A STAMP THAT HELPED MAKE HISTORY.
One of the queer controversies which sometimes arise about the issuance of a new stamp occurred in New Brunswick in 1860 when a new Postmaster General, Charles Connell, was accused by his enemies in the province of having had his portrait put on the stamps of the colony with a view to turning the country into an absolute monarchy, with himself as its head. The stamp was a five-cent one issued with a number of others all bearing different designs. When the opponents of Mr. Connell in the colony saw that the Post Master General's own portrait had been selected for one of the stamps they were furiously angry. Such an outcry was raised about the matter that the Lieutenant Governor disapproved the design. A new stamp was issued on which the face of Queen Victoria appeared, and Mr. Connell gave up his position and retired to private life.

As we come to press we learn that Mr. Commegys has discontinued the "Dixie" after it had been published for about a year and a half.

Press Review by E. L. Weiss.

The Pacific Stamp News for July announces the death of Wm. M. Osborne father of the Editor and he has our sincere sympathy. The Exchange for May has been enlarged to a 6 x 9 paper and shows better than of old. The Collectors Monthly of Oakland Cal. June issue and the May issue of the Australian Stamp Journal have been received.
