, collecting now some rare specimen of the silversmith's art and now an exquisite vase; finding here a fashionable coat and there a costly shawl, and condescending at times to pick up a pocket-book which had been left lying on the bureau as if of no use to anybody.

The burglars made of their varied collection two or three neat bundles, which looked as if they might have come from a dry goods store.

The Adams family were sleeping tranquilly, but the lynx-eyed family cat was awake!

"When we sell this," said the bold burglar, pointing to the bundles, "we'll go to the world's fair and start a hotel."

"I think Chicago would agree with my temperament," whispered the cautious burglar.

"What a quiet night this has—"

He didn't finish the sentence, for at this moment a wild, weird, blood-curdling and appalling yell was heard. The burglars' hair stood on end. It was followed by an unearthly and grewsome shriek. The burglars' faces blanched. Then there was a sound of scrambling and of echoing steps as if half a dozen people were running downstairs. It seemed to the frightened burglars as if half the indignant citizens of Bloomfield were in the house and were about to rush into the room bent on vengeance.

The burglars dropped their bundles, dived head-first through the window and ran panie-stricken for the woods.

The wild din was made by the family cat—a tom cat—who bounded downstairs and upstairs with his fur on end, shrieking and spitting and uttering the most frightful yells. He aroused the entire family. Mr. Adams got up under the impression that there must be a dog in the house—he could account for the frantic actions of the cat on no other hypothesis. He went downstairs and found two hundred dollars' worth of household articles neatly tied up in bundles, just as the burglars had left them.

One of the burglars took ninety cents from a purse and carried it away with him. It is believed that the three burglars had to walk back to New York, as ninety cents would be insufficient to pay their carfare.

As the geese saved Rome, so the tom cat saved the Adams mansion.

VANISHED KANSAS TOWNS.

Forests Growing in Triumph Where Busy Communities Were.

It is a coincidence in Kansas history that two of her citizens who afterward became United States senators—Senator John Martin and ex-Senator John J. Ingalls—originally settled when they entered the territory at towns which afterwards fell into decay and have since been obliterated from the map. John Martin cast his lot with Tecumseh in Shawnee county, a settlement of much promise, the child of the pro-slavery party. It enjoyed the seat of the county government, the federal court and the government land office and was crowded with people, mostly democrats. When the pro-slavery cause failed and the free state people got in control of affairs the town began to go down; the men went into the confederate army, the women and children went south and the houses were moved to Topeka, as were also the county seat, the federal court and the land office. The Santa Fe railroad stops its local trains there, but does not maintain a station agent, and the only habitation on the old town site is a house labeled "Cash Grocery."

The fate of Sumner, in Atchison county, where John J. Ingalls began his career in Kansas, says the Chicago Tribune, was even more striking than that of Tecumseh. Tecumseh was a town of wood, while Sumner was a city of brick and mortar, graded streets, business blocks, schools, churches and other evidences of New England thrift and culture. It once had a population of three thousand inhabitants and was a fair rival of all the other river towns, until its hopes were destroyed by a county seat election, which gave the prize to Atchison, its pro-slavery rival. Legend says that Atchison won by fraud, but, be that as it may, the people accepted the situation and promptly began to pull up stakes and move to the victorious town, and to-day not a house marks the spot. The town site embraced several hundred acres, but it is now wholly covered by a heavy growth of young timber, blue grass has covered the scars made by the city engineer and street commissioner, and railroad trains rush by without whistling.

AH SIN LOOKED ON UNMOVED.

Chinese Stoically Viewed the Awful Wreck Recently in Washington.

The stolid, impassive nature of the heathen Chinaman was never better illustrated than during the Ford's theater disaster in Washington. Three pig-tailed exotics from the flowery kingdom conduct a "washee" emporium just the second door below the historic old shell, where they are wont to pursue the even tenor of their vocation, which promotes the next neighbor to godliness. Something more than an earthquake shock would probably be required to shake any exhibition of interest from these Chinamen. Although the crash of the falling floors of the old theater was not far from their ears and their own roof might have come tumbling over their heads next these Celestials, according to the Post, did not manifest the slightest surprise. They simply stepped to their basement door to see that the street was still there and returned to their flatirons. Through the rest of the day, while thousands of excited people were clamoring outside, fire bells were clanging, ambulances rushing by and dead and wounded men being carried past in plain view of their windows, those laundrymen bent over their clothes and gave no sign that they realized the progress of anything unusual. For all the symptoms of intelligence displayed by them they might as well have been mummies of the Pharaohs drying up in their own skins. It might have been the disregard of human life which is said to be characteristic of the oriental, or it might have been John's faculty for minding his own business, but anyway it was a queer exhibition.

GARIBALDI'S VENGEANCE.

An Incident in the Life of the Great General in South America.

"He was the most loving, the least hating of men," said the London Times, in its obituary notice of Gen. Garibaldi. "One may freely defy the world," it added, "to trace an act of meanness or a deed of cruelty, or even a deliberately unkind word, to the man himself." An incident of his romantic career in South America shows the truthfulness of the Times' eulogy:

Exiled from Italy on account of his participation in a revolutionary movement, Garibaldi took service with the republic of Rio Grande do Sul, then in open rebellion against Brazil.

In one of his encounters he was severely wounded and taken prisoner. He found himself in the power of one Leonardo Millan, a type of Spanish South American brutality. The brute struck his prisoner in the face with a horsewhip, tortured him for several hours with the rack and threw him into a dungeon.

Two or three years after Garibaldi's release the fortune of war put the cruel man into his power. Leonardo trembled for his life as his captor surveyed the prisoners; but he was suffered to go unscathed. Garibaldi's only revenge was to give the brute a look which made him know that he was recognized, but deemed beneath a man's resentment.

An Australian Wedding Custom.

Our Australian cousins have hit upon a pretty device as a substitute for the objectionable practice of throwing rice over a bridal pair as they leave the church or start for their honeymoon. At a recent marriage the guests showered rose leaves over the happy couple when they took their departure for the wedding tour until the bride was literally covered with the fragrant roseate petals as she sat in the carriage. This is a more poetic way of symbolizing one's desire that the union may be prosperous and fruitful than the more irritating shower of rice that scratches the skin, ruffles the temper and possibly lodges in the eyes of the groom and bride.

The Last Toboggan.

As an example of what may be done with the English language, an announcement in an exchange furnishes the most startling evidence: "Mrs. Blank will lecture at — hall Sunday afternoon; subject, 'From Heaven to Hell.' The elevator will run from two to four p. m."—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

Only One Thing Lacking.

Aspiring Young Woman—I have youth, health, energy, some personal beauty, and I can afford to indulge my fancy for the stage. I am worth half a million. What more do I need?

Theatrical Manager—Nothing, madam. Absolutely nothing except a divorce.—Chicago Tribune.

His Latest Resort.

"Yes."

"What office was he after?"

"Foreign minister."

"And what's he doing now?"

"Walkin' home to run for tax collector."—Atlanta Constitution.

Educational Note.

The German students are not required to attend the lectures unless they feel disposed to do so. A stranger in a German university city asked a young man:

"Where is the university building?"

"I really don't know. I am a student here myself."

Burns a La Fin De Siecle.

And say: "A favor ask, I'll grant it thee," Think you I'd seek the power craved by my

To see myself as I am seen by others?
Ah, no; this would I beg the gentle elf.
Let others see me as I see myself!

—B. A. Heydrick, in Harper's Bazar.

We have received a new supply of Badges, enameled in color of the degrees which we will send to any member who wishes one, postpaid for 25cts Krumbs Pub. Co.

The Society of Emorians was originated in August 1892 as a List of names for advertising purposes and through correspondence with each other, and mutual assistance a brotherly feeling for one another finally caused them to form into a Society adopting the "Square E" as their emblem, and the list gradually increased till in November of the same year they numbered about eighty members and Krumbs was made the Official Organ and Constitution were submitted through the columns of the paper in instalments for the approval of the members, and in July 1893 the constitutions were finished and approved and published in pamphlet form. The Order has been increasing rapidly and is now in the second thousand, with ever prospect of a constantly increasing interest among the members, and a future prosperity and usefulness unequalled by any other society. The only secrets of the society are the names of rejected candidates, or persons accused of offences, and the signs of recognition distress, grip, etc. in local lodges.

Since the society was first started but one person has ever expressed a wish to withdraw, and that one without knowing anything of the working of the order. There are many leading members of the older Societies who take a great interest in this new Society and express the belief that it is destined to equal or excel any other. Parts of the constitution may need revision, but it is expected the next regular Meeting Sept. 1st. will attend to this, and put good Men in Office to carry out its provisions. [E] 60.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO Join the EMORIANS

A society for the promotion of fraternal kindness among the members and the world at large, proclaiming peace on earth, good will to all, and the practice of those virtues that elevate and adorn society uniting in the bonds of universal brotherhood the people of every country, sect and opinion, not to indulge in controversy or acquire political power, influencing no ones faith, leaving each to choose, in politics or religion, the creed most in accord with his own sense of right.

There are no dues in the first degree those who choose to take the second degree pay one dollar upon making application, and one dollar per year dues, dues are the same in the second, third and fourth degree, a second deg. member is eligible to hold office in a Local Lodge.

There are no benefits paid except to benefit members in local lodges. The officers and past officers of the local lodges constitute the grand lodge membership and are third degree members. The officers and past officers of the grand lodge are fourth degree members. There are no secrets in the lodges except the grip, pass words, signs, etc., and the names of persons who apply for admission or who have been rejected, or matters concerning trials or proceedings of the lodge room.

To join you simply send to us for a blank application, fill it out and return it; upon being accepted and recorded you will be notified and your number given you, then you will be a member in 1st. degree. In writing to this office address Krumbs, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them we say certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be sorry it was ever written.

AN APPEAL TO THE LADIES!

WHY Should I join the EMORIANS? Because there are no dues, it admits within its portals every sect, race or creed, it is not a political order, it is for the well being of humanity, it combines Friendship, Love, Truth, the great principles of Odd Fellowship; Friendship, Charity and Benevolence, the principles on which Free Masonry is founded, it has no senseless oaths or obligations to take it is simply the honor of a man that is given to bind him more firmly in fraternal love with both brother and sister. Ladies have equal rights with the gentlemen of the order, they are our beacon of hope in the hour of calamity, our guiding star; they promote the moral and social elevation of its members, they help to cultivate in us a fraternal love for all mankind which controls our daily avocations, to do what is right and just in all our dealings; they are our ministering spirits to the sick and the distressed, comforting and providing for the widow and orphans in their affliction, and daily exemplifying the "Golden Rule." How much purer our thought will be, and our words and actions truer; their gentle and benign influence will be felt far and near, and we will rise in our might conquering and to conquer the world for Fraternal Kindness. Prime Woman how noble art thou, Queen in her sphere of usefulness, we want you to join our beloved order, and make the brethren noble men and true EMORIANS, who will be faithful unto death.

F. T. GREGG, [E] 610

He Charged the Jury.

During the era of "reconstruction" in South Carolina one Pompey Smash, a coal-black negro, became a "trial justice." It was not long before Pompey had a case before him. When the jury arose and began moving toward the adjoining room for consultation one of the lawyers interposed and said: "May it please your honor, you have not charged the jury." Whereupon Judge Pompey gathered himself up, and, with all possible dignity, said: "Gen'men of dis jury, as dis is de fust time I have had you befo' me, I cha'ge each one of you one dollar and a half."

THE QUEEN OF FASHION

NEW YORK.
A NEW DEPARTURE.

A HIGH-CLASS FASHION PAPER PUBLISHED FOR THE MILLION.
50 CENTS A YEAR. SINGLE COPIES, 10c.
ISSUED MONTHLY, MARIE JONREAU, Editor.

The Best and Cheapest Fashion Paper Published in the World.

A JOURNAL FOR WOMEN.

There is not a paper published that can compare with it for the price asked. And in fact there is not another paper or magazine like it at any price. THE QUEEN OF FASHION not only informs you what is going on in the fashion world, both abroad and at home, but instructs you how to make up the material in the latest and most economical way. With the information furnished by THE QUEEN OF FASHION a lady can always be well and economically dressed, and at the same time in the latest and most approved fashion. The styles and designs in this paper are original ones by our own artists, and can be found nowhere else. The publishers of THE QUEEN OF FASHION have secured, at enormous expense, one of the best fashion writers in the world as editor. THE QUEEN OF FASHION is the coming Fashion Journal of this country. Especially to those who make their own garments, the paper is almost indispensable. Economy is the watchword of the hour, and THE QUEEN OF FASHION furnishes all the information necessary for one to make their own garments and in the latest fashion. Bear in mind only the small sum of fifty cents is required to bring you this great benefit every month for one year, and please mention where you saw this advertisement when you send your subscription to

IT PAYS THE BEST AND IS THE SAFEST INVESTMENT I EVER MADE.

There are single retail shoe stores in our large cities which sell 2,000 pairs of shoes a day, making a net profit of $250,000 a year. We sell shoes low, but we sell a great many pairs, the clear profit on our ladies', misses' and childrens' shoes is at least ten cents a pair, and on our mens' and boys' shoes 15 cents a pair. We shall establish shoe stores in each of the fifty largest cities of the U. S., and if they sell only 300 pairs of shoes a day they would earn $450,000 a year. We should be able to pay a yearly dividend of $5.25 a share, or over 10 per cent. a year on the investment. We sell the stock at $10 a share. The price must inevitably be much more than $10 a share. No stock has ever been sold at less than this price, which is its par value. Stock non-assessable. Incorporated, Capital $1,000,000. We have over 1,000 stockholders, and the number is increasing daily. Some of the principal stockholders are: T. S. Walling, N. Y.; J. J. Post, Boston; M. A. Reed, Jr., Chicago; J. B. Campbell, Chicago; W. M. Kavanaugh, Little Rock, Ark.; J. H. Rich, Chicago; J. F. Towner, Phila.; B. Harding, N. Y.; E. J. Payne, Battle Creek, Mich.; F. P. Bullette, Arcade, N. Y.

TRAIN ROBBERY.

Genesis of the Business of Robbing Railway Passengers.

Some of the Noted Desperadoes Who Died with Their Boots On—The Only Efficacious Method of Dealing with the Outlaws.

The first train robbery to attract general attention occurred less than twenty years ago at God's Hill, a small station on the Iron Mountain railroad. The public mind was stunned by the audacity of the enterprise, and it has not yet completely recovered from the shock, says the St. Louis Republic. The murderer with a mask on his face, who stalks through a train and bullies braver men than he, has been from the first invested with an heroic personality that is not his due. He is, generally speaking, a coward, who never shoots unless he has the drop and who would not think of risking his precious carcass by pursuing the comparatively creditable but more hazardous occupation of stealing horses.

Because his lay was unique the train robber was accepted from the first as a king among outlaws, and though it has been demonstrated again and again that a train, with its sleepy passengers, its unprotected express messenger, its engineer, in whom the instinct of self preservation is strong and its conductor, who is more or less human, is easier to hold up than a hen roost sentinelled by a faithful house dog, the train robber will have imitators as long as morbid fools read yellow-backed literature.

Every year since the God's Hill affair a new crop has been produced. True, the sheriff has usually been in at the harvest as chief reaper, occasionally adding the duties of a hangman to those of gaolkeeper. The lack of adequate returns, which is peculiarly characteristic of the industry, does not deter the ambitious neophyte, who has intoxicated his so-called brain with "Sixteen-String Jack."

The "James Boys" and "Younger Brothers," who were pioneers in the business, are mostly dead or in the penitentiary; Sam Bass, their earliest and ablest imitator, was, with his entire following, wiped off the face of the earth during the first year of his career; Gove Johnson and his three lieutenants were hanged at Clarksville, Ark., on one scaffold three months after they quit holding up plow-handles and went in for holding trains as a means of livelihood; Rude Barrows, who was for a time thought to be invincible, drew on his boots one morning and died before he had a chance to take them off. It was learned that his strength was in the main geographical. He knew the country. His neighbors also knew it, and when they finally went out after the reward that had been offered for their quondam friend they got it and him.

The fate of the Daltons is too recent to require comment. Dozens of the smaller fry of the "profession" are in the penitentiary. Every mother's son of them has been or will be the subject of a certain book, the title of which is changed from time to time for obvious reasons. This book is the genealogical tree of the train robber. It propagates the species.

Remedies innumerable for the train-robbing evil, which just now seems to be epidemic, have been suggested. The most rational and thoroughly practical is to make it a death-rot offense in Missouri to attempt to rob a train the statute might result in driving the bandits across the state line, but it would not reduce the number of robberies half of one per cent.

Viewed from any standpoint the train robber proves to be with us as long as the printing press and the free school. This is not an argument against either of these agencies of civilization. The naturally vicious will be bad in any event, and they run their course sooner, perhaps, in this line than they would in any other.

Dead train robbers are absolutely harmless, and the most rational way to treat any member of the guild is to shoot him whenever and wherever he is found plying his vocation. Let the railroads put guards on their trains whose business it will be to kill any train robber who shows himself. Such men are easily found and when the railroads begin to haul in dead bandits, as well as dynamite-shattered express cars, the business of train robbing will soon cease to thrive.

SLAIN HIS TEN THOUSANDS.

A Hunter Who Has Bought a Farm with Squirrel Pelts Alone.

Freeman Biggs, of Hutton township, eight miles from Charleston, Ill., carries the scalp of twenty-one thousand squirrels at his belt, to be speak. As his reputation for truth and veracity is good, his neighbors do not dispute his claim that he has slaughtered five hundred deer, three hundred wild turkeys and more prairie chickens than he had time to count. He is, according to the Chicago Tribune, seventy-one years old, and his sight is just as good as ever, to good, in fact, that if the bullet from the rifle he has carried for many years fails to strike the squirrel between the eyes he will hardly throw the animal in his game bag—and squirrels are worth from twelve and a half to fifteen cents. For thirty-five years "Freem" Biggs has hunted "bech tails," and the proceeds of his accurate aim have bought a fine farm on which he reared a family of ten children.

"Freem" Biggs was born in Clinton county, O., and went to Hutton township when fifteen years old. At that time there were plenty of deer and turkeys there, and as a boy he acquired a remarkable proficiency with the rifle and finally drifted into hunting as a means of support. The railroads came, and deer could be shipped to the east, and until the settlements drove the game away he sold venison. After th

IT PAYS THE BEST AND IS THE SAFEST INVESTMENT I EVER MADE.

There are single retail shoe stores in our large cities which sell 2,000 pairs of shoes a day, making a net profit of $250,000 a year. We sell shoes low, but we sell a great many pairs, the clear profit on our ladies', misses' and children's' shoes is at least ten cents a pair, and on our mens' and boys' shoes 15 cents a pair. We shall establish shoe stores in each of the fifty largest cities of the U. S., and if they sell only 300 pairs of shoes a day they would earn $625,000 a year. We should be able to pay a yearly dividend of $5.25 a share, or over 50 per cent. a year on the investment. We sell the stock at $10 a share. The price must inevitably be much more than $10 a share. No stock has ever been sold at less than this price, which is its par value. Stock non-assessable. Incorporated, Capital $1,000,000. We have over 1,000 stockholders, and the number is increasing daily. Some of the principal stockholders are: T. S. Walling, N. Y.; I. J. Post, Boston; N. A. Reed, Jr., Chicago; J. B. Campbell, Chicago; W. M. Kavanaugh, Little Rock, Ark.; J. H. Bloch, Chicago; J. F. Torrey, Phila.; B. Harding, N. Y.; F. J. Payne, Battle Creek, Mich.; F. P. Bullette, Arcata, N. Y.

The railroads came, and deer could be shipped to the east, and until the settlements drove the game away he sold venison. After th-country became settled and the greater part of the timber felled, the turkeys and deer disappeared, and he was obliged to begin a business engagement with the squirrels, which continues up to the present, at least up to the time prohibited by law in each year. For the last thirty-five years he has done business exclusively with the squirrels, and modestly estimates that on an average he has sold about six hundred a year. At first the price ranged from fifteen cents up, but now it ranges about ten cents and twelve cents. Of course the supply of squirrels is not so large at present. Besides, farmers who have woods pastures where these animals abound, put huge signs on their gateposts declaring that "No hunting aloud on this here farm." Under these disadvantages Mr. Biggs was unable to take over four hundred last year.

WHITE HORSE OF LAMBOURNE.

The Strange Natural Formation Which May Be Seen on an English Hillside.

In Berkshire, England, is situated a hill on the steep sides of which is the figure of a gigantic horse whose dimensions are almost an acre in extent. The head, neck, body and tail of this wonderful figure consist of wide white lines, as does also each of its four legs. The outlines of this monstrous specimen of the genus equinus are formed by cutting trenches in the chalk, of which the hill is mainly composed, the ditches being from two to three feet deep and about ten feet in width. The chalk of the trenches being of a beautiful white and the surroundings the greenest of the green, makes the figure of the horse plainly discernible, according to the Philadelphia Press, at a distance of about twelve miles. This is the famous "White Horse of Lambourne." The white horse is known to have been the standard of the Saxons, and some have supposed that this monster emblematic figure was made by Hengist, one of the Saxon kings. Mr. Wise, an antiquarian who has written much on the white horse of Berkshire, brings in several arguments to prove that this figure was made by or under orders from Alfred during the reign of Ethelred, his brother, and that it is a monument to a victory over the Danes in the year 871. Other well-known writers are of the opinion that the celebrated white horse is a natural freak—one of nature's oddest oddities. Ashmead-Burton thinks that the early tribes noticed that the outlines of the freak resembled a horse to a certain extent and that they worked it into its present shape, at least that they gave the outlines their present graceful symmetry. However this may be, it has been the custom since time out of memory for the neighboring peasants to assemble on a certain day of each year, usually about midsummer, to clear away the weeds from around the white horse and to trim the edges of the trenches so as to preserve the color and shape. This task is known all over England as "scouring the white horse."

Wealth Out of a Poor Farm!

There is a man in Alabama who, according to the New Orleans States, takes life very easy for the simple reason that his farm extends up and down the Louisville & Nashville railroad for a distance of fifty or sixty miles. A great many persons will be disposed to doubt this statement, but nevertheless it is the truth. A short time ago the old Alabama countryman was a victim of impecuniosity because his farm was so poor that the cats would not stay on it, but one day the engineers of the road came along and discovered that his farm was nothing more than a vast deposit of gravel, the very material they desired to use as ballast for the bed of the road. They endeavored to buy the farm outright, but the old countryman stubbornly refusing to sell the only home he had on earth it was finally arranged to pay him a royalty on every car load of gravel taken from his land. The royalty has made him rich, and as the supply of gravel is practically inexhaustible he will soon be able to boast that his farm is the largest in the world and extends all the way from New Orleans to Louisville.

Not Compulsory.

The English oaths act, 1888, provides that "if any person to whom an oath is administered desires to swear with uplifted hand, in the form and manner in which an oath is usually administered in Scotland, he shall be permitted so to do, and the oath shall be administered to him in such form and manner without further question." Therefore, witnesses need not "kiss the book" unless they prefer to do so.

Substantially Agreed.

Prudent Mamma—I do not wish unduly to influence you, Araminta, but in a matter so momentous as the choice of a husband there are many things to be taken into consideration, and I am not entirely satisfied that between you and young Mr. Horace Bizzleby there is that harmony of disposition, that spirit of mutual forbearance and joy of self-sacrifice that must subsist as the foundation of a truly happy union. Pardon me if I seem anxious, but—

Miss Araminta (young but self-possessed)—You needn't worry about me and Hed Bizzleby, mamma. I turned him down a week ago. He can't waltz for shucks.—Chicago Tribune.

A Great Fisherman.

Sykes—Hallo, Brownlow! What luck?

Brownlow—None at all. Been here three hours and haven't caught a thing.

Sykes—That's queer. Lots of fish there. What bait are you using?

Brownlow—By thunder! I expect that's the trouble. Forgot my bait.—

GO A K S!

Somewhat Discouraging.

Indignant Collector—I am going to stay here until I get my money.

Mr. Fewscads—I am afraid you will not enjoy yourself very long. I am going to move out next week.—Texas Siftings.

A Ruined Motto.

She—Fair exchange is no robbery.

He (gallantly)—Come off. You haven't been to Chicago or you wouldn't say that.—Detroit Free Press.

A Painful Test.

"How do you know Dr. Gullum is the best physician in the city?"

"Because his prices are the highest."—Chicago Record.

—Fliegende Blaetter.

Just the Same.

Tutter—Have you ever observed, Miss Clara, that sometimes when a thing happens it comes to you as a souvenir of a past age? Sometimes a slight thing—a word, a strain of music—awakens hidden memories, and revives a prehistoric age, and you exclaim to yourself, involuntarily: "I have lived before."

Miss Slimson—Oh yes, indeed, Mr. Tutter: that's the way I felt when I heard that story you just told me.—Truth.

Masculine Superiority.

The feeling of superiority in the sterner sex is inborn. "Mamma, do you think you'll go to Heaven?" said Jack, thoughtfully looking into his mother's face.

"Yes, dear, if I'm good," said the little mother cautiously, wondering what would come next.

"Then please be good, for papa and I would be so lonesome without you."—Kate Field's Washington.

The Society of Emorians was originated in August 1892 as a List of names for advertising purposes and through correspondence with each other, and mutual assistance a brotherly feeling for one another finally caused them to form into a Society adopting the 'Square E' as their emblem, and the list gradually increased till in November of the same year they numbered about eighty members and Krumbs was made the Official Organ and Constitution were submitted through the columns of the paper in instalments for the approval of the members, and in July 1893 the constitutions were finished and approved and published in pamphlet form. The Order has been increasing rapidly and is now in the second thousand, with ever prospect of a constantly increasing interest among the members, and a future prosperity and usefulness unequalled by any other society. The only secrets of the society are the names of rejected candidates, or persons accused of offences, and the signs of recognition distress, grip, etc. in local lodges.

Since the society was first started but one person has ever expressed a wish to withdraw, and that one without knowing anything of the working of the brder. There are many lading members of the older societies who take a great interest this new Society and express the belief that it is destined to equal or excel any other. Parts of the constitution may need revision, but it is expected the next regular Meeting Sept. 1st. will attend to this, and put good Men in Office to carry out its provisions. [E] 60.

WOULD YOU LIKE TO Join the EMORIANS

A society for the promotion of fraternal kindness among the members and the world at large, proclaiming peace on earth, good will to all, and the practice of those virutes that elevate and adorn society uniting in the bonds of universal brotherhood the people of every country, sect and opinion, not to indulge in coutroversy or acquire political power, influencing no ones faith, leaving each to choose, in politicks or religion, the creed most in accord with his own sense of right.

There are no dues in the first degree those who choose to take the second degree pay one dollar upon making application, and one dollar per year dues, dues are the same in the second, third and fourth degree, a second deg. member is eligible to hold office in a Local Lodge.

There are no benifits paid except to benifit members in local lodges. The officers and past officers of the local lodges constitute the grand lodge membership and are third degree members. The officers and past officers of the grand lodge are fourth degree members. There are no secrets in the lodges except the grip, pass words, signs, etc., and the names of persons who apply for admission or who have been rejected, or matters concerning trials or proceedings of the lodge room

There is no initiatory ceremony in either the grand or local lodge which any may object to go through.

To join you simply send to us for ablank application, fill it out and return it; upon being accepted and recorded you will be notified and your number given you, then you will be a member in 1st. degree. In writing to this office address Krumbs, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich.

To the question, are Emorians obliged to answer all letters sent them we say certainly not, but as fraternal kindness is the fundamental principle of our order, we think a member should be at all times willing to reply to all courteous letters, especially if they contain a stamp for reply. If for any reason you object to correspond it would be a matter of courtesy to return the letter, with perhaps a few words to that effect on it. If a letter is returned unanswered it is understood to decline correspondence. If such a thing should happen that any one should receive a letter of an insulting nature, if they will send it to this office, we think the writer of it will be sorry it was ever written.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 11, 83.

To the Officers and Members of the Order of Emorians:

I hereby tender my resignation to the O of President of the Order of Emorians.

ORVILLE L. LEACH.

Dear Mr Herald, I wonder if among the thousand and more members of our loved society there are many who think of the tale of woe and heartfelt thanks that are bound to come to your knowledge, and if among them there are many who are anxious to participate in the real good work of cheering and assisting those of our brothers and sisters who may be in need of sympathy. For myself I have been quite busy lately with pen and ink writeing to some who need words of cheer and in reabing their cheerful and heart warming letters. I look anxiously for every mail, which only comes to us once a week. for I am almost sure of letters that cheer me and help me along through my weeks work by their memory. God bless the order. ELLA.

Imprisoned in a Trunk.

An employe of the Western of France Railway company lately hit upon a highly original plan for preventing his wife from gadding about in a way of which he disapproves. Before going to his daily duty, M. Lehuby, for such is his name, has been in the habit of locking his wife up in a large trunk. By an ingenious contrivance the lid was made so that it could be raised a few inches for the admission of air. The most remarkable thing, perhaps, in a remarkable case is the fact that the wife, who acknowledged that her husband had the strongest grounds for being dissatisfied with her conduct, seems to have been a consenting party to her enforced seclusion. Nevertheless, the facts becoming known, proceedings were instituted by the police authorities and the correctional tribunal of Louviers condemned M. Lehuby to pay a fine of fifty francs.

Couldn't Afford to Take Chances.

"Didn't I tell you that what I said to you yesterday was a very important secret?"

"You did."

"Then why have you told it to Mawson and Barlow and Jinks?"

"Because I was afraid I might lose it."—Harper's Bazar.

The Retort Unfilial.

Father—In olden times children used to marry in accordance with the wishes of their parents.

Son—Yes; but the world wasn't progressing so rapidly then as it is now, and, as a rule, children didn't know any more than their parents did.—Puck.

AUTUMN.

With what a glory comes and goes the year!
The buds of spring, those beautiful harbingers
Of sunny skies and cloudless times, enjoy Life's newness, and earth's garniture spread out.

And when the silver habit of the clouds
Comes down upon the autumn sun, and with
A sober gladness the old year takes up
His bright inheritance of golden fruits,
A pomp and pageant fill the splendid scene.

There is a beautiful spirit breathing now
Its mellow richness on the clustered trees,
And from a beaker full of richest dyes,
Fearing new glory on the autumn woods,
And, dipping in warm light the pillared clouds.

Morn on the mountain, like a summer bird,
Lifts up her purple wing; and in the vales
The zephyr Wind, a sweet and passionate wooer,
Kisses the blushing leaf, and stirs up life
Within the solemn woods of ash deep-crimsoned.

And silver birch, and maple yellow-leaved,
Whose Autumn like a faint old man sits

"Men, if you want clothing this gentleman will give you honest goods for a fair price, and I would advise you to deal with him if you have any dealing to do."

Of course after this we all put confidence in the man and he soon had quite a number of orders. Most of the men were of the opinion that he was an old acquaintance of our captain, but I took the opportunity of making the sign when asking about a suit of clothes, and at once a sample of a new piece of goods, with just enough for a suit, was offered me at a very moderate price, he at the same time making the remark that it was a special favor to work was confined to his birth, requiring my constant care. He seemed to want no one but Pat to take my place, so he was excused from duty on watch and we took turns in sitting with him and doing all we could for him until we were almost in port. One evening as we lay becalmed, the captain asked me to call Pat, who was sleeping, and when I had done so, he reached out a hand to each of us and thanking us for our kindness in caring for him said he was going to leave us, he had hoped to be able to do a great deal for both of us when we reached America and made another voyage, but now all he could do was ish fort was so close that we could almost, it seemed, throw a stone into it. We cast anchor, the boat was called for by our new captain and we were soon ashore and at the American consul's, who was a merchant and his warehouse was at the landing. The next day our ship was warped in to the English Mail Steamship Co's. wharf and began to discharge her cargo of coal. Pat and I the same evening in talking the matter over, came to the conclusion that we did not wish to go to sea again with the new master, and as he had already refused some of the crew a discharge, and stopped their liberty on shore for asking for it,

AUTUMN.

With what a glory comes and goes the year! The buds of spring, those beautiful harbingers Of sunny skies and cloudless times, enjoy Life's newness, and earth's garniture spread out.

And when the silver habit of the clouds Comes down upon the autumn sun, and with A sober gladness the old year takes up His bright inheritance of golden fruits, A pomp and pageant fill the splendid scene.

There is a beautiful spirit breathing new Its mellow richness on the clustered trees, And from a beaker full of richest dyes, Pouring new glory on the autumn woods, And, dipping in warm light the pillared clouds.

Morn on the mountain, like a summer bird, Lifts up her purple wing; and in the vales The gentle Wind, a sweet and pationate wooer, Kisses the blushing leaf, and stirs up life Within the solemn woods of ash deepertim-somed.

And silver beech, and maple yellow-leaved, Where Autumn like a faint old man sits

By the wayside weary. Through the trees The golden robin moves. The purple thrush, That on wild cherry and red cedar feeds, A winter bird, comes with its plaintive whistle,

And peeks by the witch hazel, whilst about From cottages-roofs the warbling blue bird sings;

And merrily, with oft-repeated strokes, Sounds from the threshing-floor his busy thrill.

Oh, what a glory doth this world put on For him who, with a fervent heart goes forth Under the bright and glorious sky, and looks On duties well performed, and days well spent!

For him the wind, ay, and the yellow leaves, Shall have a voice, and give him eloquent teachings.

He shall so hear the solemn hymn, that Death Has lifted up for all, that he shall go To his long resting-place without a tear. — Longfellow.

Autobiography of Reuben Hart.

As soon as we were in the dock a number of runners came on board looking for sailors who might want a boarding house, a suit of clothes or a guide to the city. One among them I noticed turn toward the captain making the sign of our order, he was at once answered by the captain who came forward and shook hands with him as if an old acquaintance. Very soon we heard the captain say:

"Men, if you want clothing this gentleman will give you honest goods for a fair price, and I would advise you to deal with him if you have any dealing to do."

Of course after this we all put confidence in the man and he soon had quite a number of orders. Most of the men were of the opinion that he was an old acquaintance of our captain, but I took the opportunity of making the sign when asking about a suit of clothes, and at once a sample of a new piece of goods, with just enough for a suit, was offered me at a very moderate price, he at the same time making the remark that it was a special favor to work ing me a special invitation to call at his home and visit him, and on mentioning my chum Pat, I was requested to bring him along with me. The other runners who came on board went away without any orders, seeming to think the captain's friend had all the advantage. We soon found out that the cargo was to be discharged by long-shootmen, and the crew were given the same privilege as at passage, viz., to be paid off or stay by the ship. Only one man of the crew chose to be paid off as he was anxious to go home to America where he had a wife and child. He was accordingly paid off and immediately shipped for the home run in a packet ship, many of us taking advantage of the opportunity to send letters home to be posted in Boston, whither he was bound. The crew were each given a month's pay and liberty to go and come as we pleased for a few days until the cargo was out, when we were towed out of the dock and across the river to Birkenhead, where we were loaded with coal for St. Thomas, a Danish island in the West Indies, and in a short time we were again on the deep blue sea.

A short time after leaving port the captain was taken sick and was confined to his birth, requiring my constant care. He seemed to want no one but Pat to take my place, so he was excused from duty on watch and we took turns in sitting with him and doing all we could for him until we were almost in port. One evening as we lay becalmed, the captain asked me to call Pat, who was sleeping, and when I had done so, he reached out a hand to each of us and thanking us for our kindness in caring for him said he was going to leave us, he had hoped to be able to do a great deal for both of us when we reached America and made another voyage, but now all he could do was the care of the Great Father who created us and would always remember those who remembered him. He then seemed to quietly go to sleep and soon Pat placed his hand on his heart and then held a glass over his mouth and said he was dead. The mate was at once notified, and as soon as he had convinced himself of the captain's death, he called all hands and assumed charge of the ship, appointing one of the sailors as second mate, the second mate becoming mate. The remains of our beloved captain were brought on deck, sewed up in canvas with a heavy piece of iron at the feet, and placed upon a plank in the gangway. The ship was layed to, a service was read and the body of our friend was consigned to a deep-sea grave.

After the ceremony the yards were squared and we were again on our voyage with a new master who was a different man in many ways from our late captain. As soon as he found no one to keep him in check, he began to drink what liquor there was on board, being half drunk all the day and sleeping heavily all night. It was only a few days more until we arrived at the island of St. Thomas and ran into the harbor through a narrow channel, where the Danish fort was so close that we could almost, it seemed, throw a stone into it. We cast anchor, the boat was called for by our new captain and we were soon ashore and at the American consul's, who was a merchant and his warehouse was at the landing. The next day our ship was warped in to the English Mail Steamship Co's wharf and began to discharge her cargo of coal. Pat and I the same evening in talking the matter over, came to the conclusion that we did not wish to go to sea again with the new master, and as he had already refused some of the crew a discharge, and stopped their liberty on shore for asking for it,

Accordingly we packed up our bundles and some hard tack and salt beef, and at about six bells, or three o'clock, in the morning we crawled out through the port and got ashore on a raft that was being used for painting the ship, keeping very quiet until we were quite a long way from the vessel. We were very careful to keep out of sight during the day, and at night we went looking for water, which we were able to get only by crawling up to a cistern which was built of brick and cement, there being no fresh water on the island except that caught during the rainy season. True, there is a small stream running through the town which we were able to reach by going above the town in the valley, but the water was very brackish and not fit to drink. There was a reward offered for us we discovered the second night by meeting a sailor from one of the English steamers, who was going around the harbor from the town to the company wharves. We were therefore very careful for the next few days, but as we must have water and our bottles were empty, we took a dark night, or rather morning, at about three o'clock to go to get some. When we had secured the water and thought we were all safe, we were

THE ORDER OF EMORIANS.

A Society to promote fraternal kindness among members and the world at large, proclaiming peace on earth, good will to all, and the practice of those virtues that elevate and adorn society, uniting in the bonds of universal brotherhood the people of every country, sect and opinion. Not to indulge in controversy or acquire political power, influencing no one's faith, leaving each to choose, in politics or religion, the creed most in accord with their own sense of right.

Any person of good repute, twelve years of age or over, may become a member by making application on a blank which will be furnished for that purpose, and, if accepted, a number will be given and they will become a member of the first degree without any initiatory ceremony.

To become a member of the second degree, and be eligible to vote or hold elective office in the order, applicants who have been three months a member of the first degree, or by a dispensation, must send in their application accompanied by a fee of one dollar, and if accepted will pay one dollar a year dues.

The third degree is composed of the elective and past-elective officers of Local Lodges. Dues the same as the second degree, and eligible to office in Grand Lodge.

The fourth degree is composed of officers and past-officers of the Grand Lodge. Dues the same as second degree.

A charge against a member for dishonesty, gross immorality or conduct liable to injure the good name of the society, may be made by any person, but must be endorsed by a member of the same or a higher degree in the order before action can be taken thereon.

Local Lodges may be organized wherever there are nine members, four at least being of the second degree to hold the elective offices of the lodge.

There is a grip, signs, words, etc., which with the names of candidates, subjects of a family nature, trials, etc., all are obligated to keep secret, they being of no concern to outsiders. There is, however, no religious ceremony of any kind, no hazing, and religious and political topics are forbidden to be discussed about the lodge room.

Our motto is "Let us help one another," and we try to live up to it by giving each other warning of impending danger, or information of wrong doing, by assisting each other in sickness or in trouble, in welcoming those of our members who may meet in strange places and who can prove themselves members in good standing, as we believe they must be worthy or they would not be allowed to remain members.

We regard the badge of our order as a certificate of respectability when worn by persons who can prove their right to wear it, and in business matters it is a certificate of reliability worthy of confidence.

Our members are found in almost every place, in every country in all parts of the world, and our membership is constantly increasing, promising at no far distant day to be a bond of union among all good people wherever found.

The names of all members in good standing are printed in small books, volume one has the names of all up to number 607, volume two contains them up to number 1234, and volume three up to number 1850, with a list of those who have died, resigned, or been dropped from membership. They are for sale to any person at twenty-five cents per volume. Volumes will continue to be published as there is need for them, they will be of value to all who do business by mail as a list of reliable persons with whom to transact business. Badges will be sold only to members. We welcome all good people to membership, and to any person who can furnish reference we will be glad to send a blank form of application for membership.

Address: KRUMBS, Aarwood, Kalkaska Co., Mich., U. S. A.

The following members would like to correspond with other members for mutual improvement, or business friendship. Numbers only are given, no names will be published. Members desiring their number added to this list will please notify us and give their number. No charge is made for placing number here, nor will we give names to those who ask for them, if you wish to use the list look them up in the directory.

The Grand Secretary would like to start an Emori circular. Anyone interested may, by sending their number and five cents to James G. Hoyes, 122 Burnside street, Providence, R. I., receive full particulars of plan. We would recommend all who wish to join for a long winter evening occasionally, to send and get the secretary's plan whereby each one of the class will have a keepake that they may value very highly.

We beg to inform our readers that Vol. III. of the Emorian Directory is now in hands and will be published as soon as completed. It will contain the names and addresses of members of the Order from number 1234 to number 1850, and also a limited number of advertisements and some choice reading matter. Parties wishing to advertise will please send in their copy without delay. Prices, 10c. per line, $2.50 per page.

Sickness and accidents are factors in everyone's life that cannot be avoided, and none know when they will need friends. Then why not join our Order, get all the good people in your vicinity together, hold meetings, and if possible organize a local lodge, or join some local lodge already established. If there is no local lodge within ten miles of you you can join any local lodge no matter how far distant and receive all the benefits except the privilege of being present in the lodge room. If there are a number of members they can meet for social talk and combine for mutual or public improvement even if they are not regularly organized into a local lodge and have no charter, but it takes only four second degree members to get a charter, and a lodge can be organized in any small community. Pious, social entertainments, etc., will pay all the expense of organization, and the bringing of your friends together under the auspices of the order will bring in new members. Join and protect your families and yourselves when in need of friends. If our wants to be taken care of, the sure means of securing this is to organize and cooperate in caring for each other. Now is the time to act, not when it is too late.

A Practical Test.

"I see by the newspapers," he observed "that the emperor of Paris tried to borrow money, and was offered eighty-five francs a month as was asked for."
"Yes, that's true."
"I noticed, too, that the German loan was over-subscribed a good many times."
"Yes."
"It indicates that money is plentiful and cheap?"
"It does."
"Now if I were to ask you to lend me a dollar, would you offer to make it fifty or seventy-five dollars?"
"Certainly not."
"If I were to ask for a dime, would you volunteer to furnish me with a two-dollar bill?"
"No."
"If I should endeavor to negotiate the loan of a cent, I suppose, you would not even suggest that I take a nickel?"
"You're quite right."
"It is as I thought," muttered the would-be borrower, as he walked away. "It is a plain practical test as this that makes me skeptical of what I read in the new papers."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

More Than He Could Bear.

He was of the tramps' tramp, and there was that in his carriage and his apparel which stamped him as incurable, as he stood expectant before a kitchen door at which he had just knocked. The lady of the house responded.
"Kin I git a bite to eat, lady?" he asked, in great humility.
"Yes, I suppose so," she replied resignedly, as she went back to the cupboard.
She brought him a piece of cold meat and a slice of pie, and he had just taken a bite of the pie.
"Do you belong to Coxey's army?" she asked.
He took the bite of pie out of his mouth.
"Lady," he said, looking down over himself, and then up into her kindly face, "I don't expect justice at your hands, but I do think you oughter to be merciful," and the lady apologized on the spot.—Detroit Free Press.

FOURTH OF JULY IN AUSTRALIA.

To the Editor:

The Americans residing in Australia do not forget to celebrate the "fourth," it is held here as in the old country as a general holiday. The American Consuls hold receptions, and great loyal and national feelings prevail. A distinctive feature of the reception held last "fourth" in Sydney, New South Wales, at the American Consulate, was the presentation of an illuminated address by the American residents to their Consul General, Bel. The address of Colonel Bell, admirably designed and illuminated, was presented by Major Dace, who alluded in highly complimentary terms to the personal character and official career of the recipient. The address, which was signed by most of the American residents in Sydney, read as follows:

"We have undesignated, your fellow countrymen, deem this our glorious national a proper occasion for an expression of our admiration for your unflinching courtesy, industry and dignified patriotism, and an appreciation of your diplomatic methods, for your conspicuous ability in strengthening the friendship and promoting the commercial interests between this and our own country, and to congratulate you upon the high respect in which you are justly held, not only by the people of Sydney and New South Wales, but by all Australia, assuring you that such a feeling among strangers is a rich tribute to high character and manly worth. We have watched your career in this far off land with patriotic pride, and we ask you to accept this as an evidence of our esteem for you personally, and our high appreciation of your splendid services to your country and your countrymen. We hope you may long remain in Sydney, and that the government at Washington may properly recognize your value to the diplomatic service and commercial interests of your nation."

Colonel Bell replied in appropriate terms, thanking his fellow citizens for the honor conferred upon him, and assuring them that he loved his country as "tenderly and as truly as any young boy ever loved a school girl."

THE GREAT LONE LAND.

To the Editor:

Thinking it might interest your readers, I am going to write you a letter from the far Northwest.

The Great Lone Land, as Colonel Butler calls it in his book of that name, is not such a lone land as it was under the regime of the Hudson's Bay Company, nor is it the barren waste described by many writers, true, the winters are severe but the other seasons are delightful. Although the summers are short, farmers have good crops and vegetables grow to an immense size.

Until the government of Canada took over the Northwest Territories from the Hudson's Bay Company, comparatively little was known of the resources of this country, the company having managed to keep settlers away by giving out that the land was of no use for agriculture and that the sole trade of the country was in furs.

With the transfer of the land being a new era for the Territories, settlers came in and found the land not only fit for agriculture but the soil the richest to be found on the continent. With the advent of the Canadian Pacific Railroad in 1883, dates the general opening up of the country, but it was some years later before the iron horse reached the North Saskatchewan and Edmonton ceased to be considered 200 miles from the border of civilization.

The country in this neighborhood takes the nature of a number of beautiful parks composed of small prairies and lakes with hills and dales covered with groves of trees. The settler has not to go into the primeval forest and hew his way, but can pick out a piece of prairie with its rich soil ready for the plow and still have close at hand timber sufficient for all his wants. Coal abounds all over the country and crops out on the surface in many places. In the very center of this town is a coal mine which supplies all our needs. We have grist and saw mills, churches, schools and all the attendants of civilization, while to guard us from harm we have a division of the Northwest Mounted Police at Fort Saskatchewan, 18 miles distant, with a detachment stationed in this town.

I must not encroach too much on your space but I wish to let your readers know that the far Canadian Northwest, and the Edmonton District in particular, is not the land of snow and ice it has been represented to be.

BEATTY'S PIANOS in use everywhere. For catalogue address Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, New Jersey.

NOTICES.

THE Home Guardian of Winchester, Ind., has been discontinued and all unexpired subscriptions will be filled by KRUMBS.

Mon. Daniel F. Beatty, of Washington, New Jersey, the great organ and Piano manufacturer, is building and shipping more organs and pianos than ever. In 1870 Mr. Beatty left home a penniless plow boy, and by his indomitable will has worked his way up so as to sell so far, nearly 100,000 of Beatty's organs and pianos since 1870. Nothing seems to dishearten him; obstacles laid in his way, that would have wrecked an ordinary man forever, he turns to an advertisement and comes out of it brighter than ever. His instruments, as is well known, are very popular and are to be found in all parts of the world. We are informed that during the next ten years he intends to sell 200,000 more of his make; that means a business of $20,000,000, if we average them at $100 each. It is already the largest business of the kind in existence. Write to Daniel F. Beatty, Washington, New Jersey, for catalogue.

A SUMMER HOME.

The city man's wife requested him to say where he would go to spend next summer, and she thought he'd say he didn't know. But the city man was wary, and he made his wife look blue. By giving her this answer which shows plainly that he knew,

"I mean to build a house," said he, "to suit us to a T. In just about the prettiest spot that ever you did see. There'll be no gas nor water rates, there'll be no rent to pay. There'll be no landlord in this place to tease our life away.

"The cooking will be all to suit, berries all are free. We'll have our meals when it suits, my darling wife and me. Servants we will have none, our company will be choice, and the whole will be in our control, no other will have voice.

"We'll have bright and airy rooms, and just enough to do. With play grounds for the children and sitting room for you. There'll be no balls and parties and we won't have to dress. Some sixteen times daily, our minds be free from stress."

"And where will it be?" his wife said, "this Paradise on earth. This happy summer Eden, this home beyond all worth." The city man straightway answered, "We won't have far to roam. We'll just go up to Aarwood, there build our summer home."

STAMP KRUMBS.

Postage stamps were first issued in the U. S. on 30, 1847, under act of Congress of March 3, 1847.

Stamped envelopes were first issued in June, 1853, under act of Congress of August 30, 1852.

Postal cards were first issued May 1, 1873, under act of Congress of June 8, 1872.

Letters were first registered July 1, 1855, under act of Congress of March 5, 1855.

The money order system went into operation November 1, 1864, under act of Congress of May 17, 1864.

The gross revenue of the P. O. department for A. D. 1788, was $7,510; for 1891 it was $78,173,841.

The gross expenditure of the department for the year 1789 was $7,500; for 1891 it was $76,006,516.

Miles of mail service performed in 1783 was 845,468, and in 1892 it was 362,167,035.

Paid as compensation of postmasters in 1789 the sum of $1,637, and in 1891 it was $15,493,769.

Number of established post offices in 1789 was 73, and in 1893 it is 60,998.

There was allowed postmasters the sum of $63,866.24 for losses by fire and burglary in 1894; of this $15,329.65 was for stamps and money destroyed by fire, and $48,536.59 for losses by burglary.

There were 1,621 post offices burglarized last year, and 556 post offices were burned.

A TWO CENT POSTAGE STAMP is but a small matter you think perhaps, but when one has to reply to hundreds of letters, the postage (aside from stationery and time,) is quite an item. So when writing to us we never object to your enclosing return postage, especially when asking for information of use to yourself only, or for sample copies.

1000 Circulars $212, or smaller, mailed in 10 days for $1; 100 for 10c. Small papers mailed for 20c. per 100; satisfaction guaranteed. Address: J. T. LEMPKINS, Neva, Va.

WHAT IS COMMUNISM?

A Narrative of the Relief Community.

This is a book of 424 pages, giving an interesting and entertaining explanation of the principles, organization and practical details of Community Homes, with common property, united labor, mutual support, and equal rights to all, so as to secure much greater wealth, comfort and enjoyment in all the affairs of life to all the members than can possibly be obtained in the ordinary separate way of living.

It also contains a simple and practical plan by which Communities may be established all over the country and consolidated so as to finally and speedily secure the adoption of common property and united labor by our government, in which every citizen will be required to work according to his ability for the Community of which he is a member and be supplied thereby with everything it can afford according to his wants.

All who are interested in improving society in any way, or who might wish to secure the great riches and pleasures of a Community home for themselves, should read it. It will be sent by mail to any address, for 25 cts.

Entirely New.

A Grand Educator.

Successor of the "Unabridged."

Everybody should own this Dictionary. It answers all questions concerning the history, spelling, pronunciation, and meaning of words.

A Library in Itself. It also gives the often desired information concerning eminent persons; facts concerning the countries, cities, towns, and natural features of the globe; particularly concerning noted fictionists; persons and books; translation of foreign quotations. It is valuable in the home, office, study, and schoolroom.

The One Great Standard Authority.

Ben. D. J. Brewer, Justice of U. S. Supreme Court, writes: "The International Dictionary is the perfection of dictionaries. I commend it to all as the one great standard authority."
