Why is there such similarity between a bad school-boy and a postage stamp—Because one gets the stick and a licking; while the other gets the licking and a stick.

The Penny Post was set up in London in 1681 by a man named Murray, an Upholsterer, he, a few years after assigned the same to Mr. Dockwra. In 1711 it was claimed by the government who allowed the latter a pension of £200 per annum.

The first post in Ireland was set up at Dublin in 1774.

The post was greatly improved in and around London during the year, 1794.

Post-horses and stages were first run in 1483.

Post-offices were first established in France in 1462; in England in 1581; in Germany in 1641; in the Turkish dominions, 1740; and was regulated by parliament and made general in England in 1656.

The first mail conveyed by stage coaches, run August 2, 1782.

During the last 12 months 370 new post offices have been erected in the United Kingdom.

The Editor's Letter Box.

28, VICTORIA DOCK RD.,

Dear Readers,

I with this number bring into the Philately World a new Journal, which I sincerely hope will prove a success.

I shall do my utmost to make this the Best Stamp Magazine published, and I have not the slightest doubt whatever that I shall succeed in time in making it so.

Hoping my friends and readers will kindly introduce this number to their friends.

I remain etc.,

H. A. Copley.

We Can't think Why?

The 'Southampton Exchange List' has been published so irregularly.

Marks List has followed its example.

The Amateur Journals smash up so quickly after the grand promises they issue out in their first number.

Mr. ———, should be seen lounging about the Gaiety Music Hall the other day.

A man dressed in a long ulster should be allowed to patrol L—— Street, Birmingham, every Saturday evening.

A certain publisher should go so much to the "only round-the-corner."

See Number 2

Ready on January the 1st, next for an article on the "Origin of Coins" by Eugenio, author of "origin of clocks," &c., &c.

Ready on

February 1st, 1887 a new Amateur Journal devoted to COIN AND STAMP COLLECTING, Fun, Fact, Fiction, &c., &c.

Subscription 6d. per Annum.

For further particulars see next number.

Look out for the

New Amateur Magazine, which will contain Articles, Essays, &c., on all subjects and hobbies by the best amateur authors of the day, amongst which are the following—Edward F. Herdman, Geo. H. Stanewell, Chas. F. Martin, A. A. Dykes, Phil Harthaway, Eveyln Penrith, H. A. Copley, and last, but not by any means least H. Cararo, author of the late successful pamphlet "Wonderful Occurrences."

SUBSCRIPTION 6d. PER ANNUM.

For full particulars see next number of the 'Universal Stamp Collector.'

ORIGIN OF GOINS.

RY EUGENIO.

—O—

The era of the invention of money is not easy to be settled. There is not room to doubt that in the earliest ages the ordinary way of traffic among men was, by exchanging commodity for commodity. But in the course of time, it was found necessary to have some common measure or standard, according to which all other things should be estimated. This, as some gather, was first invented by Cain, through the first we learn of it in sacred writ is the time of Abraham, who paid 400 shekels for a burial place.

This is the earliest account that we have of metals being made use of as the medium of trade; it appears however, from the relations which establish this fact, that it had no mark to ascertain its weight or fineness, but "was weighed in the presence of the people." As commerce improved, bargains of this sort became more common, and this practice was laid aside, and the quantity of silver was ascertained by a particular mark, which saved the trouble of weighing it; but this does not appear until the time of Jacob, the second from Abraham, (who died B.C. 1689, aged 136.) The price of money we read of in his time was the resilah, stamped with the figure of a lamb, and was of precise and stated value.

Among the ancient Britons, iron rings, or as some say iron plates, were used for money. The first coin used in Britain was in the year 25 A.C.

Among the Lacedemonians, iron bars quenched with vinegar, were used, intended that they might not answer any other purpose. Seneca observes, that anciently they was stamped money of leather. The Hollanders coined great quantities of paste board, in the year 1574. Numa Pompilius made money of wood and leather; nor does it appear that the Romans were much acquainted with the art of striking money in metal during the time of their kings. The first silver money they coined was in the year of Rome, 484, that is, 269 years A.C. The Monetarü, (or the persons who struck the ancient coins for the Romans,) sometimes impressed the images of men that had been eminent in their families, on their coins; but no living man's head was ever stamped on a coin, till after the fall of the commonwealth; after that time they bore the emperors head on one side, and from this period the practice of stamping the prince's image on coins was obtained, excepted, who, in detestation of images, inscribe only the prince's name, with the year of the transmigration of the prophet.

The first money coined by the Arabians was in the year A.D. 660.

Money of gold and silver was first coined at Argos, in the year before Christ, 894.

Mr. Camden observes, that the most ancient English coin he had knowu, was that of Ethelbert, king of Kent, the first christian king in the island, in whose time all money accounts began to pass by the names of pounds, shillings, pence, and man-cussis.

the custom of their predecessors, of coining only pence with the princes images on one side, and on the other, the name of the city where it was coined, with a cross so deeply impressed, that it might be easily broken in halves, which so broken they called half-pence; or into four parts, which they called four things, furthings, or farthings.

In the time of Richard I. money coined in the East part of Germany came into special request in England, on account of its purity, and was called easterling money, as all the inhabitants of those parts were called easterlings, and shortly after some of these people skilled in coining were sent for hither to bring the coin to perfection, which ever since has been called sterling for easterling.

About the year 1320, the States of Europe first began to coin gold, and among the rest our King Edward III. The first pieces he coined were called Florences, being coined by Florentines; afterwards he coined Nobles, then rose Nobles, and Half-Nobles—Cyclop. and Reminis. Memo.

We Can't think Why?

There should be such a great number of mistakes in "Eldryn's Advertiser" (No. 2). The Editor must be very new to his work.

* * *

An article should be written for the above list concerning 'How to Feed Rabbits' perhaps the Editor meant Breed instead of Feed.

* * *

One of the advertisements of the same list should contain the follow curious mistake:—
 "Prices for Football Skin Guards, &c." What a "Football Skin" Guard is we are at a loss to find out. Perhaps some of our readers connected with the above game could enlighten us on the subject.

* * *

"Waugh's Journal" has become such a large and popular journal lately.

* * *

We did not receive many competitors for the prize offered in our last number for the best article on Philately.

J. Johnson (Leeds)—Battle is a market town in the rape of Hastings and the county of Sussex. It was the scene of the conflict in 1066, which insured to William the Norman, the crown of England. The inhabitants amounted to 2040 in 1800; in 1821 they increased to 2850. Thanks for kind letter.

H. Hartman (Sheffield) — This Journal studies only its readers, what they wish we endeavour to do. Thanks for praises.

W. Georges (United States)— You will see an article upon the subject you mention in our next.

* * * Advertisements are inserted under this heading at the following low rates, viz: 24 words 3d., every additional 6 words 1d.
